

COPS' LITTLE HELPERS
KANSAS CITY (AP)—Thomas Fisher, 11, and Richard Francis, 7, sat on a street curb playing. Their game consisted of jotting down license numbers of passing motor cars.

"This number," they told police, "was hard to get. The car was going awful fast."
 Police issued a pickup order for the car, in which three men fled a holdup scene.

OIL BURNER
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—It was a raw cold night, and Woodrow Strong hit upon the idea of warming his drafty automobile with a small oil stove perched on the back seat.

All was cozy—until the car skidded on trolley tracks, ran over the sidewalk and smashed into a lamp post. The stove tipped over, and the car's interior was burned out.

Health isn't merely something negative—the fact of not being ill; it is also positive, concerned with being well.—Julian Huxley, British biologist.
