BANKERS FLAY EXTENSION OF CHAIN SYSTEM

BOSTON, Oct. 15 (UP)—The American Bankers association closed its 63rd annual convention yesterday with declarations against further federal deficits and extension of branch banking beyond state lines.

President Orval W. Adams of Salt Lake City, Utah, in his inauguration speech, called on bankers to convince their depositors that continued deficits will curb purchasing power.

"This fact vitally affects every laboring man, every farmer, every professional and business man," he told 2000 delegates. "It determines the value of savings, of insurance policies, and even of unemployment benefits and contributions for relief. We must stimulate such an insistent public demand as will result in a balanced budget."

Adams proposed that the government take "two courageous and statesmanlike steps" to balance the budget:

1. A substantial decrease in government expenditures.
2. An increase in taxes more equitably distributed over a much broader base.

The convention adopted a resolution stating that the association believed "a return to a balanced budget should be a prime objective of a sound fiscal policy" and noting a determination to balance the budget in "recent expressions by those high in authority in the national government."

The major resolution from a banker's standpoint was that committing the association for the first time in its 62-year history to "definite opposition" to any extension of branch banking across state lines.

The resolution, climaxing a decade-long controversy between so-called country or unit bankers and big-city branch-banking advocates, was aimed at the McAdoo bill in congress which would permit establishment of branch banks across state lines but within federal reserve districts. Clarifying his position in the controversy, Adams warned "how easy it would be to create a banking monopoly once state autonomy has been thrown into discard."
