

FARMERS HOLD BIG PART OF KPCA CAPITAL

Farm member-stockholders of the Klamath Production Credit Association with headquarters at Klamath Falls, now have an ownership interest totaling $96,570.00, which is 27.8% of the total paid-in capital, in their local cooperative financing organization. It is announced by Secretary-Treasurer Lee S. McMullen.

"In other words, this is the present investment which member-stockholders hold in the KPCA," Mr. McMullen explains, "and it is worth 100 cents on the dollar."

Members become part owners of the association by subscribing for one $5 share for each $100 they borrow through their organization. This opens a permanent channel for borrowing the same amount in the future without additional investment, as long as the association's stock does not become impaired by losses.

Capital stock subscriptions are not loaned, but are invested in government bonds which are used for collateral purposes. As an additional protection to stockholders, the association has accumulated $46,455.00 in reserves out of its earnings during the past four years of operation, despite the fact that its 5 percent loan rate is the lowest in agricultural history.

The association borrows its loan funds from the investing public, through the direct intermediation of credit banks, giving members' notes as security. The credit bank in turn uses the notes as security for debentures which are sold in the open financial markets.

"Members have just cause to be proud of the steady growth and financial progress their association has made as an example of cooperative achievements," Mr. McMullen points out. "The key to continued success is a satisfactory volume of sound, self-liquidating crop and livestock loans that are mutually profitable to the borrower and to his association."

BAKER PUBLISHERS TAKE IDAHO PAPER

NAMPA, Idaho, Aug. 7 (UP)—Bernard Mainwaring and Lucien Arant, publishers of the Democrat-Herald at Baker, Ore., purchased the Nampa Free Press daily newspaper at a sheriff's sale here today for $36,600.

The only other bidder was Thomas La Fond, manager of the corporation which publishes the Free Press, whose last offer was $26,500.

The Free Press daily has been published since 1919. The sale was to satisfy creditors under first and second mortgages. It was ordered by District Judge John C. Rice of Caldwell.

Mainwaring will establish residence in Nampa and take over editorial direction of the Free Press as well as continue direction of the editorial functions of the Baker paper, the Oregon publishers announced.

Arant, residing in Baker, will manage the Democrat-Herald and devote part of his time to the Nampa paper, he said.

Mainwaring and Arant have published the Baker newspaper, an Associated Press member, the last 12 years.

Quirks in The News

By United Press
LONDON, Aug. 7 (UP)—Two inmates of a mental hospital "eloped" today. They were Ernest Hibbard, 26, and Winifred Harding, 23, whose secret romance had been going on for two years, mostly through note-passing and lip-reading in church. If they elude police for 18 days, the law requires that they will be entitled to claim freedom unless they are recaptured by the institution.

VIAREGGIO, Italy, Aug. 7 (UP)—Fishermen aboard the motorboat Padre Pietro made an unexpectedly dangerous catch today. Approaching a huge floating mass they found it to be a mine. They turned it over to military authorities.

ROME, Aug. 7 (UP)—Italy has immortalized the army mule. Alongside the busts of Italy's greatest heroes, savants and artists in the famous gardens of the Villa Borghese a bronze statue of an army mule, symbolizing all war mules in Italian service, was unveiled today.

ELKHORN, Wis., Aug. 7 (UP)—There wasn't a dentist available when James "Shamrock" Morrissey, WPA foreman, got a toothache—so he used a railroad train. Morrissey fastened one end of a 180-foot cord to the train and the other to the aching tooth. A helper braced Morrissey's head. It worked.

We have a wonderful language, but it is becoming unwieldy. It would be a good thing to call a conference of authorities and abolish some of our verbal corpses.—U. S. Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Arizona, philology expert.

Twists and Turns in The News

By The Associated Press
FRIENDLY, Va.—Prospective wrong-doers of this Ohio river town probably will think twice now before breaking the law.

Firendley's all-women administration has appointed Mrs. Joseph Cline, housewife, as the new police chief. She is six feet tall, weighs 160 pounds, and has red hair.

Her salary is only $25 a year, but she gets $1 additional for each arrest.

DELAND, Fla.—Governor Fred Cone will be notified by telegram every time a cow is involved in a Volusia county highway accident.

The Deland junior chamber of commerce is unsuccessful in its efforts to pass laws at the recent legislative session to bar cattle from Florida's roads.

Just to keep the matter before the governor, the chamber's board of directors voted last night to wire him the bad news every time a cow is bumped on the county's roads.

LINCOLN, Neb.—Leo Swanson, custodian of Nebraska's $10,000,000 capitol building, believes in making hay while the sun shines—on the capitol lawn. He estimated the blue grass would net several tons of hay.

IRONWOOD, Mich.—Hoto was pointed out today as a model dog who always gets his prey, come sewer pipes and high water.

Hoto chased a woodchuck into an eight-inch pipe which led to a street catch basin. Fifty feet in both became wedged. Howls brought the fire department.

A hose was lowered into the catch basin and pressure turned on. Out the end they entered were flushed the dog and the woodchuck. Dripping, but game, Hoto pounced on the chuck and felled it.

OMAHA, Neb.—H. A. Maher of Omaha parked his car over time and the police towed it to their garage. They asked Maher to pay $2.50 for a release. He wouldn't do it, saying the police could keep the car. He explained "it won't run anyway." Police plan to auction the vehicle.

A shipment of Literary Digests has been seized in Japan, but, anyway, they are probably welcome to all straw vote issues.

Oregon Takes Notice of Injured Reputation Due To Traffic Death Toll

By PAUL W. HARVEY, JR.
SALMON, Aug. 7 (AP)—State officials are beginning to sit up and take notice that Oregon is earning itself a black eye because of its alarming traffic accident toll.

A total of 122 persons were victims of automobile accidents during the first six months of this year, compared with 101 during the same period in 1936.

Oregon registered an 18.6 per cent increase in 1936 over 1935, the second largest increase of any state. North Dakota had an increase of 21.6 per cent, while the total percentage in the United States dropped 6.2 per cent.

Secretary of State Earl Snell's traffic safety bureau will begin to function in a few days when a program of educating drivers and prospective drivers will be inaugurated.

The education will be accomplished through newspapers, motion pictures, schools, radio, and through other sources.

State Highway Engineer R. H. Baldoock's criticism yesterday of the basic speed law is an indication that a fixed speed limit will be substituted for this law. He also pointed out more rigid law enforcement designed to trap reckless and drunken drivers, who he said cause most accidents.

Baldoock cited Evanston, Ill., which has the lowest accident rate per capita in the nation, as an example of what rigid law enforcement can do. No one escapes the tolls of the law in this city.

The total number of accidents in Oregon rose from 14,045 during the first half of 1936 to 17,128 in the first six months of this year. The number of fatal accidents in metropolitan areas increased from 37 to 42 during the two comparative periods, but in rural areas it rose from 41 to 63.

This indicates that people are more careful in city traffic than on the open highways. The locations of 23 fatal accidents in the first half of 1936 and 17 during the first half of this year were not stated.

The most dangerous time of day to drive is between 7 and 8 p.m., 14 fatal accidents having occurred at this hour during the first half of last year and 16 during the first half of this year.

CREW BUILDS FIRE BREAK IN GRASS REGION

At last, something is going to be done about the grass fires that rage each summer in the mountainous areas east of the Klamath valley from the Old Fort road to the California line.

State Forester J. W. Ferguson this week ordered a crew of eight men into the area. Fully equipped with a caterpillar and other machinery, they will start construction of a firebreak.

Work this year will probably extend from the Old Fort road, along Hogback as far as the Lakeview highway at Olney. Eventually, it is expected to extend this work to the California line, through the Stukel and Bryant mountain countries.

The eight men will set up camp at (Old) Dan Bowman is in charge of the program.

FEDERAL SURVEY ON ROGUE BEGINS

GRANTS PASS, Aug. 7 (UP)—A federal survey of the Rogue river to determine the hotly-debated effects of muddy water on aquatic life in the stream has begun, according to reports from Gold Beach. Dr. Ellis of the federal bureau of fisheries arrived at the mouth of the river early this week with assistants.

A suit for injunction to prevent Josephine county gold miners from muddying the Rogue is now on file in the Curry county circuit court, the main charge being that mud destroys fish life.

Great numbers of fish are now seen in the river near Gold Beach, the Curry County Reporter said, but few salmon have been caught. Frank Colvin said that there were more fish in Perry Hole than on the record occasion a few years ago when commercial fishermen took 1500 fish there in one night in their nets.

In recent years the government has been fighting erosion, which seems unfair. If it weren't for erosion, how would we get rid of election posters?

Life-Out-of-Death Babe At Philadelphia Held Beyond Critical Stage

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7 (AP)—Three and one-half pound Frances Mary Boccassini, who was delivered in a post-mortem caesarian operation, was declared today past the critical stage and doctors hoped to remove her soon from an oxygen tank which has aided her breathing.

Dr. William G. Turnbull, superintendent of the Philadelphia General hospital, examined records which showed the tiny girl had taken nourishment regularly during the night.

He said her temperature had fallen toward normal steadily since she was delivered in an operation yesterday one minute after her mother died.

"It looks as though she was past the critical stage as far as sudden death is concerned," Dr. Turnbull said. "If anything happens now it will be gradual."

"She is taking her food all right and her breathing is good. All she needs is a little rest," he said.
