

U. S. OLYMPIC TRACK COACH TELLS PLANS

Americans Facing Strong Competition From Other Nations

This is the first of two interviews with Lawson Robertson, the head coach of the U. S. Olympic track and field team. Today Robertson tells of the strong foreign opposition his team will face. Tomorrow he will tell how he plans to meet this opposition.

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Feb. 12. (UP)—When the 1928 Olympic games get under way in Los Angeles, American athletes will greatly outnumber the contestants from any other one nation. This, with the fact that the Americans will be working under familiar climatic conditions, drinking American water, and eating American food, is certain to give them a tremendous advantage.

But—Lawson Robertson, head coach of the American track and field team is talking now—this country will have no walk-away and will win only after the stiffest sort of competition.

HAS EXPERIENCE
Robertson, or "Robbie," as he is known at the University of Pennsylvania, was head coach of the 1928 American team at Amsterdam and knows what he's talking about.

"Of course the fact that our men will perform under familiar conditions, climatic and otherwise will give them a distinct advantage," Robertson told the United Press. "Nevertheless, the 1928 games will require our full strength."

COMPETITION KEEN
"International competition, and particularly in the Olympic games is becoming more keen. No less than 57 nations will be represented at Los Angeles."

"It has taken the United States a long time," Robertson said, "to realize that the other nations are improving."

"It was quite a shock to us when Japan won three world events in 1925. Japan, by the way, underwent more expense in sending its team to Amsterdam than did the United States. That gives you some idea of how that nation has taken up international competition. What is true of Japan is true of a score of other countries. That is why we must not let over-confidence enter the picture."

INTEREST HIGH
"To give you some idea of the widespread interest in the games, listen to this:
"In the 1928 Olympics a French Moroccan was first in the marathon, second place went to a Chilean, third to a Finn, and the fourth to a Japanese. The American entry was fifth."

The noted coach expects Germany, which has come to the fore noticeably in athletics during recent years, to furnish plenty of trouble at Los Angeles. He looks for a well rounded team from that country and also from France and Great Britain.

Set Dates for Nineteen Big Trapshoot Meets

There will be three state tournaments in May, the Missouri at St. Louis, May 1 and 2; the Nebraska at Omaha, May 25 to 27, and the District of Columbia at Washington, D. C., May 22 and 23.

Jim Corbett and Stanley Ketchel 'Dark Horses' Of History of Prize Ring

NEW YORK, Feb. 12. (UP)—Looking back on boxing, long before it was the sport it is today, reveals a long list of fighters who really fought. Many of them could now be considered dark horses, but only two, Stanley Ketchel and Jim Corbett, stand out head and shoulders over the others because of the remarkable battles they performed in winning this recognition.

The first to be considered is Ketchel.

KETCHEL OUSTED

On Thanksgiving day, 1906, Billy Roche, fight referee, and Jim Riley, local promoter, were arranging a fight between Jim Gans and Kid Herman to be staged at Tozough, Nev., the following New Year's day. A waiter, Stanislaus Kischel, who called himself Stanley Ketchel, was suggested as one of the participants in a preliminary. Roche refused, saying he wanted fighters with reputations. The fight was staged without Ketchel appearing.

The scene shifts to Marysville, Calif., July 4, 1907. Joe Thomas, greatest middleweight of the time, was meeting Stanley Ketchel. The fight went 29 rounds to a draw. It was the beginning of Ketchel's rise to dark horse fame. No one was more surprised than Roche, the promoter who wouldn't put Stan on his card the year before.

RETURN BOUT

Roche immediately arranged a return bout which Ketchel won by a knock-out in the 32nd round. It was considered one of the classic bouts in history and Ketchel became one of boxing's "dark horses" by winning the championship.

He fought Thomas twice after winning both bouts, one by decision, the other by a knock-out in the second round.

Ketchel was shot and killed by a maniac at Conway, Mo., in 1910.

RIDERS OF BICYCLES GET MANY THRILLS

Not All Monotony on Six-Day Grind; Women Write Love Notes

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Feb. 12. (UP)—A glimpse today into the private lives of the 6-day bicycle riders participating in Chicago's 25th race at the Chicago stadium revealed that it isn't all monotony with them during the 144 hours of the event.

Romance, rivalry and rebellion blossom unseen to the thousands who watch the riders, in their multi-colored jerseys, whirl around and round the pine saucer.

IDOL OF WOMEN

"What do they do to keep from going crazy?" is the spectator's favorite question at a 6-day bike race.

"Well, there's plenty," says Harry Mendel, right-hand man of John Chapman, czar of 6-day bike racing in this country.

It doesn't make any difference how ugly or funny-looking a bike rider is, he is the idol of countless women, according to Mendel.

GET LOVE NOTES

Bobby Walthour, Jr., with his flaxen hair and aquamarine blue eyes, is the most popular of all 6-day bike riders, especially with the women and children. When the race ends Saturday night, Bobby Walthour will have received hundreds of love notes from his admirers, according to Mendel.

Bike-riders refer to their female admirers by numbers, and each one usually sits in the same seat.

"Well, I see my No. 8 is here tonight," one rider will whisper to another as they pedal around the oval. "How do you like her?"

EXPLAIN FEELING

"She's only fair," the other will reply a couple of laps later. "You ought to see my No. 3 up there in the mezzanine. I got a date all fixed up for Saturday night with her."

The strange attraction of 6-day bike riders for women is summed up by Carl Stockholm, former 6-day rider, as follows:

"It's less that attract the women just like the women's legs attract men. Did you ever see a group of men in a gym or a locker room and notice how ugly their legs are. Well, all 6-day riders have neat trim and well-muscled legs. A woman gets the same kick out of seeing them as a man does in going to a musical comedy."

Tinker Applies For Umpire Job

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12. (UP)—Joe Tinker, of the old Chicago Cubs ("Tinker to Evers to Chance" combination), has applied for an umpiring berth in the Pacific Coast league. It became known today.

Tinker was recommended to President Harry A. Williams by Connie Mack, manager of Philadelphia Athletics. Williams notified Tinker that the umpiring staff for 1931 already is complete.

PILES

Ended Without Cutting or Salves
Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves or cutting remove the cause.

Had circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonard was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1909 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonard's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Underwood's Pharmacy invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantee to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.

an old timer's SCRAP BOOK by Tim McBroth

I recently told a story to show how smart Tommy Ryan was in business affairs as well as in the boxing ring. Since then New York friends have asked me about the time McCoy put one over on him.

In his early fighting days McCoy was a drifter, fighting wherever he could get a match. In Syracuse he became the sparring partner of Tommy Ryan.

That fight is ring history, of course. Poor Ryan, trying to do a favor for a former sparring partner, found too late he had been tricked.

McCoy had carefully studied all of Ryan's methods while sparring with him but kept himself so "under wraps" that even the clever Ryan had been unaware of McCoy's ability. He jabbed poor Ryan to pieces and had an effective defense for all of Ryan's tactics.

A grinning Kid McCoy looked across at a beaten, tricked and humiliated Tommy Ryan as the Kid left the ring to collect the winner's 75 per cent of the purse. And to this day, McCoy—now Norman Selby—grins whenever anybody recalls the Ryan fight.

WHY LEARN?
Friend who has been admiring baby? Can he walk yet? Extremely Rich Mother: Not yet, but of course there will never be any real necessity for him to do much walking.—T-Bits.

Ryan agreed, providing the winner got 75 per cent of the purse. McCoy expressed great appreciation.

Ryan was a 4 to 1 favorite against the unknown and when the fans saw trail looking McCoy crawl into the ring the odds were greater. He looked as though a punch would murder him.

ASHLAND WILL PLAY KLAMATH HERE TONIGHT

High School Quintets Meet For Second Game Of This Season

By HOWARD CRAVEN
Klamath Krater Sports Editor

Seeking revenge for the defeat handed them by Ashland two weeks ago the Klamath Union high quintet will attempt to give the Normalites some of their own medicine when they meet tonight at the Klamath gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

The Pelicans have been showing more pep in practice recently than they have displayed before this season. Coach Dwight French is satisfied with the way his men are executing their five-man talking defense. The offensive is clicking to perfection, the coach says.

Howard Wakeman has been making difficult shots look easy. Captain Paul Swigart and Jack Crawford have shown great form lately. Crawford has recovered from a knee injury.

Coach Jack Bliss has three of the best cagers produced by Oregon high schools in Harry Gill, Ray Reeder and Jack Howell, Gill and Reeder, star forwards, have been running nates on the Ashland team for the last four years.

Howell, giant center, has an advantage in height on all centers in southern Oregon to aid him in getting the tip-off. On defense Center Ray Allen of Klamath stepped him in the previous game.

'Home' Stadium For Navy Idea Of Capt. Cooke

NEW YORK, Feb. 12. (UP)—Excitation for a navy "home" football stadium at Washington, D. C., was started today by Captain Henry D. Cooke, director of athletics at the United States Naval academy.

Cooke, expressing the sentiment of Naval academy officials, declared congress should give the midshipmen a stadium at Washington as part of the program to beautify the capital.

"Such a stadium would be an advantage both to the city of Washington and the naval contingent," Cooke told the United Press. "More than 500,000 persons see navy football teams play annually and with a suitable stadium the attendance would increase."

Navy's present home stadium is located at the academy in Annapolis. The seating capacity is less than 25,000 and the navy never has been allowed to charge admission for its home games, although the Military academy is allowed to charge for its home games at West Point.
