Same Unacceptable Purpose

PUBLIC opinion and the senate judiciary committee majority gave the Roosevelt court bill such a thumping that now a compromise is offered.

The compromise is a weak attempt to disguise the thing which the public refused to accept in the first bill. At the same time, it attempts to achieve that same goal. The purpose of both bills has been to give the executive the power to enforce its will on the supreme court. The purpose of both bills violates a fundamental principle of American government—the independence of the judiciary.

There is an apparent belief on the part of administration leaders that by changing the number of supreme court justices to be added, from nine to three, and by cajoling senators and congressmen with patronage threats and promises, they yet can get for the president what he wants and should not have.

If the first bill was wrong, so is this one. Those who are against one should be opposed to the other.

First Class Show

THE Klamath Buckaroo Days rodeo in the fairgrounds arena has proved to be a first class show—way above the average rodeo. The skill of the cowboys, the toughness of the stock, the manner in which the show is handled—all have contributed to a western performance of which the community may well be proud.

This writer, who has witnessed a good many rodeos, has never seen one handled any more smoothly or on faster schedule than was the program here Sunday afternoon. It started on time, it went through with no delay, it was well announced, the competition was keen and the time was unusually good in several events. Home folks sometimes get the idea because something is done in their own community that it can't be very good. Those who have that idea about the Buckaroo Days rodeo are badly mistaken.

The improvement over last year's show, which was the first and therefore had its rough spots, is remarkable. For instance, it took about three days to rope one calf last year. "No time" has been called only once or twice in this year's calf roping, and the number of competitors is virtually doubled.

Those in charge of the rodeo have reason to be pleased and satisfied with their work. The only suggestion we would make would be for a price revision that would fill up all the first class seats. Some minor modifications would do it.

The Family Doctor

Sometimes failure to gain weight is associated with excessive smoking, nervous exhaustion, lack of sleep or overactivity. All of these represent controllable factors.

There are certain foods which are much more useful in adding weight than are others because they provide large amounts of food value without excessive bulk. Milk, cream, butter, bacon, breads and vegetables with a high carbohydrate content provide large amounts of calories.

Peas, lima beans, rice, macaroni and spaghetti are also useful substances in gaining weight. Furthermore, the diet may be enriched with malted milks, dried milk and olive oil.

The patient who is underweight should not only eat three meals a day but should also eat at periods between meals such as at 10:30 in the morning, 4 o'clock in the afternoon and again just before going to bed.

A certain amount of exercise is desirable in such cases as a means of increasing the appetite. The milder forms of exercise such as golf and walking are preferable.

In the majority of cases of under-nutrition, three good meals a day with an abundance of bread and butter usually will help to build up weight.

Breakfast may include some orange juice, a large helping of cereal with cream and sugar, two boiled eggs, two or three slices of well-buttered toast, a little bacon, and a cup of tea or coffee with sugar and cream.

Around 10 o'clock in the morning, two glasses of milk containing one-third or one-half cream may be taken. The noon meal instead of being a hastily snatched sandwich and a cup of coffee, may include a cream soup, some fat meat, chicken or fish, potatoes, green vegetables cooked with butter, some macaroni or rice to which butter has been added, and for dessert a large helping of pudding or stewed fruit.

After this meal, also, one or two glasses of milk may be swallowed.

The evening meal will duplicate the luncheon and it may be advisable to take a large glass of milk before going to bed. Such a diet will include from four to five thousand calories in 24 hours and will help to overcome under-nutrition.

In very severe cases of under-nutrition it may be necessary to put the patient in a hospital or private nursing home to be certain that he gets rest and that he actually takes the food served to him.

A recent method for fattening people rapidly involves the use of insulin. A short time before each meal, the patient is given a small dose of insulin and then a meal rich in carbohydrates follows.

COPY MADE OF ANCIENT WEDDING CERTIFICATE

A marriage certificate dated in 1816 was brought recently to the county clerk's office here for copying on the clerk's photostatic camera.

Harry F. Sackett owns the ancient document, which was issued at the time of the marriage of his great-grandparents, Zina Denison and Betsy Pierce.

The date, written in fancy script on the now-yellowed paper, was January 11, 1816.

Later the names of four children, born to the union, were also entered on the certificate. One of these, Julia Ann Denison, was Sackett's grandmother. His mother, Jennie Sackett, died December 5, 1935, at San Diego.

Sackett owns silverware which Betsy Pierce received as a wedding present. She received the silver and had it beaten into a set of spoons.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER
WASHINGTON, July 5.—It has all been fixed now so that Securities Exchange Commissioner William O. Douglas will succeed James M. Landis as chairman of the commission.

The man responsible for this is the man in the White House, and if the heavy Wall Street opposition to the appointment may be taken to indicate how Wall Street will feel about the news, that famous financial community is going to suffer acute pain.

It has been a fairly open secret that Douglas feels that financial promoters and other men having to do with securities in one way and another have had too easy a time under the Landis regime. His worst crime, in Wall Street eyes, has been his criticism of the way bankers have exerted their power over corporation management, industrial policies, reorganizations and other business processes.

Landis and certain financial groups have promoted appointment of Commissioner George C. Matthews, as chairman. Large contributors to the democratic campaign fund came from New York to argue against Douglas. Douglas is experienced in the fields of securities and corporation law and was a law professor at Yale. His big job with the commission thus far has been the investigation of corporate reorganizations and the operation of so-called protective committees.

REFUGES SEEK U. S. ENTRY
Perhaps the least surprising thing in the world is the fact that applications of Spanish citizens for emigration to the United States have increased tremendously in number.

The immigration quota for Spain is slightly over 1200, and there is a waiting list of 15,000. This represents an increase of 800 per cent within the year, and the increase would be larger if it were not commonly known in Spain that the lists are closed.

The figures are revealed in connection with the efforts of American organizations to bring over 500 or more homeless Basque children from the stricken Bilbao area. Thousands of these children have been taken to France and England.

Spanish people in America, citizens or otherwise, have been besieging the Spanish embassy here to make representations to this government. They want to adopt or temporarily care for such children.

The state and labor departments have been passing the buck to each other on the question whether the children should be given asylum, and Secretary Perkins has appeared to be especially unfavorable to the idea. Catholic groups have been bringing pressure on both departments against the proposal.

GIRDLER SHUNS LEWIS
John L. Lewis and Tom Girdler of the Republic Steel company almost traveled from Cleveland to Washington within the narrow confines of the same passenger plane.

After strike mediation conferences in Cleveland, both men went to the airport to fly to Washington. They didn't discover until the plane was about to take off that they were to be fellow passengers. Lewis continued on schedule. Girdler canceled his reservations and waited for the next plane.

Girdler is hard-boiled but particular. Once he refused to attend a large dinner because James Roosevelt, the president's son, was going to be there.

Given asylum, and Secretary Perkins has appeared to be especially unfavorable to the idea. Catholic groups have been bringing pressure on both departments against the proposal.

DIME TOO MUCH SAYS GOP
After its organization the rural electrification administration began publishing a magazine full of news about its activities, distributing all copies free.

A while ago it was decided to put the magazine on a paying basis, and all recipients were warned that in the future they must pay 10 cents a copy.

The only complaint came in an indignant letter from the republican national committee, which declared the belief that the magazine should keep coming without charge.

SINGLE-DAY RECORD BROKEN AT CRATER LAKE PARK SUNDAY

MEDFORD, July 5 (AP)—A new all-time daily attendance record was set at Crater Lake national park yesterday when 6251 persons traveling in 1565 cars were registered, park headquarters announced today.

The previous record, 4300 persons, was established on July 4, 1931. Yesterday's attendance brought the figures for the season beginning last October 1 to 62,745 persons and 19,522 cars, a tabulation showed. The seasonal figure is also a new high travel record.

Of yesterday's visitors, 4500 arrived at the park through the Medford and Klamath entrances, the park service said. Many Californians were among the visitors, with the Rogue River valley also providing a large share of the attendance.

Numerous picnics were held and fishing was a popular pastime. Despite the crowds, no mishaps were reported. Another large attendance was expected today.

Ten Years Ago in Klamath

A Wonderful trip around San Francisco bay for all who go on the special excursion train from Klamath Falls next week is a feature announced today by wire from the bay city chamber of commerce.

From the standpoint of law and fires, Klamath had a strange Fourth. The fire department received not one call, and the police department made but nine arrests during the three-day festivities.

The Lower Klamath Lake Grazing association was formed this evening at Merrill when 200 men and women directly interested in the livestock industry banded themselves into a permanent body. The intent is to lease the lower lake from the U. S. reclamation service for grazing purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Evans of Hoquiam, Wash., are in Klamath Falls visiting. Evans' two brothers, R. J. and J. W. Evans, H. O. Evans is former of headquarters camp for the Polson Logging company of Hoquiam and his brothers are in the lumber business here.

OFFICERS RECOVER STOLEN CAR NEAR OLD ROAD HOUSE

TULELAKE—A 1936 Ford V-8 from which every mark of identification had been carefully removed was recovered by California officers at an abandoned road house near Tulelake, it was learned Monday night.

The car was brought to Tulelake by Deputy Sheriff Ed Kolkowski after two boys had told him the car was hidden out at the road house, and is being held pending discovery of the owner.

The car, from which license plates had been removed, had originally been painted black but is now covered by new green paint. The tires are new and the car is in excellent condition, officers said.

JERSEY GOVERNOR BARELY ESCAPES AS YACHT FLAMES

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 5 (AP)—New Jersey's governor, stubby Harold G. Hoffman, today called his close escape from death at sea aboard a flaming $75,000 yacht "just one of those things that happen."

The 41-year-old state executive took lightly his rescue with his wife, two small daughters and 18 other persons from the 60-foot Manchonock a short time before she burned and sank four miles off-shore. No one was injured.

Scarcely had the governor dropped a line overboard for a try at tuna fishing after the parade when an engine room explosion shook the yacht.

Mrs. Hoffman, daughters Lillie, 11, and Hope, 4, and other members of the party were removed to the rescue launch.

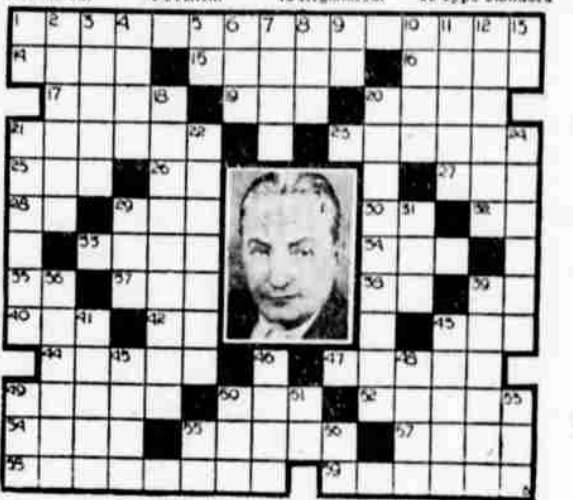

The governor sought to remain with four who stayed aboard the blazing yacht until coast guard boats arrived but aides persuaded him to leave "on account of his family."

EIGHT OREGONIANS, OVER 400 OTHERS DIE IN ACCIDENTS

mediate deaths, although hospitals anticipated an increase in tetanus deaths from infected fire-wounds. Chicago police reported 68 persons had been injured by fireworks there but no deaths were recorded.

By The Associated Press
The lives lost during the nation's celebration of its 151st independence anniversary stood at 363 today with not a single death directly attributed to fireworks. The Independence Day casualty list, the third largest since 1930, was slightly above the average for the past eight years. From 1929 to 1937, the July Fourth death toll was 217, an average of approximately 264 deaths for each year.

CLASS B LIQUOR STORE OPENED AT CHILOQUIN

CHILOQUIN—The city of Chilouquin was granted a permit to operate a class B liquor store, and at a special council meeting called Friday night it was decided to lease the Singer building, part of which has been occupied by the Logger's club and the adjoining space by Riley Powers barber shop.

The store opened on Saturday, July 3, in the Logger's club section and is selling beer by glass and in the original package. The revenue will go to the city and according to the councilmen, Chilouquin will be having paved streets in the near future.

women and were saved each time by reversal.

Indications were that the Morgan county courtroom will be less than half full when they face Judge William Washington Calahan on a charge of attacking Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates aboard a freight train near Paint Rock, Ala., in March, 1931. Unless rumors of a compromise in the case are substantiated, they will be tried as soon as a jury can be selected.

One of the nine defendants, Heywood Patterson, has been sentenced to a 15-year prison term. He was tried last year after his re-indictment by a grand jury numbering a member of his own race.

His appeal to the Alabama supreme court was denied last month, but attorneys plan to take his case to the U. S. supreme court for the third time.

Twice the U. S. supreme court intervened to save the eight negroes. Once an Alabama trial judge granted them a new trial. General sentiment in Alabama, which has spent more than $50,000 in six years of litigation, is that the cases should be disposed of finally with the least possible additional delay and expense.

ON MAY 11, 1937, THE PLANET MERCURY APPEARED TO TOUCH THE RIM OF THE SUN, AND ASTRONOMERS WERE ABLE TO CONFIRM THEIR BELIEFS THAT THE TINY PLANET IS ENTIRELY WITHOUT ATMOSPHERE.

SCIENTISTS are still on the alert for any new animal that may exist, although it is generally believed that no important types of mammal remain undiscovered. New forms of reptiles come to light frequently, and one of the newest of these is the Willard's rattlesnake, which grows no larger than 15 inches in length.
