

BEND READY FOR BIG CELEBRATION

BEND, Ore.—A water carnival, baseball games, rodeos, boat races and woodsmen contests will be high lights of an All-Central Oregon Independence day celebration to be held in Bend on July 3 and 4, according to information from B. A. Stover, general chairman of a Fourth of July committee which includes practically every business and professional man in this city. More than $2500 in prizes will be awarded entrants in the various contests. The rodeo and horse races will be held on Bend's new race course, acclaimed one of the fastest in the eastern part of the state.

The two days of fun will end on the evening of July 4, in picturesque Drake park, on the banks of the Deschutes river, within the city limits of Bend. The water carnival will be held in Bend's mirror pond and a woodsmen's contest, including a tug-of-war between husky lumberjacks of the Shevlin-Hixon and Brooks-Scanlon camps, will be in Drake park, after the final rodeo program of July 4. William Baer has been named chairman of the committee in charge of the woodsmen's contests and Walter G. Peak is making arrangements for the water sports, boat races and a river regatta.

After the evening contests, when dusk gathers there will be a display of fireworks. If present plans materialize, the rockets, red flares, tracer shells and vari-colored candles will be discharged over the Deschutes river, across the mirror pond.

Preceding the two-day celebration, on the afternoon of July 2, a Portland baseball team of the Oregon State league will meet the Bend Nikes. The rodeo and races will be open to all entrants.

Klamath Men to Eat Klamath Spuds

When the members of battery D, 249th Coast Artillery, leave Klamath Falls Monday for their annual encampment, they will be assured of having good potatoes for their mess during their stay in camp. Arrangements were made by company officers for sufficient Klamath potatoes to take care of the wants of their company.

Captain Van Vactor maintains that it is necessary to have Klamath Koted Gems in order to keep them in a proper frame of mind and in good physical condition. Men of the battery demand that Klamath potatoes be used.

Considerable difficulty is experienced with other outfits who attempt to trade the Klamath potatoes out of their Klamath Koted Gems. In addition this year, a small quantity of potatoes is being furnished by the Klamath Potato Growers' association for distribution to the officers' mess of the various other outfits in order that they may become acquainted with potatoes of the highest quality.

Tusko, Giant Pachyderm, Dies

Seattle's Star Boarder Gone

SEATTLE, June 10, (AP)—Tusko, the largest elephant in captivity, died today at the Woodland Park zoo after being ill during the night. He was 42 years old, weighed 7 tons, 213 pounds, was 10 feet 2 inches tall and 18 feet 11 inches from rump to end of his trunk.

Ill on Friday

Dr. Gust Knudsen, keeper of the zoo, said he did not know what caused Tusko's death, but he first showed signs of illness Thursday afternoon, when one leg became slightly stiff.

Yesterday afternoon he became more seriously ill, and lay on his side in the elephant yard. He had a temperature of 103 at midnight, but the keeper said he showed but little outward sign of illness.

Old Stories Revived

SALEM, June 10, (AP)—The death today at Seattle of Tusko, erstwhile Al G. Barnes circus elephant, stirred memories of the giant pachyderm's stay in Salem as a "star boarder."

A news-maker wherever he went, Tusko was displayed at the state fair here two years ago—shortly after ending his circus career. When other paraphernalia of the fair was moved, Tusko remained. His feed and care became a problem.

Then, too, there was always the threat, fanned by newspaper talk, that the huge elephant might go on a rampage, as he reportedly had done before. The only actual fuse he made here, said a member of the fair board, was while being loaded for removal to Portland after he had been here six months. He subsequently was moved to Centralia, Wash., and then to Seattle.

Mt. McLoughlin Lookout To Ascend Peak July 1

ROCK CREEK, Ore.—James Radcliff, Medford, has been appointed as lookout on Mt. McLoughlin and will take up his duties about July 1, according to an announcement made recently by Norman C. White, Medford, assistant forest supervisor.

Mr. McLoughlin, with an elevation of 9433 feet is situated in the Dead Indian district of the Rogue River national forest on the west side of the Klamath district and is the highest peak in southern Oregon.

The lookout position was first occupied in 1918. White stated, when a glass r'ed lumber house 12x12 feet, topped by a cupola 6x6 feet was erected. All material for the building was trucked in from Medford via Klamath Falls and the final part of the journey over the treacherous 12-mile trail to the summit was completed on foot by the government packer, DeWright. No piece of timber for the entire building was over eight feet in length.

In 1926 terrific storms and tons of ice so weakened the structure that it was necessary to replace the building. Continuous action of the elements had undermined the cliff on the northeast side of the peak on which the house rested. The new house, slightly larger, rests on a cement and stone foundation three feet thick at the base and 14 feet in height. Long steel rods buried in the foundation serve as braces and steel cables keep the house rigid against storms. Twenty-three windows circle the building and the latest lightning protectors have been installed.

For three months Radcliff will not leave his post. From 6:30 a. m. until that hour in the evening he will check over his territory every 12 minutes. His mail and supplies will be delivered twice a month by the district ranger or a packer.

'OLD BLADE' HAS GUILD PLAY ROLE

Creese, or krls, the serpentine blade in the sash of the captain in the pirate scene of "Captain Applejack" is a genuine pirate's weapon.

In the year of 1810, it was carried by a Moro Yatu as he and his crew of Moro pirates made numerous raids on all peering boats sailing the Celebes sea in the East India archipelago, from the southern end of Mindano to the Philippine islands, and the group of numerous islands south to Borneo and Celebes. They even sailed north to the island of Cebu, several days sail from Mindano, on slave raiding expeditions. It has only been within the last few years that these pirates were driven from the sea. Yato Binang, the original owner of this wicked weapon, was killed by members of the Philippine scouts and his whole crew put to death on the island of Palawan in the Philippine group.

This blade was loaned by C. W. Lyons, who picked it up during his residence in the Far East, and will be used by the guild in its production of "Captain Applejack" in the high school auditorium on the evening of June 13, 1933.

that Schelzfelt had been warned recently by business rivals that a "bitter fight" was in the offing to determine which would stay in business the longest.

More Deaths Feared

While authorities pressed their investigation, the possibility of increased death toll was recognized. Three victims in St. Michael's hospital, Newark, were reported in a very grave condition. In the West Hudson hospital were three more injured, conceded only slight chances of recovery.

Firemen began a renewed search at dawn, fearing more bodies would be found in the burned houses or in the Passaic river, where bathers fled to escape the flames. At least three of the dead are children.

The heat had brought scores of bathers to a small bathing beach near the plant. As darkness descended, men, women and children lingered, splashing in the water.

Bathers Injured

Suddenly—an eye witness, John Jackson, said—there was a roar and flames shot upward 200 feet burning debris and flaming celluloid fell in showers. New sheets of fire shot outward. Shrieks of people in houses nearby were echoed by the screams of bathers as the flames struck them.

Scorched or severely burned, their bathing suits aflame, many of them plunged toward the river as a second explosion shattered the night. It was the blast of a gasoline tank spattering fire anew, enveloping a garage and a parked car.

Several women, already badly burned by blazing clothing, were seen to dart into the water. Mrs. Margaret La Tone was seen trying to swim the river. A flaming chunk of wood hit her. She sank and was drowned, police said.

Scene Horrible

Firemen, arriving from seven towns, found a scene of horror. In the light of the flames screaming women ran up and down the beach, seeking lost children. Dying and injured were moaning. Police Captain Neil Barrett sent men to stores to requisition all the salves, ointments and first-aid kits they could find. Two dozen people were sent to hospitals, while more than 40 others received first aid on the spot.

No estimate of the damage was given, but it was believed to be more than $100,000. Police expressed the opinion spontaneous combustion may have caused the explosions.

W. U. REASSURED BY SCHOOL HEADS

PORTLAND, June 10, (UP)—A delegation of citizens from Salem, apprehensive that Willamette university would lose the annual state high school basketball tournament to University of Oregon and Oregon State college on alternate years, was partially reassured today by officials of the Prep association.

Paul T. Kackson of Klamath Falls, president, and John L. Gray of West Linn, secretary, told the Salem residents that the state association had as yet done nothing about accepting bids for the tournaments authorized by the state board of higher education for the university and state college.

Jackson said Salem's bid would be given "every consideration" and that a change had been considered only as an "inquiry into the feasibility of holding a larger tournament that would perhaps allow wider participation by smaller schools."

CASCADE

CASCADE SUMMIT, Ore.—Several good catches of fish have been made in Lake Odell in the past week. Wm. Pederson, Southern Pacific section foreman, here, was successful in catching eight good sized fish Sunday. Gold Lake is still frozen over. A layer of snow three to five feet still covers the ground between Cascade Summit and Gold Lake, making the trail almost impassable without snowshoes. It will probably be the latter part of the month before sportsmen will be able to fish in the lake.

J. W. Stump, Southern Pacific employe here, left for the E. P. hospital in San Francisco where he will receive treatment for a heart ailment.

Mrs. Neils Miller and son Neil spent several days last week visiting Mrs. Miller's mother near Chitwood.

Word has been received from Raymond Porter that he has arrived at New Orleans where he is enjoying himself immensely.
