Liquor's Prestige To Be Deflated

WITH prohibition repeal only a matter of time—and a short time at that—it begins to look as if old John Barleycorn is in for a deflation of prestige.

Temperance organizations are already beginning to work for temperance. Most "temperance people" are now willing to accept the inevitable, and the intelligent ones are shaping their work along the lines of education and promotion of voluntary abstinence or moderation. Such a program deserves success.

Once the first flurry of excitement over the ability to buy and consume legal hard drinks has passed, a new attitude toward liquor will probably develop. And it doesn't look so good for Mr. Barleycorn's prestige.

In the years of "prohibition"—the term cannot be accepted at face value—there has developed a new code of social habits and tolerance. Some changes in this situation may be expected.

Perhaps, after a little while, it will not be possible for a man to get offensively intoxicated, either in public or private, with the assurance that his reputation and friendships will not suffer. The possession of a bottle, or a breath of alcoholic flavor, or bleary eyes, will no longer be a symbol of personal liberty. Perhaps Mr. Barleycorn will not sit in on so many business transactions and political conferences. The host or hostess will not consider it an unavoidable obligation to provide cocktails for the guests.

With liquor a legally purchasable commodity, the man who chooses to walk among reasonably intelligent, self-controlled people, will find it advisable to impose upon himself a new code of conduct, wherein moderation and evident self-discipline and a clear mind will play an important part.

Repeal may mean the restoration of personal liberty, but, paradoxically, it may remove the liberty of being offensive and disgusting. And there are few who will not be thankful for the paradox.

League Promotes Worthy Project

THE League of Women Voters, since its organization here, has supported and worked for coverage of the irrigation canal through Klamath Falls. Hence we find the league actively supporting the new movement to bring about the canal enclosure through the expenditure of federal funds for unemployment relief.

The league has circulated a petition among prominent organizations of the city, supporting the city council's recent resolution asking the federal government to consider the canal coverage as a relief measure—relief for the unemployed, and relief from a menace to life and health for the citizens of the community.

It should be kept clearly in mind that this new movement does not imply that there shall be any local monetary contribution to the project. The money would not come out of the reclamation service, and thus be a burden upon the farmers of this region. It would be spent directly from federal funds, set aside for public works on federal property, which would be spent elsewhere if not here.

Under these conditions, there is every reason for unanimous local support of the project. If we can get the canal covered in this way, let us keep after it.

The Klamath Wildcats, the high school football players whose hard work and striving for excellence keeps the first team on its toes, will have a game with Malin on Modoc field Saturday. There will be no other game here. The Wildcats deserve the kind of encouragement that will be provided by the attendance of a good crowd at Saturday's game.

Enthusiasm for Klamath's good weather will hold out as long as the good weather holds out.

Editorials on News

The government prints the bonds, sells them to the public, then takes the money it gets for them and pays its bills. In the case of direct inflation, it merely prints the money and then pays its bills with it.

At first glance, it looks as if the printing of money is better, BECAUSE SIMPLER.

BUT let's go into it a little deeper.

Suppose you have no money, but OWN A HOUSE, free from encumbrance. You mortgage your house, and with the money obtained on the mortgage you go out and pay your bills.

That's the bonding method.

NOW suppose you don't want to mortgage your house, but instead go out and pay your bills with I. O. U.'s which have nothing back of them but your promise to pay it and when you get the money. We'll assume, for the sake of argument, that your creditors will accept your I. O. U.'s.

That's the inflation method.

HERE'S the difference:

Your mortgage money will MEAN A LOT to you, because you know you have to work and earn and PAY IT BACK, or lose your house. So you will spend it pretty cautiously, because you know you have to earn it back.

But your I. O. U.'s won't mean so much, especially if people accept them readily at first, and the chances are you'll go on passing them out until the first thing you know you have so many of them in circulation that you'll realize the hopelessness of ever trying to take them all up at face value.

Other people will realize that at about the same time, and your I. O. U.'s will no longer be accepted at face value. After that, the more of them you put out the less they're worth.

It's the same way with printing press money.

THE real difference, you see, is this:

Bond money—bond, you now, is just another word for mortgage—is HARD money, because it has to be EARNED BACK. Printing press money, which is merely government's I. O. U., is easy money, because making it good is a case of "if and when." Money that comes too easily is pretty sure to be spent too recklessly.

Anyone with as much sense as two gray geese knows that throughout the length and breadth of this land there served up at a Thanksgiving or a Christmas dinner than a roast suckling pig.—Former U. S. Senator Alton Pomeroy.

WASHINGTON

News Behind the News

The Inside Story From The Capital

By PAUL MALLON
Copyright, 1933, by Paul Mallon

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The wise boys now joke about the federal reserve system being an adjunct of the bureau of engraving and printing. Its importance has actually sunk to about that level.

Within a few months they will be tittering also at the suggestion that Mr. Roosevelt should put the banks of the country on the federal patronage lists. His control over them will be that strong.

Officials naively deny it in public but developments every day bring us nearer and nearer to a centrally-controlled banking system.

The only question is how far it will go.

DISTANCE

A trustworthy official suggests that it will be as strong as the Bank of England relationship with the British government. Another likens it to the dominating government control promised for public utilities.

Either point may be accepted as the goal. The administration does not yet know how far it will be compelled to go, but it is obviously preparing to go further than the bankers or the public suspect.

The credit policy is carrying it far along the road. The capital money market is even now partially controlled through the securities act. It will be further controlled through central credit facilities shortly to be set up. The deposit insurance plan will give all banks an equal footing under the government thumb beginning January 1. The unfreezing of assets of closed banks by the government will be a link in the chain.

Also there is the matter of capital bank stock to be obtained by the R. F. C. and the new banking legislation now being framed.

Very soon the banks will own the buildings over their heads but that is about all.

When that time comes Jesse James will not go to Chicago to tell bankers what they should do. They will come to Washington to get their orders.

The bankers will howl about this state of affairs, but the heavens will be deaf to their pleas. Mr. Roosevelt's experience since March 4 appears to have convinced him that a new centralized banking system is essential to recovery. The way the banks of England and Canada held up without failures during the depression was proof to him that we need something like that.

The hard time he has had with his credit and capital financing policies have strengthened his earlier beliefs.

BOOGIE

Mention of the word "boogies" given Mr. Roosevelt the creeps these days.

Around the White House they whisper that the president is much more worried by the fact that congress reassembles January 3 than he is about anything else.

The official word is being passed out that he intends to clean up his whole relief program before congress can get a whack at it. He hopes to leave them no issue, monetary, financial or economic.

For this reason Mr. Roosevelt's spokesmen say he nearly died laughing when Postmaster General Farley prophesied a special session on liquor.

Nevertheless such a special session is not improbable. The 55th state will complete final action on repeal December 5. Congress could be called about December 10 to sit for a few days and then adjourn for the Christmas holidays if the presidential program is far enough along to warrant such action.

refining industry came in on the run when Agriculture Secretary Wallace turned down their allotment agreement.

They buttonholed every official they could find. The sugar market was going down. They saw much lower prices ahead unless the agreement was revived.

Officials declined to be stampeded. They said they would wait and see. There is hardly a chance that these efforts to revive the agreement will be successful anytime soon.

The administration has had its fill of sugar agreements for the present.

COLD TEA

The new congresswoman from Arizona, Mrs. Greenway, gave a party for women of the press the other day and nobody came. At least only two or three did.

Investigation disclosed that the hotel at which she was stopping shooed all the guests away. Clerks had recorded her name wrongly. Later in the day the situation was rectified, but not until the tea was cold.

FARIES

To illustrate how psychology has played out as a stimulating economic factor, a treasury official tells this story:

A certain newspaper proprietor once hired a prominent novelist to go to Ireland and write a series of articles on fairies. He thought so well of the feature idea that he is reported to have paid the novelist $10,000 for the purpose.

Imagine his surprise when he received a cablegram from the novelist a week after his arrival in Ireland, reading:

"The fairies have flown."

NOTES

The resignation of Alexander Sachs from the NRA was due to his desire to get back into Latham Brothers and make some money. Government service is an expensive luxury.

A New York newspaper suggested General Farley should have United States marshals patrol the polls in the majority election. Farley's friends suggested he call out the marines who have had experience with that sort of thing in Nicaragua.

Mr. Roosevelt is looking better these days. The vigorous training he goes through keeps him physically fit to a greater degree than any other official in his government.

Some People Say

I have yet to meet anyone in Europe who looks forward to a world war.—Prof. William R. Shepherd of Columbia.

It seems to me that what is happening in Germany is a clumsy lout's revolution against thought, sanity and books.—H. G. Wells.

It is a good plan not to make more of a damn fool of yourself than God Almighty intended you should.—Former Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams.

The country needs super-men and super-women among the leaders and among the followers for the solution of present-day national problems.—Mary E. Woolley, president Mt. Holyoke College.

When I first knew this horse show, we came here as gentlemen, not as crashing cads.—The Duke of Devonshire.

Bronx, N. Y., residents reported a gold strike in their own back yards, but not enough to entice the gold diggers from Broadway.

A million copies of Hitler's book, "My Fight," have been published. What a bonfire they would make!

Denmark's citizens are going to have gas masks to prepare themselves against chemical warfare—and the talk coming from Europe's statesmen.

Man in Chicago was buried alive for 60 days. And men in this city go about dead but not buried for longer than that.

Scientist says it would cost $100,000,000 to finance a rocket ship flight to the moon. We'd rather walk.

Wise Cracks

One of the most important elements of predatory crime is the manner in which some members of the bar co-operate with the underworld.—U. S. Attorney General Cummings.

The fact that you are now lacking in material work does not prevent you from doing spiritual work.—Pope Pius XI.

Prohibition has ruined more people in this country than any other item.—Oscar of the Waldorf.

The German has a passion for his hierarchy and his uniforms.—Hermann W. Goering, German Aviation Minister.

BONNEVILLE DAM WORK PREPARED

PORTLAND, Oct. 13 (AP)—Work will begin within 10 or 15 days to determine the nature of the foundation underlying the damsite of the $31,000,000 power and navigation dam at Bonneville, it was said by United States army engineers who conferred here Thursday.

The contract for this work has been awarded to Cannon Bros., Compton, Cal., who bid $14,735.

The next step will be the call for bids for 500,000 cubic yards of excavation in the Columbia river channel in the vicinity of Boat Rock and Bradford Island. Specifications now are being prepared. The call for bids is expected next week, and work on the first major construction can be started by Nov. 15.

Life Of Christ Sermon Topics

Beginning this Sunday evening and to continue once each month till the whole of the life of Christ is presented, a reverent presentation of the life that changed the history of the world, will be given at the First Presbyterian church. "I Am the Way" is episode 1 of these films to be portrayed in moving pictures Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Palestine, the temple, Roman rule, Bethlehem, the shepherds, the wise men with accurate historical, geographical and astronomical facts, will be presented. Music appropriate to the various scenes will accompany the presentation.

The films are said to be remarkably fine in every particular. The public will be welcome. No charge is made, although the usual evening offering will be received.

Circulation Up In City Library

Circulation of books from the Klamath Falls library which has been showing a steady increase for months past, reached a new high for September, when 1053 more books were circulated than in September of 1932, according to an announcement from the librarians.

Sixty new books have been placed upon the shelves of the library during the past week, and non-credit reading lists issued by the state library at Salem, have been posted upon the library bulletin board for the convenience of patrons.

Proceeds from the party will be used for the re-opening of the school cafeteria for the winter months.

The general committee for the benefit party is composed of Mrs. Ed Ostendorf, Mrs. P. O. Landry, Mrs. Jeanne, Mrs. C. Sewell and Mrs. E. Marie Lockwood.

Contract and auction will be played during the evening, and reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Howard R. Perrin at 250-W, Mrs. F. E. Drake, 1885-W, or Mrs. Walter Weisendanger at 346-W.

Revival Meeting Closes On Sunday

The revival meeting at the Pentecostal Assembly of God, located in Moe's basement on Main street, was continued by popular demand for another week and will close this Sunday night. The evangelist, who has been speaking for five weeks, will close the meeting with a message on "The Devil's Bonnyard."

R. D. Streyfeller, pastor of the church who has been vacationing in southern California, has returned and will be in charge of the services next week.

Three Men Attack Officer In Texas

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13 (AP)—Three persons were injured here early today when an airplane made a forced landing on a steep hillside.

The pilot, Ray B. Deaton of San Mateo, said his motor stopped and he was forced to set the plane down on the steep grade. It nosed into the hillside. Deaton received a broken ankle; Mrs. Sylvia Dubois of South San Francisco, a broken right ankle and left leg; and Juan Ella Richards, 25, of Seattle, a broken leg and possible internal injuries. Physicians said all would recover.

HILDEBRAND

Tommy, small son of Mr. and Mrs. James Good of Klamath Falls, who has been visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Michael, for the past three weeks, returned home Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Emilie Flackus and baby of Martinez, Calif., are visiting with Mr. Flackus' father, Theodore Flackus of Hildebrand.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Flackus and Mrs. Emilie Flackus and baby visited Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Flackus.

The "Society of Elected Air-men" is a group within the famous Caterpillar club, made up of flyers who have been taken from their planes in maneuvers and have been forced to resort to parachutes for safe landings.

MAJIN LIBRARY CLUB MEETS

MAJIN, Ore.—The Majin Library club met at the library Tuesday afternoon to discuss plans for the winter and raise funds for immediate needs. Committees were appointed by the president and preparations were made for a card party to be given early in November. Plans were also outlined for a Tag Day in the near future.

The library has been moved into new rooms in the gymnasium, which have been renovated, making it easier for the students to obtain books and more convenient for other patrons.

CLUB ENTERTAINED AT STEEL HOME

MERRILL—Meadames J. R. and R. W. Steele entertained the Merrill Library club at their home Thursday afternoon. The porch of the Steele home was uniquely decorated with various fall vegetables and sunflowers. Mrs. H. O. Cox received first prize for a contest and Mrs. Alice Anderson the consolation.

Plans were made for the annual Halloween dance, which will be given Saturday, October 28. Funds derived from this affair each year are used to defray expenses of the library.

Committees appointed at the meeting were: Decoration, Miss Ellen McVeigh, Mrs. Otto Ellis, Mrs. Denney, Mrs. Merritt and Mrs. E. Kay; floor, Mrs. H. Heaton, Mrs. L. Laird, Mrs. Tabor, Mrs. S. McKendree, Mrs. Robert Nebker, Mrs. V. Shuck, Mrs. J. C. Stevenson, Mrs. J. Steele, Mrs.

Dalton, T. Laird, Scott McKendree, Book, Taylor and M. A. Bowman.

SOCIAL DOINGS OF CAMP FIRE GROUPS

The Evergreen Blue Birds met at the Camp Fire cabin on the river last Thursday afternoon when plans were made for a Saturday morning hike. The purpose of the hike was to find pine cones from which they will make rustic dolls for the fall exhibition. Present membership of the Evergreen Blue Birds includes: Rose McCartney, Charlotte Metserow, Hensle and Gloria Pope, Clara Redkey, Jane Cook, Dorothy Towers, Joyce Finch, Mary Emma Brunk, Wynetta Ruth and Betty Lou Cramer, Marguerite Pollard, Georgia Leach, Virginia Anderson, Nadine and Marjorie Fairmont and Marguerite Uerlings, leader.

The Letahni Camp Group held its regular meeting last Wednesday evening, with Mrs. Agnes Nichols a special guest. Craft work included tie-dyeing, making of telephone covers and twine holders.

Final plans were made for mothers' luncheon.

The Shumajalas group enjoyed another supper at the cabin Monday night.

Plans for the big Camp Fire rally to be held Friday evening, October 20, have been completed by the girls groups and their guardians' association.

The Saccawee group enjoyed a Sunday potluck supper last Sunday evening at the cabin.

The losing side in the membership drive sponsored by the Fairhaven P. T. A. card club, entertained the winners at a bridge party Tuesday evening at the Fairhaven cafeteria.

Tables and refreshments were in charge of Mrs. Gus Miller. High scores were awarded to Mrs. Saltberg and Mrs. Frank Farr, and consolation scores went to Mrs. Schultz and Mrs. L. Hopkins.

MERRILL—Mrs. R. Adrieu was hostess at a party Sunday afternoon in honor of the eighth birthday of her daughter May. Games were enjoyed, after which refreshments were served. The guests were Margaret M. Gilmour, Mary and Elizabeth Denney, Mary Lacy and Tommy Van Scholack.
