It Sure Is Sad When a Veteran Has to Do This

This is the way Norman Hall, a crack 200-pound guard, is taking his football at Yale these days. Hall had the misfortune to accidentally use an ax across his foot several weeks ago and it is in such a condition that he won't be able to go out for his regular berth of last year for some few weeks. And his absence hurts young Mal Stevens, who has the big job of preparing Yale this year for some awfully tough teams.

Mrs. Howard Shafer returned

We tested them all... and acclaim Boss of the Road the "King of Overalls"

In our desire to give our customers the best merchandise that the market affords, we have made a very thorough investigation of the various lines of standard union made work clothes, overalls. We gave instructions to our buyers to thoroughly analyze the points listed below, which, in our opinion, are most important as far as work clothes are concerned and the reason that we lay so much stress upon the importance of our work clothes line, is due to the fact that a man who works in his overalls, lives in this garment more hours per day than in any other one outer garment. He earns his living while working in the overalls, so why shouldn't this garment be given more attention in regard to value, than any other garment he wears?

The points that we have analyzed are as follows:

1. The length of the staple and the quality of the cotton from which the material ("Denim") is made.
2. The number of threads to the inch both in the warp and in the filling.
3. The weight of the denim, which must be heavy enough to give long wear and yet light enough to be comfortable.
4. The quality and amount of dye in the yarn which makes up the denim.
5. The effect the laundry has on the goods and how they look after being washed.
6. The neat comes the cut of the garment. In other words, they must be cut full enough to take care of the normal shrinkage after washing so that the worker will have ample ease while working in his overalls.
7. The quality and size of the thread with which the garment is put together.
8. The number of pockets in the garment and the quality of the material from which the pockets are made.
9. The reinforcing of all points of strain to prevent ripping.
10. The quality of buttons and the quality of the buckles, which should be brass, so they will not rust when being laundered, because rust rots the goods and, what is more important, is the size of the tack with which the button is attached to the garment.

When we started this very thorough and careful investigation, we did not think that the examination of an overall would take the time and study that this examination requires, but we went right ahead and analyzed every point mentioned above and after this very exhausting examination of the various lines, we have decided that the "Boss of the Road" line is by far the outstanding line of the country.

We find that in comparison with other brands, it is the best looking, most comfortable and longest wearing garment on the market and we have, therefore, decided to carry this line for our standard high-grade work clothes line.

Every garment is thoroughly guaranteed to give satisfaction in every manner, shape or form, or your money will be cheerfully refunded.

PROHIS STAGE RAID IN COOS BAY DISTRICT

MARSHFIELD, Ore., Oct. 12. (UP)—Three prisoners, a $1200 still, 18 barrels of mash and numerous jugs and other containers were the total catch of five country, state and federal officers early Thursday in a raid on a place beside Floras Lake, Curry county. The men arrested are Owen W. Smith 35; William Dickrich, 65, and James Sharp. The raid caught two of the men in the shack. Smith, in his night clothes, attempted to escape by fleeing through the brush. Sharp was captured when he landed on the lake shore in a rowboat loaded with empty containers. The still, was of 125 gallon capacity. Officers expect the raid to result in stopping considerable of the flow of liquor recently much in evidence in Coos and Curry counties they said.
