The Busiest Points of Road Travel.

THE highway department of Oregon knows exactly where its money should be spent to accommodate sections where there is the greatest abundance of traffic. Often, in the long and laborious years of constructing the state highway system, funds have been designated for no purpose but political. But that was years ago; facts, not politics, rule the construction program today.

The heaviest traffic on the long stretch of the Dalles-California highway was checked in Klamath county at the Midland junction. Over a 14-hour period 5,999 cars were counted. That, of course, included the normal traffic in and out of Klamath Falls, but it also included a vast amount of tourist business.

The 19th Anniversary of the War.

THE memory and effects of war die slowly, and Friday, the nineteenth anniversary of the declaration, the World War, officially dead these many years, still raises the politics and economies of the nations. The stupendous cost of conflict can never be estimated in cold dollars and cents.

Something of the old-time personal and national vigor of 1917 has stayed with the people. Today they struggle with a less tangible enemy—depression—but with as much earnestness and enthusiasm as they did against open war.

Confidence and action have replaced the feeling of discouragement through the last few years. Things are moving slowly, but quite certainly; there have been but a few incidents of too much haste in seeking adjustments.

Our Dangerous Kitchens

THE kitchen doesn't ordinarily seem like a dangerous place—except, perhaps, when a truly expert cook starts connecting indigestible dishes for defenseless diners. But figures released by the National Safety Council show that a huge number of fatal accidents take place in American kitchens every year.

The highway, of course, is the scene of more fatal accidents than any other spot. But there were 28,000 deaths last year from accidents which took place in the home, and fully 34 per cent of these occurred in kitchens.

Falls and scalds seem to be the most prolific sources of home accidents. And while it is a bit difficult to see just how a safety code can be devised and enforced for the home, a little care and forethought in the midst of the

The Inside Story From The Capital

Leadership

WASHINGTON, July 28—President Roosevelt is boss here. Make no mistake about that. Some of the big men in his administration have made mistakes about it from time to time. Occasionally they surge up front alongside the general or ahead of him.

Differences

That may explain one phase of what happened recently in the Moley case. The No. 1 brain trustee was not pushing himself. He always sat on the right presidential knee anyway. But certain complications arose which involved him in bad publicity.

Underlying these superficialities was the basic fact that when two men are as close together as President Roosevelt and Prof. Moley, neither can easily resign such a friendship.

An Ambition Realized

IT IS not hard to feel a bit of smothering sympathy for that 17-year-old boy in Milford, Conn., who stole a railway locomotive the other day and set out to go to the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago.

Of course, the lad didn't get there. Not being used to engines, he slammed his into a string of box cars before he had gone more than a mile or two, causing $18,000 damage and winning for him self a jail sentence of 30 days and a $50 fine.

Woodin

Once Mr. Roosevelt put his faith in a man it is not easily disturbed by more important things than expense accounts and airplanes. What happened inside on the Woodin case shows that. The president has remained loyal to his treasury secretary privately and publicly. If he cared anything about the senate disclosure showing Mr. Woodin on the Nor-

Hardihood

This man you see standing next to Mr. Roosevelt in pictures is quite a person. He is Gus Genrich, a former New York policeman, who assists the president. At Hyde Park he eats with the family, romps with the grandchildren.

Deflation

Wise ones would have you believe the administration has put a banana peel under Huey Long. They whisper that federal patronage in Louisiana now is in charge of Congressman Sandlin, with whom Long is NOT close.

The administration grapevine from the Philippines is bringing bad news. The anti-independence bill crowd there is in the saddle. Unless something is done soon the independence government will be side-tracked.

No date has been set for a referendum. Speaker Manuel Roxas, (friend of the bill) has been ousted. President Quezon of the senate is riding a high opposition horse.

Prince of Wales' airplane was forced down the other day by fog, but dispatches fail to state if it was that arising from London economic conference.

Earlier Days

From Files of The Republican July 28, 1909. The interest that is being aroused in the location of the new schoolhouse presages an attendance at the election that will be a record breaker.

state by the Star Drug company of Klamath Falls is the first step taken towards the establishment in this city of a wholesale drug store.

A petition calling for a special election to vote on the extension of the city limits was placed in circulation Saturday.

Two heasts on one shot. SUNNYVALE, Calif.—Arnold Marty, out in the hills with his gun, saw an 80-pound mountain lion kill a fine large doe. So he killed the cat which had violated the closed season on deer and got ventoseon legally.
