

Sharkey Must Defeat Christner Before Battle With Stribling—Akron Man's Early Record Told

Editor's Note: The fate of the Sharkey-Stribling bout at Miami Beach February 27 rests upon the outcome of Friday night's fight between the Bostonian and M. W. Christner at Akron, Ohio.

Who Christner is, and how he came into the picture and what he thinks of his chances are told in the following article, an exclusive close-up of the former rubber pugilist.

United Press, N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Meyers W. Christner never knew he could fight until he crawled out of the pit in an Akron, O., tire factory and shattered an opponent's jaw in three places with one swing of his right fist.

"What a K. O.," his fellow tire workers said.

Gets Nickname
He got his nickname that day and his first fight shortly afterwards in July, 1927, at a club smoker, he knocked out his opponent, Arvin Spence, in two rounds. Previous to that fight he had seen only two rounds of boxing in his life.

Until the big Akron rubber puddler knocked out the highly-touted Knute Hansen in Cleveland recently he was not known outside his own region, where little was thought of him by anyone but his own handlers.

Christner Confident
Now, when most fighters have passed their peak or quit the ring, Christner is getting his first big chance at 34. Jack Dempsey is the same age and Gene Tunney three years younger. Both have retired.

While Dempsey and Madison Square are pushing ahead with elaborate plans for the Sharkey-Stribling bout at Miami Beach, Fla., February 27, Christner is confident he can blast all their good work with his murderous right fist.

"Sure Can Sock"
"If Sharkey will fight, I'll do the same thing to him I did to Hansen," Christner said. "I ain't no fancy boxer, but I sure can sock."

Christner's confidence in himself is not radiated in flaccid circles where Sharkey is a prohibitive favorite to show up Christner as a lucky fighter who catapulted into prominence on one fight.

"They didn't think I was any good in Cleveland before I stopped Hansen," Christner said when told New York fight fans regarded him as a "set-up" for Sharkey.

The betting odds were 20 to 1 on Hansen, according to Christner, who advised a pal on the police force to bet his only $25 at those odds. There is no record of anyone else betting on Christner.

ANAMAE THOMPSON

Makes Western Mother Proud

Don't let constipation and its attendant ailments such as headaches, lillousness, feverishness, fretfulness, sallow, "broken out" skin, etc., pull your child down and make her puny, listless and underweight. At the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue or feverishness, give her a little California Fig Syrup.

Children love the rich, fruity flavor of California Fig Syrup, and it never fails to start lazy bowels quick, cleanse them thoroughly and give tone and strength to them and to the stomach so those organs continue to act normally, of their own accord. It stimulates the appetite, helps digestion makes rosy cheeks, bright eyes, helps build up and strengthen children.

A well known Colorado mother Mrs. L. V. Thompson, 2359 East Colfax Ave., Denver, says: "My little daughter, Anamae, suffered from constipation until I thought it was going to keep her delicate always. She was losing weight fast when I started her on California Fig Syrup. In a few days it made a world of difference in her looks and actions. Now I'm proud as I can be of her; she's so ruddy, strong and plump."

Over four million mothers used a year shows the popularity of the genuine. Look for the name, "California" on the carton, so you won't get a substitute.

the fight, Christner finished him in the seventh round, knocking him down with a right to the head. Hansen lay flat on his face until he was counted out and it was 20 minutes later before he was brought to consciousness.

Christner's punch is no myth, according to his record. He has scored 41 knockouts in 47 fights. He quit his job in the Akron tire factory last April and has scored 11 knockouts in 15 professional bouts. He worked in the pit for 19 years. It is the hardest work in the factory. The pit is referred to as the place where "men are mules." The pay is $7.50 a day.

Sparcs With Dempsey
From 1915 to 1919 he was first sergeant in the 37th infantry and saw service on the Texas border at Laredo and Eagle Pass.

He sparred with Dempsey while the latter was training for his second fight with Turney. Dempsey let go with everything he had and drove a tooth through a gold crown in Christner's jaw, but the Akron fighter never mentioned the injury until after the round.

Christner is married and has two children, one 7 and the other 5. He has saved most of the money he has earned boxing and has paid for a $10,000 home.

Lakeview Team Wants Game Here

A letter has been received by the Klamath county chamber of commerce from Forrest E. Cooper who is manager of the basketball team of Lakeview, asking that Earl Reynolds, secretary, put him in touch with some of the managers of Klamath Falls teams to negotiate for some games between Klamath and Lakeview.

It was stated in the letter that Lakeview has a fine playing floor and room for 200 or 300 spectators. A squad of 15 is working out regularly in basketball and Mr. Cooper feels that a match with them would prove a good game. He asked that games be played here and return games in Lakeview.

Bad Weather Said Aid to Industry

tion of their logging camps, when the log pond becomes covered with ice and remains so for a day or two, very few mills make any effort to run. For that reason the cold spell which is now being experienced continues it will soon bring the output of lumber back to the low output it was during the holidays. Since most of the mills are again operating, an enforced curtailment would fit in excellently with program of production regulation and would go a long way toward tiding over what is generally conceded to be the most dangerous period of the year.

Mental State Helps

The other benefit to be derived from the storm is psychological. It gives the lumber manufacturers a mild taste of the weather their customers are having to cope with and goes much further than newspaper reports can to impress upon every one that they cannot expect a maximum demand for lumber under such conditions, for it is one thing to read about snow and ice and another to have to wade around in it.

With the weather such a potent factor both in the immediate supply and demand for lumber, it should not be difficult for anyone to see that overnight changes can bring either the output of lumber or the volume of buying to a temporary stop, and such fluctuations do not permit of a real test of the elements that determine the trend of the market.

As might be expected, there is more disparity in prices now than there was during the summer and fall. Even so, price levels have not been greatly disturbed and concerns that have the good judgment to be reconciled to a smaller volume of new business through the winter months are holding to the price advances made during the last half of 1928, and they are receiving just as many orders as the misguided operators who have figured that they could stimulate business by offering their stock for less money.

Car Material Better

It is futile to expect a big volume of orders in January and February, except at times when some unexpected demand arises, and if the fir mills would shut down completely every year from Christmas to the first of March, it would then be possible to operate profitably at full capacity for the remaining 10 months, something they too seldom do.

Providing the output is kept in control for another six weeks, the outlook for this year is much better than it was in 1928. The car material market promises to lead all domestic demands for side cut. Already the most called for items of both clear and select common are advancing in price and there is plenty of evidence that the eastern railroads will have to look to the Pacific coast for the bulk of their car material this year, and too, there will be more cars built.

While the domestic water markets, California and the Atlantic coast, are seasonably dull, a study of past history will show that over a period of years California and the Atlantic coast take about the same footage annually. Whether or not this business brings the mills a margin of profit depends entirely upon the merchandising method used, and in that connection it can be truthfully said that some sizeable factors will be felt in the serving of the Atlantic coast and California this year that have never before been given a trial on such a large scale, and everyone is looking hopefully for an abandonment of the ruinous methods that have kept these fields dumping grounds in the past.

Export Outlook Good

The outlook for export business is better than it was 12 months ago. Right at the moment export buying is comparatively slow, but nothing is thought of that, as the foreign trading is too deliberate to be measured by the happenings of any one week. An increased demand from Australia, China and the east coast of South America seems assured, and should be enough to give the export business the little added momentum that it needed in 1928 to strengthen prices.

The pine mills in the Bend, Klamath Falls and Inland Empire districts are all receiving more orders now than they were three weeks ago, and pine prices are reflecting strongly the low and badly broken stocks of seasoned lumber. The pine market is in a very firm position, as it is not

First Zigfeld picked her for his "Follies." Next she was chosen for "Rio Rita" and now Warner Brothers will present her in the movies. Dainty Agnes Franey is climbing; helped by clever dancing and seldom equalled beauty.

Miss Franey says: "I don't believe in overlooking anything which helps add to your attractiveness. I am most particular about my hair and so many friends compliment me on its softness and lustre that I am sure my method of caring for it is right. Nearly all the girls I know here in New York are using it, now. It is so easy. All we do is put a little Danderine on our brushes each time we dress our hair. It makes my hair easy to dress and holds it in place wonderfully. It has gotten rid of my dandruff. It keeps my hair and scalp so comfortable, that I don't shampoo hair as often as I did before. And best of all, it gives my hair a softer, more silky and lustrous appearance than anything I've ever found."

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair, brings out its natural color, makes it fairly sparkle! Dandruff usually disappears when you use Danderine. Waves, "set" with it, stay in longer. It's delicately fragrant; isn't oily; doesn't show. It's economical. The 35c bottles will last several weeks. All drug stores recommend and guarantee it.—adv.

"We know our Luckies. That's how we stay slender"

EVERY woman who fears overweight finds keen interest in new day and continuous ways to keep a slender, fashionable figure. Overweight must be avoided. "Better to light a Lucky whenever you crave fattening sweets."

Toasting does it. Toasting develops and improves the flavor of the world's finest tobaccos. Lucky Strike satisfies the longing for things that make you fat, without interfering with a normal appetite for healthful foods. That's why Luckies are good to smoke. Toasting makes Lucky Strike the healthy cigarette for you to smoke.

Many men who carefully watch their health discovered this years ago. They know that Luckies steady their nerves and do not slow up their physical vigor—prominent athletes have gone on record that this is so. They know that 20,679 physicians have stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say—
