Kirkland's Son Involved In Accident At Ashland

(Special Correspondent)

WORDEN, May 26.—Friends of R. E. Kirkland, formerly of Bray's camp, regretted to hear of the automobile accident in Ashland, Monday night, when Mr. Kirkland's car, which was driven by his son, Joe, was struck by a Ford bus, resulting in the death of two ladies and injuries to other passengers. The Kirkland car, which was a large Nash, was completely demolished, while the Ford, while thrown some distance, was not damaged. One lady who lost her life was a passenger in the Ford, while the other woman was from a nearby rooming house, and died of shock. It is said that the large car had the right of way but the details brought out in the hearing have not yet been received.

R. E. Kirkland, who has taken a logging contract at Hornbrook, was a Worden visitor Wednesday morning.

Henry Gordon and Frank Cortland of Keno, were callers at the home of Gordon's parents Thursday evening.

Mr. Romtved of Ady has his farm work.

Mrs. Brambover and Mrs. Bailey were guests at the Gay home recently.

Mrs. Della Nichols is leaving with her mother, Mrs. Emily Wilson, for Albee, Ore., where Mrs. Wilson expects to remain. Mrs. Nichols will return to Worden.

Messrs. Walter and John Collins and sister, Pearl, drove to McCullum's mill Sunday. A number of Worden people attended the circus in Klamath Falls Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McCoy were guests at the teachers' Thursday evening.

Hartlett Nichols left Sunday for Swan Lake where he is employed by the Alamosa Lumber company.

Capt. Hawks Eats In Three Cities On Fast Flight

PARIS, May 27. (UP)—Capt. Frank M. Hawks, American flier who will receive the international league of aviators award, made another of his whirlwind flights over Europe today, leaving Le Bourget field this morning, eating breakfast in London, sitting down to luncheon in Berlin and returning to Paris for dinner.

Hawks began his flight from Le Bourget at 8:16 a. m. and returned to the same field at 6:07 p. m.

Landing at Crocyden field, near London at 9:30 a. m., the speed flier had coffee and toast before departing for Berlin. He sat down to a luncheon of beer and venison in the German capital and departed at 3:12 p. m. for Le Bourget.

In Paris, he decided that he was "ready for a good dinner" so he ate beefsteak, wild strawberries and all the trimmings. "I worked up a bigger appetite at every stop," Hawks said when he returned.

Again Hoffman bristled. "You are damned impertinent," he declared in self defense. "Don't forget, young fellow, that the Hoffmans have done a lot for you."

"Is that so?" Tommy retorted. "Well, just remember that my Aunt Emma wasn't a Hoffman until she married you. And she did a lot more for you than she did for me with money that wasn't Hoffman money, either."

His uncle got to his feet, red in the face. "If that's how you feel about it," he answered hotly, "I guess you won't want the job I've got for you, but don't come whining around me when you see what a fool you've been."

"I'll come whining around to you when I've got more good money to throw after him," Tommy told him.

His uncle strode out of the room, muttering something about ungrateful puppies.

Tommy grabbed his hat and left the house. He did not go directly to the Everett, but walked a few blocks out of his way to cool off before seeing Irene.

He couldn't cool off so he gave up that attempt and went to tell Irene his troubles. Irene was delighted — not delighted because Tommy had such bad luck, but because she'd found it out before making a decision between her two suitors.

"Oh, Tommy, that's too bad!" Irene said, and the way she said it was like a dash of cold water in his face. What came next was worse than he had feared. "Now we can't be engaged any longer!" "Engaged?" he repeated. "Say, Irene, we're going to be married in less than a week. You can't break this off like a mere engagement!"

"Don't be silly," Irene protested. "How could we go on with it? You can't support me now."

Tommy made a tremendous effort and swallowed his pride. "Once you said yourself that you could get a job and take care of yourself until I was out of college," he reminded her. "It would be just the same as it is now only—"

"Only that it's quite different," Irene substituted. "You're not going to college. Every thing has changed. There isn't anything to look forward to."

"There's love," Tommy maintained, though his hope was waning.

"But no cottage," she replied. "Give me time!" Tommy pleaded. "I'll make good."

"Of course you will," she said. "But we must wait for it, Tommy. And it wouldn't be fair to either of us to be engaged while we're waiting. You know it's not my fault that we aren't married. First you let Beryl step in and then your aunt died. I'm awfully sorry, Tommy, but I've given you every chance. It was your suggestion that we wait the second time we postponed our wedding day. I think it would be unwise a third time. We'd better break the engagement and start all over."

"I don't see how you can talk like that if you love me. I need you now, Irene. I need to be sure of you. I could try harder if you were my wife."

"That's selfish," Irene declared. "What would happen if you didn't—if you couldn't—make good? You've got to be honest, Tommy. You wouldn't try to sell anything you didn't know was good, would you? Of course you wouldn't," she answered herself. "Then how can you try to sell me a future that you're not sure of? Don't you see it isn't fair to me?"

Tommy had to admit the truth of her argument, forgetting that a moment before she had said she knew he would make good. Perhaps she was confused with the sudden drop of his fortune. Perhaps disappointment was licking him. Tommy had wanted with all the yearning and ardor of his whole heart to marry Irene. Life was just black despair now. He'd been happier than anyone knew over his aunt's death.

Work Progressing at Site Of New Crane Mill

ALYCE SHORE
Correspondent

BLY, May 26.—Guy Miller arrived Wednesday evening from Bremerton, Wash., for a visit with his sister, Mrs. Ross McMillan.

Work is progressing nicely on the pond for the Crane sawmill and it is expected that work on the mill itself will begin in the near future. The town is beginning to fill with families who will be connected with the new enterprise and most available houses have already been rented.

Mrs. Marvin Cross and Mrs. Dally Givan and their children drove over from Merrill last week. Mrs. Givan expects to make her home here from now on.

Charles Dow and T. W. Hobwood, timber fallers for Clark and Roberts, had a narrow escape Wednesday afternoon when they collided, running from under a falling tree, and both fell directly into it. Hobwood suffered superficial bruises but neither was seriously hurt.

Miss Marjorie Dixon was a guest of her sister, Miss Joan Dixon at Lakeview last week.

He said, dispiritedly: "I guess you're right."

"But you won't forget me, will you?" Irene asked him with a wistfulness that went no deeper than her words.

Tommy did not answer.

"Kiss me, will you, Tommy?" Irene coaxed.

Tommy obliged, somewhat fiercely. It was all he could do to keep from crying as he held her in his arms.

Irene was thinking: "Now I can go with Freddie to the studio tomorrow night!"

ROASTING CONTROL IS FLAVOR SECRET OF RARE COFFEE

Scientific Control Gives Hills Bros. Coffee the Flavor of Flavors

Invariably foods cooked in small quantities taste the best. The cook is able to control every step—perfectly—mixing, flavoring and cooking.

The principle of Hills Bros.' patented, continuous roasting process is based on the same idea. Instead of roasting their exclusive blend of coffee in bulk, measured quantities of about three pounds pass continuously through the roasters. The heat and speed of operation are accurately controlled with the result that Hills Bros. Coffee is absolutely uniform.

No other coffee can have the same delicious, uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee because no other coffee is roasted the same way. This process—Controlled Roasting—was originated and patented by Hills Bros.

The vacuum can in which Hills Bros. Coffee is packed keeps it fresh always. By the vacuum packing process, air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken out of the can and kept out. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, will not keep coffee fresh. Grocers everywhere sell Hills Bros. Coffee. Ask for it by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.

SEASONED WITH sugar

The combination of sugar and salt improves the flavor of vegetables in a most pleasing way. It emphasizes the mild taste of spinach; mellows the tartness of tomatoes; blends deliciously with the flavor of peas, carrots, string beans, cabbage, asparagus, onions and other vegetables.

In serving raw vegetables in salads, add at least as much sugar as salt to the French dressing. The smooth, zestful result will delight you.

"A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt" is also a fine seasoning for meat dishes, or soups and stews composed of meat and vegetables. Flavor and season with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

both of Portland, Ore., were married today in the suite of the groom's aunt, Miss Mary F. Felling, at the Hotel St. Regis. The ceremony, attended by a few friends of the couple, was performed by the Rev. Edward J. Manning, of the church of the Savior, Unitarian, Brooklyn.

Cabell is a son of the late Col. Henry C. Cabell, U. S. A., of Portland and Richmond, Va. His mother was Emily Felling Cabell, daughter of the late Henry Felling, Portland banker.

Mrs. Cartwright was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan J. Malarkey of Portland.

The couple will sail shortly via the Panama Canal for Portland.
