Society of the Week

Organization Honors President On Tuesday.

A most delightful occasion was the W. C. T. U. party on last Tuesday afternoon, honoring Mrs. Frances E. Boyd, who for many years has been president of that organization. The ladies met at Mrs. Boyd's home, 1022 McKinley street, at one thirty o'clock and after routine business of the organization was finished the chair was taken by Mrs. Boyd, who announced to Mrs. Boyd that the ladies were honoring her. Mrs. Boyd then read a poem written by her for the occasion, entitled "Mrs. Boyd."

God has given you fruitful years, Days of joy, days of tears; Wealth you cannot estimate, Not in bonds and real estate, But in courage and true to do the tasks he has for you. You always hear the master's plea As he views the world it's every need. You have lifted many a heavy load— Showed the traveler a better road. You hush the crying in the street, By being kind to those you meet. Yet God will not reward you, for success— Only because you have done your best. Faithfulness over small things Gives you heritage with the King. For encouragement we come today. With words the master once did say: "Be thou faithful unto death and receive a crown of righteousness."

Mrs. Ida Grimes, the chaplain, read Proverbs 31, beginning at verse 10: "Who can find a virtuous woman? For her price is far above rubies." Then the chaplain, on behalf of the Union, presented Mrs. Boyd with a book of poems, "God Bless You," and took that opportunity to express to her their appreciation of her untiring labor in the work here and her courageous effort made in the recent campaign. Mrs. Boyd responded with thanks for the gift and kind words. About this time a huge ice cream cake arrived from the

Ford Motor Company

We do not sell "Talking Points."

Henry Ford

Dearborn, Mich.

When customers write in, as many are doing these days, stating that they have found the Ford V-8 better than we said it was, that is how we prefer it to be.

I say this for the benefit of a Ford dealer who chides me for not claiming all that might be claimed in favor of our car.

If the people who use our cars every day are not praising them, it matters little what we may say. The last word must be spoken by the car itself, and the owner who tells his next door neighbor how his car behaves in actual service is the only effective advertiser.

That is why we do not stress "talking points" in our car. The Ford V-8 is built on principles, not on "points." Most of the "talking points" in motor cars are of little or no importance to the performance or value of the car.

Take weight, for example. It is not just a "talking point" with us; it is a basic principle which we keep constantly in mind when we design a car. Weight has much to do with the cost of the car. It costs us money to remove excess weight. It costs you money if we leave it in.

When people talk about the cost of running a car—or, to put it in advertising language, "economy of operation"—why do they not give more thought to weight?

The more dead weight a car drags around, the more it costs to run. To carry passengers costs very little. It is car weight that runs up the gas bills. If we design an economical engine, and then waste the economy in moving a mass of unnecessary car weight, what has been gained?

By keeping weight where it belongs—as trainers do with a race-horse or an athlete—the horse-power per pound of car remains high. To get the most miles and most power out of a gallon of gas, a car should not be over-heavy for its purpose. A quick, responsive pick-up and reserve speed—which means reserve power—requires careful attention to car-weight and strength.

The Ford V-8 is not a light car—it is as heavy as its design requires, and much stronger than it need be for safety. But it has no useless weight. Strength has been obtained without dead heavy bulk.

What we offer is a car, built to do certain things, and sure to do them.
