is appointed in charge of the local work.
It was learned that Congressman Walter M. Pierce, who is here on a tour of southern Oregon, may make requests against removing the director, who is highly lauded by relief committee members for the way in which he has carried on the local work.

Transient Plan Ready.

Although Judge Grizzle would say nothing concerning the change of administration, he talked of the new relief policies and urged anyone having a supply of wood to cut on shares, to contact the relief office.

"Some relief workers have started cutting wood and are exchanging part of their share for gasoline to haul it with," the judge said. "Others are picking potatoes on the share and accumulating a winter supply. Farmers who will consent to giving relief workers potatoes on the shares for picking are requested to call the relief office."

A new policy in handling non-resident or transient relief will be installed immediately. A definite attempt will be made by the committee to send non-residents to their home to prevent receiving local assistance. "We hope to have a set-up whereby transients will not come to Klamath county and live from relief," the judge said.

Criminologist Deals Blow At State Case and crushed her skull when she fell against a wash basin.

The great Dr. Heinrich once solved a holdup and quadruple murder through a button, a shred of cloth and a razor blade.

Today he brought into court rolls of paper, a can of red varnish, a valve, and a pair of strange spectacles with extensions and other glasses six inches from those for the eyes.

He started to tell how he had taken a girl of the same weight and build as Mrs. Lamson, stood her in a bathtub, and re-enacted the fall which he claims killed Allene.

Prosecutor Fitzgerald objected. "The only way to prove it would be to kill somebody," he barked.

Defense Attorney Edwin Rea was angry.
"All we want to show," he said, "was that a girl was placed in such a position, that her head was on the wash basin, her legs were in the tub, and that after the impact she slipped back into the tub, because a women's center of gravity is below the hips."

"Heinrich tried the experiment twice," Rea shouted. "We can prove how Mrs. Lamson died."

Pittsford condemned Rea for "trying to testify."
Heinrich was not allowed to tell his calculations of the force with which a falling 113 pound body would strike a wash basin, the probable results, and whether the body would fall to the floor, or into the bathtub.

He was permitted to testify that the "trail of blood" state witnesses claimed led from Allene's body in her bathroom to David at his backyard bonfire did not exist. But he was not allowed to open his can of varnish, get out his test tubes and attempt to demonstrate his claim that some of the "spots of blood" were really varnish stains.

Judge R. R. Byer refused any attempt to demonstrate the accident theory of Allene Thorpe Lamson's mysterious death.

to inspect all city sidewalks and make a report of places where accidents might occur in which the city would be liable.

On a motion passed, G. C. Lorenz was given 48 hours to start construction remedying the unsatisfactory wooden sidewalk on Pine street between Sixth and Seventh streets. Police Judge Clifton Richmond said he had already sent three notifications for action on the sidewalk.

The chief of police was instructed to take all city prisoners under work sentence to Moore park where they will be put to work cleaning the fire hazardous brush from the park property.

City Attorney A. L. Leavitt was instructed by a resolution adopted, to draw a deed for the isolation hospital property where-by the city would be recorded as receiving one-half interest with the county in the hospital.

Police Judge Richmond was instructed to investigate the costs of having the city charter reprinted with all amendments included.

The matter of the city purchasing a snow plow to be installed on the front of a city truck for more speedily caring for snow on streets during the winter months was referred to the council as a whole.

Building permits totalling $2,627 were approved.

two-day session. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pierce, who left Klamath Falls Sunday evening to attend a state board of higher education meeting in Portland today, took active parts in discussions and activities at the picnic.

"The money for the federal public works program which is expected to put millions to work is not coming from a general tax as the majority think," Pierce said. "It is being accumulated by revenues from capitalistic organizations. Also one-half cent of the gasoline tax goes into the public works fund."

Pierce told how the first bill passed both houses after President Roosevelt was installed. "It was the emergency bank bill and took only a few minutes to pass both houses and be accepted."

Mrs. Pierce discussed the life of a congressman at Washington and told of the active part Mrs. Roosevelt was taking in her husband's administration.

Mack Welcomes Grangers.

The grange meeting opened Saturday afternoon with an address of welcome being given Lane county visitors by Earl W. Mack, Klamath master.

County Agents C. A. Henderson of Klamath, and Victor Johnson of Lake county both spoke with Henderson telling of the new deal in agriculture.

"Henderson made the best talk on the new agriculture set-up I have heard from any county agent," Pierce commented.

Arthur Priault, publisher of Chiloquin, spoke on the tax situation and favored a large but not prohibitive state tax on beer; on whiskey when made legal; 10 per cent tax on all amusements and luxuries; 10 per cent tax on all para mutual machines.

The joint program was arranged by the two lecturers of Klamath and Lake counties. Mrs. Pearl Bradshaw of Williamson River is lecturer of the Klamath grange.

noon, and all is in readiness for the opening of schools all over the county on Tuesday morning.

Busses from rural districts will make their runs on schedule, and the machinery of learning will swing into motion for another school year.

Heavy enrollments are expected in virtually all districts, according to school officers.

"The officers demand a return to normal conditions. Disorder now exists. There is no work because there is no peace. Within a short time there will be no food. Chaos will follow."

"We request amnesty for the enlisted soldiers who in good faith were tricked to proceed against their own military honor. Cuba cannot sustain its liberty on a pile of material and moral ruins."

"Let the constitution and liberty which existed August 12 be returned to our people. Let each assume his own responsibility and let us hope when disaster has arrived it will not be the soldiers and sailors who suffer for everyone."

woman assistant pathologist at Washington university, found the presence of viruses in kidney tissues, proving the disease is of the virus type.

A group of laboratory experts headed by Dr. Ralph S. Muckenfuss of Washington university succeeded in apparently transmitting the disease through inoculation to six rhesus monkeys.

They reasoned that if the disease can be transmitted from humans to monkeys, it is probable then that it may be transmitted from one human to another. The means of transmission is still unknown.

Cummings Praises Police of America

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. (AP) Every kidnaping case in which the department of justice has been called in since the passage of the federal kidnaping law of June, 1932, has been solved, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings said tonight in a speech forecasting victory in the nation's war on racketeers.

He denied that police agencies of other nations excelled those of the United States and said that cooperation between federal state and local authorities was overcoming the difficulties state lines introduced in law enforcement.

PORTLAND, Sept. 11. (UP) Oregon will need $17,704,372 to care for its needy during the next 15 months, Frank L. Shull, Multnomah county commissioner, told Governor Meier's sub-committee on relief today.

The state will have to furnish approximately $12,000,000 of that amount and the federal government the remainder.

Members of the committee were split on what recommendations would be made to the main group, several threatening to submit a minority report. The report of Raymond B. Wilcox, chairman, was rejected.

"Labor's right to organize and bargain collectively has been upheld repeatedly by the United States supreme court," he said.

"If the lawyers engaged in confusing the issue would read these decisions to their clients, the clients would understand even if the lawyers didn't."

A brief smile flitted over Reichberg's face as he said in an aside:
"Perhaps, too, that is the reason why the lawyers are arguing their case in the newspapers instead of in the courts."

Protection

Life insurance is one of the greatest benefits of the present day—because it acts as a protection against financial hardship. In much the same way, advance knowledge of funeral costs and customs can prevent a great deal of needless worry and distress.

To be most valuable, this information should be obtained before need arises. The public Advisory Department at the Whitlock Funeral Home is for the free use of all residents of Klamath Falls and vicinity. Before any need arises, call here for accurate data on burial procedure and charges.
