Three Students Win Prizes By Writing Essays

The contest recently sponsored by the library book committee has finished and following are the three Klamath Falls students who won books by their prize-winning essays:

Merwin Smith, age 12, grade eight low, Pelican City school; Lulu Nyström, age 19, grade five high, Mill school; Ida Glynn, age eight, grade two low, Pelican City school.

Between November 12 and 23, 1429 pupils and their teachers from the city schools visited the city library to enjoy the display of books arranged especially for the observance of Children's Book Week. Such interest was shown that the library book committee decided to offer to those schools who attended three books as prizes in the following contest:

To the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th grades for the most entertaining and original essay of not more than 100 words about a book that I have borrowed from the library, or a book that I would like to own, or my favorite library book. To the first, second and third grades for the most original and entertaining poster or booklet about good book week; some book or story from some book from school or public library, or a picture studied at school. These posters and booklets are on display at the city library.

Miss Florence Gould, county librarian, Mrs. H. R. Harrison and Miss Dehelia Hawkins were appointed as judges of the contest.

He visited his mother, Mrs. G. P. Livingston, who formerly made her home here. Livingston is local manager of the Western Union Telegraph office.

Judge and Mrs. R. A. Emmitt are leaving this morning for Santa Cruz, Calif., to spend the holidays at the home of their daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Shaw and children left yesterday by motor for Long Beach, Calif., to spend two weeks on a vacation trip. Mr. Shaw is a member of the Shaw-Bertram Lumber company.

The second of the winter vesper services at the Presbyterian church will be held Sunday afternoon at 4:30. A large choir of trained voices will take part in the program.
