Lumber Code Sent To Northwest Firms

SEATTLE, Aug. 26. (AP)—Characterized by Colonel W. B. Greeley as a "good and workable code," the National Recovery program bearing the imprint of the lumber code authority, was sent to members of the industry today by the West Coast Lumbermen's association.

Caffery, now assistant secretary of state, conferred twice today with Dean Acheson, under-secretary of the treasury, but it was said the treasury representative who will go to Cuba had not been definitely decided upon.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26. (AP)—The administration plans to send a treasury official to Cuba to aid the new ambassador, Jefferson Caffery, in studying the neighborly republic's financial problems, instead of sending a commission of economic and financial experts.

LIQUOR CONTROL IN STATE VIEWED

PORTLAND, Aug. 26. (AP)—Liquor prices so low as to discourage bootlegging, but high enough to insure a substantial profit for the state were proposed by the governor's liquor advisory committee at a meeting here Friday.

The committee, appointed to make recommendations to the state legislature in anticipation of repeal of the 18th amendment, took no action on the several proposals advanced for regulation, administration and taxation.

Dr. William S. Knox, chairman, and John Beckman, father of the state beer bill introduced at the last legislative session, suggested methods of control which were similar in many respects.

Both proposed a three-man liquor control commission, the members of which would receive substantial salaries and be responsible for the regulation of liquor sales and administration of laws governing importation, taxation, sale and consumption. It was declared the state should not expect to make a profit of more than 6 per cent in liquor taxation and regulation.

All sales of bottled goods, it was suggested, should be through state liquor stores, although hotels and bona fide restaurants would be permitted to sell drinks with meals.

RAILROAD PREPARES TO HANDLE CROPS

Anticipating large crops of potatoes, hay and grain in the Tule lake district, the Southern Pacific company is just completing at Hatfield a new 15-car team loading track, with oil-cinder driveways, to facilitate the loading of these crops on cars.

The new track is under construction now, and will be ready for use by September 1. The cost will be approximately $7000. In addition, new stock weighing scales, with enlarged corals, are being installed at Stukel, just south of Klamath Falls, and at Uml on the Cascade line, just this side of Crescent lake. The cost of these new facilities will be about $600 at each place, or a total of $1200 for the two.

Twelve thousand explosions a minute

Henry Ford Dearborn, Mich.

For every 5 1/2 inches which the Ford V-8 travels, its engine produces one power impulse. If "impulse" is not clear to you, say "expansion", or "explosion".

One drop of gasoline, hardly as large as a grain of wheat (there are 178 of these drops in a teaspoonful) is vaporized as gas and burned in the combustion chamber. It is the resulting "heat expansion", or tiny explosion, that moves the piston, and so moves your car—5 1/2 inches.

A mile at 60 is only a minute long. And every mile your V-8 travels, 12,000 of these small, closely-spaced explosions occur. The power impulses of the V-8 are so closely timed that they blend in one smooth continuous flow of power.

Now, it is natural that the small, confined combustion chambers should become pretty hot, each with its 1,500 explosions a mile. For remember, at 60 miles an hour, this is 1,500 explosions a minute for each of the 8 chambers. With fewer cylinders there would be just as many explosions per cylinder, but the flame would be larger. Heat, therefore, is not surprising.

Where cylinder heads are of cast iron, as many are, this heat cannot escape as rapidly as is desirable. And so the engine has a tendency to "knock" or "ping". Thus, cast iron makes it necessary to hold a lower compression in the firing chamber, and this prevents getting the full power of the engine.

But the cylinder heads on the Ford V-8 are aluminum, which allows excess heat to escape three times as fast as cast iron does. Housewives who use aluminum cooking pans know that this material distributes heat evenly. Add to this that it dissipates excess heat quickly, and you get the reasons for its use in the Ford V-8.

Our aluminum cylinder head adds 10 horsepower to the V-8 engine, by permitting high compression—and it gets this increased horsepower without increasing the gas consumption. In fact, it uses less gas.

Any grade of gas—with our aluminum cylinder heads—will give you more power and economy. Premium fuels are not necessary.

This is just another point where doing it better costs us more, but you get the benefit. An aluminum cylinder head costs four times as much as a cast iron one. When we put two aluminum heads on the V-8 not one cent was added to the price of the car.
