Pussyfoot Gives Up
PUSSEYFOOT JOHNSON, who has been campaigning against liquor for probably two score years, has gone back to his home in New York state, disillusioned about the great north-west and ready to admit with wet leaders that the country is going to bring back booze.
 "We are in for a five years' drunk," he told newsmen back home. But listen to what he said about the northwest states, where he wound up a nationwide speaking tour:
 "Most of the northwestern states are wallowing in the same old beer that used to put us under the table in the old days. I made about 200 dry speeches in the far northwestern states but did no particular good. The more speeches I made the wetter the country became so I decided to beat it home while the going was good. This effort of making people good has its drawbacks. The devil often gets the best of it. Sometimes I feel like an old yard engine, rattling around with poor coal and no grease."
 One thing about this man Pussyfoot. He knows when he's licked. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist board of temperance is still counting off the states he claims will go dry. Pussyfoot got tired counting. He roamed around the country and couldn't find the dry states. He sees the "handwriting on the wall." And when a dry leader like Johnson says we're in for a wet time of it—you can just about bet we are.
 But Pussyfoot wasn't very nice about the northwest states. How does he know we're so wet? Somebody must have told him. For he came through Oregon and made his dry speeches inside of churches—where it's supposed to be dry anyhow—and you can't see much booze from the inside of a church or a dry leader's hotel room.
 Pussyfoot should have mixed around with the people a little more. He should have held his meetings in public halls—dance halls, armories or anywhere. You can't get the people he was after into a church to hear a dry campaigner. His press agents should have built up the colorful part of his past, referred to the days when he used to flash six-guns on bartenders and smash up beer kegs with an axe and they could have packed in crowds wherever he went—and the old gentleman might have gone east actually believing the country out here was dry as a bone. With a build-up like that Mack Lillard wouldn't have dared put on a wrestling match the same day he was in town.

 The northwest isn't dripping. It will go wet, of course, but the country around Passyfoot's home is probably as wet as Oregon. And there are sections of the country very much wetter.
 From Passyfoot's statement you'd think the devil had a summer home in Klamath Falls. Are we so bad?

'Smatter, Red?
COLONEL McClelland Barclay, who draws those pretty ladies on the magazine covers, has just been divorced from Helene Marie Haskin because of the difference in their ideas about beautiful women.
 Or was that the real reason for the split-up? Barclay's red-haired wife declared he was cruel—that is, he refused to look at a Christmas tree she had decorated for their home. That is cruel, isn't it?
 Now here's Barclay's idea of a perfectly beautiful woman: gait of Kay Francis; Mariene Dietrich's legs; Wynne Gibson's knees; Marion Hopkins' chest and shoulders; Carole Lombard's hips; Sylvia Sydney's hands; Mae West's teeth (got 'em with yuh, Mae); Helen Twelvetrees lips, and Elissa Landi's carriage (12 cylinder!).
 Wow! He doesn't want much, does he? The girl we love doesn't have all those things. That is, not QUITE all. But she's nice, and charming—after all, maybe Barclay wants too much. Few girls come up to his standard. But here's a word to his wife—and she'll probably never read it—"Go get him. Red! If he wants so darn much, maybe he'll find it in several wives. Go nick him for a thousand a month alimony like Nan, his first, did! If he wants all those things he ought to be willing to pay for them!"

Directors Should Direct
 It is interesting to read that the New York supreme court has ruled that corporate directors who neglect their duties can be held liable if their corporation goes on the rocks.
 This ruling came in a $100,000,000 accounting suit brought against eight directors of the bankrupt International Match Co., which collapsed after the suicide of its guiding genius, Ivar Kreuger. The suit asked that the directors render an accounting of their official acts and be compelled to pay the amounts lost through their negligence.
 Directors, the court holds, must direct. If they are content to serve as figureheads, rubber-stamping the acts of corporation officials, they cannot escape responsibility. And a nation which has seen a number of firms go to the wall because their directors didn't take their duties seriously is apt to applaud this decision whole-heartedly.

Lindbergh and Dirigibles
 WHEN considering the future of the United States navy's work with dirigibles, it is instructive to consider testimony recently given before the congressional investigating committee by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.
 "I feel," said Colonel Lindbergh, "that it would be unwise and unsafe to stop development of lighter-than-air craft at this time."
 "Both lighter-than-air and heavier-than-air craft are inherently incomplete and young, and I do not think that this generation, or the next two generations, can say that either is impractical."
 "To stop today in development in lighter-than-air, in view of the lives lost and the money spent, to my mind would be a grave mistake. I believe that lighter-than-air craft has a definite place in the future of aviation."
 These words, coming from a veteran pilot who knows aviation as well as any man alive and who has no reason to be prejudiced about it, are worth remembering.

Telling the Editor
 KLAMATH FALLS—(To the Editor)—Will you permit me to invite the taxpayers of Klamath county to pay a visit to the county infirmary on Sunday, July 15th, through your paper.
 I have just finished my third month as manager of the institution, and in that time there has only been one or two taxpayers there to look the property over. I would like to have them all come out and see the work we are doing, and familiarize themselves with just what they are paying for.
 Figures on all costs will be available, and I invite the suggestions of all interested in improvements in the institution and service we are giving. If the people will take an interest in this and other functions of local government and instruct their employes, after familiarizing themselves, they can only work towards more ideal government and lower taxes.
 I feel confident that by the first of the year I can show approximately a 35 to 40 per cent reduction in the cost of the place, and at the same time will guarantee to improve the property and service.
 You are a taxpayer, and, may I ask, have you ever visited this institution? If the answer is no, I can safely say that 95 per cent of the people in Klamath county are in the same class. You are paying to maintain this place, so come out and let me hear your suggestions.

 Thanking you in advance for extending this invitation to the people of Klamath county, I beg to remain,
 Respectfully yours,
 A. G. MORRISON.

The Trojan Crew
 UNIVERSITY of Southern California is going to take up crew racing. In the big regatta the other day which the Washington Huskies won from Yale, Harvard and Cornell the Trojans were sadly out of the picture. And the setting for the picture was southern California.

Students Given Legion Awards

LAKEVIEW, Ore.—The American Legion school awards this year for the outstanding eighth grade girl and boy of Lake county will go to Cleda Stephens of the Thomas Creek district and John Pochols of Paisley, according to Mrs. Hazel Murphy, county school superintendent.
 The selections are made each year on an equal basis of the five points of honor, courage, scholarship, leadership, and service. These awards are given to encourage grade school pupils to develop both scholarship and character.
 The committee who made the first decision included Hank Casidy, city school grade principal, Carl Pendleton, county clerk, and Mrs. Hazel Murphy, county school superintendent.

Lakeview 20-30 Installs Officers

LAKEVIEW, Ore.—About 30 couples enjoyed the Lakeview 20-30 club installation and dance last Friday evening which was held in the newly decorated banquet room of the Lakeview hotel.
 Ed Calderwood was installed as president; Merton Stein as vice president; Zeno Dent, secretary-treasurer; V. W. Johnson, sergeant-at-arms; and Chester Edgerton, James Grieve, Harry Lambert and Virgil Paxton, directors.
 The speaker of the evening was Frank Jenkins, editor of the Klamath News and Herald of Klamath Falls. Mr. Jenkins gave an inspiring address which was appreciated.

GEOLOGISTS VIEW INDIAN WRITINGS

LAKEVIEW, Ore.—As a result of an invitation extended to them by the Lake county chamber of commerce, Dr. L. S. Crossman, University of Oregon geologist, with Dr. Warren D. Smith, University of Oregon geologist, and Dr. H. D. Sheldon, dean of the university school of education, all of Eugene, and guided by Marial Jacobs, government interpreter, spent considerable time this past week in Warner valley studying Indian writings. Heretofore it has been thought that all of the writings were petroglyphs, or carvings; however, this recent study revealed several pictographs or paintings.
 Many of the writings had been obliterated by centuries of weathering, although writings were found along sheltered slopes and cliffs.
 Dr. Crossman believes the discovery to be very important and may be a means of tracing the migration of tribes and be invaluable in charting immigration trails of ancient man.

PROOF THAT NEW FACE POWDER WON'T MAKE BLOTCHES
 Many face powders are made out of cosmetics which clog the oil in the pores of your face and cause pimples to break out.
 Preparation comes out through the opening of your pores and the oil along with it. Every pore which is giving out oil is darkening the powder around the opening of the pore. This you have dark spots around the pores and white spots between them, making an ugly, blotchy face of blotches, especially on the nose.
 The new Mello-glo Face Powder contains none of these inferior cosmetics which are so rarely darker than the oil in your preparation. Prove it for yourself. Powder one side of your nose with another powder. Powder the other side with the new Mello-glo. In five minutes, let your mirror give you the answer.
 We challenge the world to produce a finer and more luminous face powder than the new Mello-glo. The new Mello-glo formula is the formula used by the most exclusive cosmetics in New York and Paris.
 You don't buy face powder to make your face look dabby and blotchy. Therefore, do not waste money on powders that you are not sure of. Ask for Mello-glo Face Powder by name. Look for the name Mello-glo Face Powder on the gold box. Before the unfair offer of "something just as good," which may blotch your face. Ask for Mello-glo by name and get it. 50c and $1. Tax free.

Jaywalking Will Be Stopped Here

A city ordinance prohibiting jay-walking and crossing streets at intersections will be strictly enforced by the city police department, according to a recent announcement from Chief of Police J. R. Shaw.
 A city ordinance prohibiting the following of fire trucks and forbidding individuals or automobiles to gather nearer than 500 yards from the scene of a fire, will also be rigidly enforced, the chief declared.

 All motorists must give right of way when police or fire department sirens are sounded, the chief also stated.
 In nearly every successful campaign against the Indians, the whites had friendly Indians as guides and scouts, or the red-men were too clever for them otherwise.

 Milo C. Ayer, Berkeley, Calif.
 "Always used a premium gasoline until Super Shell came on the market and saved me that three cents a gallon. It has all the anti-knock protection my Cadillac '12' needs."
 John Hamrick, Portland, Ore.
Now Super SHELL is capturing the West!
 Made on the Pacific Coast... Sold without 3¢ premium at Shell Service Inc. stations and by Shell dealers.
 Tens of thousands in Chicago switched to this gasoline the first week! It's the same story here—everywhere—people are saying, "Man, have you tried Super Shell!"
 From Super Shell you get the kind of premium performance you once paid 3¢ extra for. The same extra mileage! The get-away; the great reserves of smooth, quiet power!
 Super refining—that's the reason for it. By Shell's exclusive new processes, the wasteful parts in ordinary gasoline are entirely removed. Super Shell gives extra mileage, extra power. And it is higher in anti-knock value than any other non-premium gasoline.
 This new golden-colored Super Shell is the West's own improvement over the famous Super Shell the East paid more than 8 million extra dollars for. Now this new Super Shell—at the price of regular gasoline—is an overwhelming success everywhere.
