

POTATOES BOUGHT FOR RELIEF WORK

The potato purchasing committee, appointed last fall by the governor's relief committee to purchase potatoes for local relief needs and for exchanging with other neighboring counties, completed purchase of this commodity on June 1.

During the year a total of 9784 sacks of potatoes was delivered by this committee to the community amount, 308 sacks were U. S. No. 1, 1219 sacks were U. S. No. 2, and 302 sacks were poorer than the No. 2 grade. Total cost to the governor's relief committee was $2381.49. This money was paid direct to 20 different growers in the Klamath basin from whom potatoes were purchased. A total of 673 sacks were donated by growers, the largest contribution being from C. V. Barton, Merrill, who donated throughout the year 354 sacks. Henry Semon of Henry donated 12 sacks and 12 sacks were received from unknown sources.

Additional donations were received from local companies in assisting in this work. Storage space was donated by the People's warehouse. C. V. Barton and Grafton Jackson company. The Sateway stores donated approximately 3,000 sacks, and Martin Bros. Milling company donated twine and a large number of sacks. E. J. Kerus donated a quantity of sacks; Swan Lake Moulding company and Big Basin Lumber company donated trucks during an emergency in order to put purchased potatoes into storage without freezing. Other merchants and individuals donated services and supplies in minor quantities.

The purchasing committee consisted of Henry Semon, Alfred Collier and C. A. Henderson. This committee estimated October 1, 1932, that 10,000 sacks of potatoes would be required to take care of local needs and exchanges with other districts.

Between 55 and 60 per cent of the 8.74 sacks secured were exchanged with neighboring counties, particularly Jackson, Josephine and Douglas, for such relief supplies as dried fruits, vegetables and apples. Potatoes served as the major medium of exchange with other relief organizations.

resented by 2,500 head of animals to each man employed, the herder must usually be working by himself without human companionship, must be constantly alert every hour of the 24 during the day and particularly at night time when predatory animals may attack the flock," the letter stated.

Living conditions of the camp life, usually with poor water and unsanitary food conditions, were described, and a scale of wages paid for the past three years.

The association reported that the wage in 1926 was $100; in 1931, $75; and in 1932 up to June, $80; from June to the present time the wage has varied from $40 to as high as $60 in some instances.

A wage of $40 per month is being demanded by the herders at the present time, fair, they declare, because of the up-trend in wool and sheep prices.

AMUSEMENTS

VOX—Now playing, "Trailing the Killer" and "Fighting for Justice."

PELICAN—Now playing, Tala Birell in "Nagana."

PINE TREE—Now playing, Jack Natterford in "The Spirit of the West."

VOX

Only five human actors are seen in World Wide's sensational animal picture, "Trailing the Killer."

"Trailing the Killer" was directed by Herman C. Raymaker from a story by Jackson Richards. It is a B. F. Zeldman production, released by World Wide Pictures.

The second feature, "Fighting for Justice," the Columbia action thriller starring Tim McCoy, was directed by Otto Brower, who brought Zane Grey's "Fighting Caravans," "The Border Legion" and "The Light of Western Stars" to the screen. Joyce Compton has the featured feminine role in the production. Other prominent in the supporting cast are Robert Fraser, William V. Mong, Hooper Atcheley and Harry Cording.

PELICAN

The debut of the glamorous Tala Birell can be recorded as nothing less than a personal triumph for this exotic actress.

Miss Birell comes to the screen of the Pelican theatre today in the Universal drama, "Nagana," and lives up to all the complimentary expressions we have heard regarding her beauty, her ability, and a certain strange her apart from other motion picture players. Melvyn Douglas, in the leading male role, is unusually good in his part, as is also Onslow Stevens, whose brief role is one which remains in the memory.

"Nagana" is a vibrant thrilling love romance with a background of the Dark Continent as presenting the picturesque in few pictures have done. No picture ever made, we think, has presented more thrilling wild animal sequences, and when a hundred ferocious beasts, including lions, leopards and panthers, are confined in a single film laboratory erected in a native village, there follow hair-raising scenes which must be seen to be appreciated.

"Nagana" is a veritable classic. If you enjoy thrills and breathless suspense, do not fail to see it.

PINE TREE

Jack Natterford's new idea of a Western, "The Spirit of the West," opened last night at the Pine Tree theatre. It is an entertainment par excellence.

Hoot Gibson, assisted by Doris Hill, is revealed in a real hill drama. Hoot finds himself in one of the most perplexing situations that could ever face a hero.

It would spoil the story to tell you just what it is, but you may take our word for it, the author, Jack Natterford, doesn't ask Hoot to go through the old-fashioned theatrics of winning hands, down by holding an entire army of crooks at bay.

Weed Road Route To Be Discussed At Highway Meet

modifications on each are being considered by the highway engineer. The road from the Oregon-California state line to Midland will remain the same, he declared.

Baldock asked the county court at the afternoon meeting if the Klamath allocation was desired to be expended entirely on the Weed road or distributed over other improvement projects. The court unanimously recommended the entire amount be used on the Weed highway.

The court declared it would make no recommendation as to the location of the route but would abide by the decision of the state highway department.

The East Klamath delegation asked that a hearing be held on the location of the route before the election is made. Baldock gave assurance that a hearing would be held with the commission next Wednesday if representatives appeared at the Portland meeting.

He declared the allocation of funds for highway work over the state would be made at the meeting and a route must be selected before the allocation could be made.

Truck Owners to Meet Here Today

A meeting of the Klamath Falls Oregon Truck Owners and Farmers' Protective association, organized to fight against the 1933 truck and bus law, will be held at the Willard hotel Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The organization contends the law is discriminatory in some respects and gives special consideration in others. An attorney for the association received instructions this week to file a suit to enjoin the state from enforcing part of the provisions of the new law, according to information from the association.

City Is Cool While Easterners Sizzle

While eastern and middle western states sweltered in the clutches of an unbroken heat wave, Klamath Falls residents shivered, wore their coats and put bathing suits back in the mothballs.

The barometer cannot make up its mind just what to do about the official opening of summer, but the pressure continues low, signifying cloudiness, moderate temperature and generally fair weather.

The maximum point registered Thursday was 74 degrees, and the minimum 59.

Mayor May Veto Beer Amendment was opposed to the return of any semblance of saloon.

The question has been one of the main issues at the last two council meetings since a petition signed by all pool and card room operators of the city requested the amendment.

The city charter provides the mayor may veto a measure. A vote from four of the five councilmen is necessary to override his veto.

The veto has been used in the city administration but little. Records may show that Mahoney may be the first to use it at the meeting Monday evening.

Mahoney gave the following statement Thursday.

"I have always been opposed to the sale of beer in pool and card rooms or the return of any semblance of the old saloon days. I believe the majority of county and city citizens feel the same. With this in mind I believe I would be doing the community a justice in attempting to prevent the sale of beer in pool and card rooms; however, I will reserve my decision until the amendment is presented or passed Monday."

ican viewpoint on stabilization, for the moment, although not in a cordial spirit. France has demanded stabilization from the start as a pre-requisite to tariff accords, and the British are not eager to see the dollar approach the old parity level of $4.86.

Following this victory for Washington's policy, it was believed tonight that the economic conference would proceed now to concentrate on the arduous task of price raising, "easy" money and a public works program, passing up stabilization for the moment. That is exactly what President Roosevelt, with a price raising program at home, has been urging.

Evans said the feed would be made available only for animals such as dairy cattle and work animals, and not for beef cattle. He said the chief concern was over possible conditions in the event the drought continued for another week or ten days, rather than the immediate situation.
