The sixth district of the Oregon State Federation of Women's clubs will hold its annual meeting in Lakeview on October fourteenth, with the Lakeview Women's club acting as hostess group to clubwomen from Klamath, Deschutes, Curry, Harney and Lake counties, according to an announcement from Mrs. Fred A. In addition to the regular reports from club presidents, district officers and chairmen, there will be several talks. One will be on "What the Press Wants in Club Publicity Items," by Mrs. Helen Dalton of Burns; "What Women Should Know About Insurance," by Miss Katherine Gott of Lakeview, and "Latest News From the Doernbecher Hospital," by Mrs. R. C. Groesbeck of Klamath Falls. Mrs. Groesbeck is state chairman of the Doernbecher fund being raised by the federation for a perpetual bed at Doernbecher. Mrs. E. D. Lamb, state federation chairman of the division of gardening, will show slides of "National Garden Spots."

Mrs. A. C. McIntyre, state president of the Oregon federation, will be at the Lakeview meeting from Pendleton, and will be the main speaker.

Mrs. McIntyre will arrive in Klamath Falls on Wednesday evening from Portland, and will be the guest of the Klamath Falls Women's library club while in Klamath Falls. She is to be the houseguest of Mrs. R. C. Groesbeck.

Clubwomen from the Klamath Falls Women's library club, the Merrill library club, the Langell Valley Women's club and the Bonanza Women's club, plan to attend.

The Eagles auxiliary held its regular meeting Monday evening, October fourth, with all past presidents presiding.

CLEVER PROGRAM PRESENTED BY B.P.W. GROUP

An exceptionally fine program held the interest of over sixty members of the Business and Professional Women's club Monday night at Hotel Willard, when Martha McCollum, past president, and her committee were in charge of the entertainment.

C. A. Henderson, agricultural agent, gave an interesting talk on "Opportunities for Business Men and Workers in Our Community," stressing the vast labor possibilities of the three main attractions here, lumber, agriculture and recreational opportunities. He suggested the possibility of other businesses, such as factories for starch, potato chips, canning of small vegetables, sugar beets, etc., being established around the local industries.

Small white urns of Michaelmas daisies decorated the tables and a pleasant evening of singing and entertainment was enjoyed. Irma Badger led the group singing.

Two piano numbers, "American Indian Rhapsody" by Preston Ware Orem and one by Mozart were given by Stephen Sabo, Jr.

Margaret Templar, of the chamber of commerce, was a special guest of the club, and gave an entertaining talk on "Opportunities for Youth and Women in Our Community."

Especially interesting was the presentation by the committee of "A Town Meeting" with data dug up from the annals of the city back in 1889. This was contrasted sharply with the modern "City Council Meeting" of today and produced much amusement. Those taking part in the presentation, properly costumed and mustached, for 1889, were Lena Dennis, Catherine Gaylor, Ida Grimes, LeMoine Savage, June Geiger, Alice Allen and Vivian Green.

A number of discussions took place from the audience in the 1937 meeting.

Club members were reminded of the district conference to be held in Medford, October sixteenth and seventeenth, and urged to attend. Gathering at this convention will be members of the Business and Professional Women's clubs from Bend, Grants Pass, Medford, Prineville and Klamath Falls. Ann Price, of the sheriff's office, is transportation chairman and those wishing a ride or having car space should contact her.

High score was given to Mrs. Yorkland, second high to Mrs. Caseman and the traveling prize was awarded to Mrs. McPherson.

The next meeting of the club will be at the home of Mrs. Virginia Caseman on California avenue.

Benefit Party Proves Success

The benefit card party sponsored by the Friendship club Thursday evening, October seventh, was held with five tables of auction bridge, and four tables of pinocle at play.

High score in bridge was awarded to Mrs. E. E. Smith and men's high to T. J. Webb, and women's high to Mrs. J. M. Guerretias, and men's high to L. A. Eschle. Two door prizes were given, and Mrs. Rhume and Mrs. Bruce Staub were the winners.

A delicious lunch was served after the game, with Mrs. C. O. Dryden in charge.

Opening in Savannah, Georgia, on October thirteenth will be the twenty-third annual convention of the Girl Scouts to be attended by hundreds of delegates from all parts of the country. As this is the organization's silver jubilee year, a great deal of attention is centered on the meeting.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, national president of Girl Scouts, will preside at the three-day session, and a number of persons who were closely associated with Juliette Low when she founded the Girl Scout movement at Savannah twenty-five years ago, will take part in the program. One of the features will also be the unveiling and dedication of a memorial tablet to the founder.

Neighbors of Woodcraft met Wednesday evening, October sixth, at the K. C. hall. Following the business session games were played and contest game prizes were awarded to Mrs. Noy McDaniels and Mrs. Meredith Essel.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening with Mrs. C. O. Dryden, chairman in charge.

The next Woodcraft meeting will be held Wednesday evening, October twentieth, at the K. C. hall at eight o'clock. Following the business meeting a Halloween party will be held.

PARIS WEAVES NEW FABRICS FOR FALL CHIC

By ROSETTE HARGROVE NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS — Everybody's old ideas of what fabrics are must now be tossed away—higher than the tiptop of the Eiffel Tower. A new world has suddenly been created—you must excuse me if I say, out of whole cloth—and this new world is populated by the most amazing, most seductive, most incredible race of materials.

Today in Paris people have discovered that the success of their autumn wardrobe really depends on what it's made of, of, even more than on how it's designed.

Style-conscious women must give credit to the master weavers of France who have committed magic in making wools so sumptuously soft that they vie with the gayest silks and laces in luxury, and in variety of patterns and color combinations. Tweeds, checks, and plaids have gone newly tender and colorful and even plain weaves contrive, by their incredible suppleness or their rough, straw-like surfaces, to look completely different.

Colors are very new and fascinating. The scale of reds includes light bordeaux, deep burgundy, such intermediary shades as bright scarlet, not to mention fruitly raspberry, plum and the almost black reds known as black tulip or black dahlia. Navy blue has become blue black and is especially successful for evening wear, where it is as smart as black and perhaps a little less severe.

Brown has lost all of its drabness and appears as "burnt havana" (the rich brown of cigars) and khaki. Green includes the almost blackish tinge of firs and cypresses, as well as the lighter and more vivid shades.

Tweeds are soft, almost velvety, toning down the acidity of some of the colorings. Duvetyne—revised this season for formal afternoon suits and coats—wool velours and broadcloths, are miracles of suppleness and depth of color. Black lanages offer the same diversity with a wealth of diagonal weaves, diamond checks and stripes varying from the very finest pin stripe weave to the bolder, raised stripes on a plain background.

The silk manufacturers have been similarly active. Side by side with classical materials, they are offering laces in such an array of supple beauty as to leave one breathless.

Many of the new laces and broadcloths show Renaissance designs. These are also to be found in the lighter crepes and flat silks, as well as some modern patterns. Bianchini-Ferrier's gold and silver cloths literally clothe women in shining sheaths which cling to the figure like a glove. Coudurier-Fructus have produced a line of metallic silks which look like precious stones. The most arresting are a black ottoman with "precious stones" stripes, rich red ground, and a rainbow stripe featuring the same precious stone colorings.

Velvet is a worthy rival of lace, from the handsome Lyons velvet, which almost "stands alone" of our grandmother's days to the modern sheer, transparent kind. It is featured in the day-time picture as well as in the evening one, contrasted with soft tweeds or facecloth for the former and relying on its depth of coloring for the latter.

Mrs. Clark Hostess To Jolly Neighbors

ALTAMONT — The Jolly Neighbors club held its regular meeting at the home of Christina Clark at Summers school cottage. A short business meeting was held, and the rest of the afternoon was in charge of the hostesses and games were enjoyed by all. Guests of the club were: Mrs. J. G. Patterson, Mrs. Irving White, Mrs. H. P. Blanton, Mrs. A. A. Wilkerson and Mrs. Wayne Himmelwright.

Members present were: Mesdames Laura Taylor, Alice Warner, Lois Whytal, Florence Winter, Gertrude Weise, Veva Aubrey, Alma Baker, Katie Byers, Marjorie Burleigh and son, Barbara Cameron and daughter, Elsie Case, Mathilda Crapo, Amy Crapo and son, Gladys Douglas and children, Mabel Franklin and children, Margery Gregg, Dorothy Gehring, Katie Hall and Christina Clark.

Those assisting Mrs. Clark were Veta Hooten, Maude Irwin and Dorothy Gehring.

Those on the November committee are Mabel Kinsey, Elsie Longmire, Della Massey, Della Miller and Effie Paay.

ALTAMONT — A surprise birthday party was held at the O. A. Clark home at Summers school cottage in honor of Christina Clark last Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Clark was presented with a lovely birthday cake which was later served with refreshments.

Those honoring Mrs. Clark were: Mrs. Lydia Gentry, Mrs. Kate McMullan, Daisy Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gay and Mr. and Mrs. Gil Franklin.

Pinocle provided the diversion for the evening.

Altamont—Mrs. Neal Chambers, a recent bride, was complimented with a linen shower Tuesday afternoon, when Mrs. Vic Douglas and Mrs. Thelma Melton were hostesses at the Douglas home.

Mrs. Chambers was presented with many attractive gifts, and tea was served at the close of the afternoon.

Past Noble Grand Club Holds Meet

Mrs. Mary Harrison and Mrs. Jennie Hurn were hostesses at the one o'clock pot luck luncheon and meeting of the Past Noble Grand club Tuesday afternoon in the I. O. O. F. hall. Owing to the illness of the president, Mrs. Margaret Bidden, the birthday cake and gifts were not presented. A few of the members present enjoyed pinocle during the afternoon which the other members spent in a social manner.

Those present included: Mesdames Sue Morrison, Katherine House, Laura Uerling, Alice Goeller, Sadie May Rand, Alfreda Steinmetz, Cora May Kennedy, Myrtle McCullough, Irma Coker and her granddaughter, Janet Foster, and the hostesses.

Mrs. F. W. Guermann left Friday morning for her home at Burlingame, California, after a week's visit at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Kemp, of 815 East Main street. She was accompanied by her father-in-law, E. G. Guermann of Syracuse, Nebraska.

Costume Suits For Autumn

The costume suit which includes a wool dress and short fur jacket is tremendously important. Fashionables will wear it as in coolish September and brisk October days, then use the dress under a warmer, full-length coat all winter. The jacket will go over colorful prints and pastel crepes next February and March when another winter is on the wane. One of the smartest costume suits of this type includes a green wool frock, with unpressed pleats at the front, the tall, round collar of which is worn outside the round, collarless neckline of a short, boxy skunk jacket.

Mrs. Herman Schoen of Le Roy street was hostess at a bridge luncheon in honor of Mrs. Carl Frei's birthday during the past week.

Guests of the afternoon included the guest of honor, Mrs. Frei, and Mesdames Norman Say, J. Say, E. C. Schutz, Leona Manning, G. Hoffman, H. W. Leitske, Adolphs, J. Ronfeld and J. Honck.

High score went to Mrs. Hoffman and low to Mrs. Ronfeld.

Mrs. Frei received many attractive gifts.

Mrs. Hans Broadland entertained her needlework club Wednesday with a one o'clock luncheon in her home on Jef-erson street. Sewing and pleasant conversation followed luncheon which was served to the following guests: Mesdames Betty Meredith, June Mayhew, O. J. Johnson, Gls Peterson, George Niles and Fred Boner.

Mrs. Mayhew will be hostess to the group next Wednesday, when she will serve luncheon at one o'clock.

Dress in Afternoon

For the first time in years, the afternoon dress has become not only important but essential. Choose a chic, elegantly simple black silk, velvet or velveteen model, then save it for special occasions. Depend on accessories for variation. One smart shop shows a lovely, very plain two-piece black crepe and suggests hyacinth blue hat and gloves, black purse and shoes.

From the Egyptian perfume vase, which, incidentally, offers the first authentic record of perfumery, historians have been able to follow and record the designs of succeeding centuries. The first vials seen in England and the western countries were brought by the crusading knights on their return from the Orient.

Other odd perfume containers included necklaces of perfumed beads which were worn with matching perfumed finger rings. Both the necklaces and the rings had in their centers little boxes of perfume with perforated tops.
