Circuit Court of Lake County Open

LAKEVIEW, Ore.—The fall term of the circuit court of Lake county opened Monday, November 6. The first case to be tried will be State vs. Jeff Deadmond. Deadmond is charged with first degree murder. He recently shot and killed his son Bliss in a fight near Silver Lake. The case of L. P. Mauser vs. Charles Kleindorfer has been appealed from the justice court and will follow the Deadmond case. The Mauser case involves the title to a mule and at its recent trial in the justice court drew one of the largest crowds of spectators of any case tried here for some time.

The balance of the docket consists of a trespass case of D. Quigley vs. Jimmy Ozam; the Spring Street Iron Works vs. Azel Bach. Mrs. Bach is charged with stealing personal property from her ex-husband, Mr. William Bach.

The annual city election will be held next Tuesday. Candidates for mayor are E. G. Favell and Lorenzo D. Frakes; councilmen candidates are Chas. Tower, Harry Anthony, Lloyd Ogil and William Arzner. Candidates for recorder are Victor Hanmer and O. C. Gibbs. City Treasurer A. J. Swift will be elected treasurer again for the seventh consecutive term.

Lakeview high school won its second football game of the season yesterday when its football team invaded Alturas and defeated Modoc high with a score of 6-0. The two teams will play here on Armistice Day.

Lakeview is in readiness to entertain the annual convention of the Oregon Wool Growers Association on November 13-14. A personal invitation has been sent to every member of the association and at least 250 delegates are expected to attend.

The Fremont sheepmen, the Elks lodge of this city, the Lake county chamber of commerce, the Lakeview Twenty-Three club and the Lakeview Business and Professional Women's club have all joined forces to make this coming convention the most successful in the history of the association.

Cautious Wife Finds Efforts Toward Safety Have Rebound

One of life's most embarrassing moments was experienced by a prominent Klamath Falls matron last week when she decided to teach her careless husband a lesson.

The careless one had been in the habit of leaving his automobile parked and unlocked, despite numerous warnings from his more cautious spouse. One night last week both husband and wife were attending lodge functions, and when the cautious wife emerged from her lodge hall, lo, and behold, here was hubby's automobile right at the very door, unlocked, and containing numerous important tools, a paintbrush, a flashlight and other knick-knacks.

"I'll just teach him a lesson," says she, and gathers up all the loose paraphernalia from the car, joins her friends, and rides home with her loot, expecting to gloat over the man later in the evening.

Upon her arrival at home, here was hubby, comfortably reading the paper and puffing his cigar. And loud and raucous was his laughter when he had the pleasure of removing the plunder from the wrong automobile.

The craft male then made her go to police headquarters, turn in the tools, etcetera, and explain how she came by them in the first place.

MARIONETTE SHOW WELL RECEIVED

Large and appreciative audiences greeted the Olvera Puppeteers in their two performances at the Klamath Union high school auditorium Monday.

The Olvera Puppeteers from Los Angeles are the leading puppet performers on the Pacific coast, and are on tour of the northwest district. They came to Klamath Falls from San Francisco and Oakland, and from this city go directly to Corvallis for several performances at Oregon State college.

The matinee performance Monday was especially planned for school children, and was entitled "Jimmie's Adventures at the Circus," and in the evening a delightful revue, "Gayeties of 1933" was presented.
