

YUGOSLAVIA'S ATTITUDE SEEN BLOW TO AXIS

By DeWitt MacKenzie
Associated Press Writer

That's a striking show of resistance the Yugoslavs have been making to Hitler's demand that they join the axis against their friends.

If you exclude the crucial battle of Britain, the most important engagement of the European war at the moment is this battle of Yugoslavia, in which not a shot has been fired.

Certainly it furnishes one of the most fascinating psychological studies of the whole conflict. Almost you can read the mental processes of this great but peaceful Balkan state as she struggles with the momentous question of which road to take.

The alternative to joining the axis might be war to the death. The problem is whether to fight or not to fight.

Actually what Yugoslavia has to determine first is whether she can trust the axis promises of a future filled with milk and honey, or whether there is a menace in the Hitlerian drive down the Balkan peninsula. Apparently the Yugoslavs as a whole already have decided that there is a threat.

How great is it? Is it directed against sovereignty and cherished institutions which are worth fighting for—worth dying for? Has Yugoslavia obligations to her neighbors—is she her brother's keeper?

If Yugoslavia decides that she has a cause worth fighting for, she will fight. The Yugoslavs are a brave folk. By way of precaution they are rushing more men to arms, which likely means that they are crowding the million mark. There can be small doubt, too, that they have been in consultation with the Greeks, Turks and British.

It is natural that Yugoslavia should proceed cautiously, especially since she is all but surrounded by the axis powers. She realizes that upon her decision may hang not only her own fate but that of the whole position in the vital eastern Mediterranean. Should she decide to join the Anglo-allies the Balkans would flame into that second great war front which Britain desires but which Hitler has been trying to avoid.

Whatever Yugoslavia's decision may be, it won't be based on love for the reich. The Yugoslavs as a whole don't like Germany. Their memories are long and burn fiercely, and they haven't forgotten the sufferings they endured in their fight against the central powers in the World war. They haven't forgotten, either, that they owe their present great kingdom to the allies. Always they have resented the politico-economic overlordship of Germany. But there is another great reason for Yugoslav dislike of nazism. In my notes on Yugoslavia I find this, written in Belgrade on October 31, 1938:

"While the Belgrade government is friendly with Berlin, the general public is hostile to the fatherland because of its treatment of Czechoslovakia. That hostility is something for Germany to jot down for future consideration."

I should explain that the Belgrade government was "friendly with Berlin" because Prince Regent Paul (who is pro-British) had laid down a firm policy of maintaining friendly relations with all countries. Yugoslavia was bitter, however, over the crushing of her close ally.

CALIFORNIAN WARNS NATION OF DEPRESSION

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19 (UP)—A warning a serious depression may follow the national defense boom was given the California Association of Employers Tuesday by Alfred J. Lundberg, president of the California state chamber of commerce.

"Stimulation of business from defense operations is a purely artificial stimulation," he told the delegates from California and Nevada. "It is no permanent cure of the economic diseases from which we are suffering. Unless the diseases are cured, the depression that will surely follow the defense boom—if there be one—will be a depression that will make 1933 look like boom times," Lundberg said.

Earl G. Callender, Watson-

Frank Peyton, re-elected president; Mrs. Paul Winters, vice president; Mrs. Matt Kohn Jr., secretary; and Henrietta Ekern, treasurer.

Plans were made for a rummage sale to be held by this PTA on March 29, which will be under the direction of Mrs. Burge Mason Jr.

The afternoon's program consisted of two numbers by the sixth grade chorus and octette, with Richard Yates as soloist, and two violin selections by Ethel Mae Skinner, accompanied by Connie Hunt. Tea was served by Mrs. Landrum, assisted by the fifth grade girls.

PORTLAND, March 19 (AP)—A 48-hour week will go into effect at once on WPA projects certified as national defense construction jobs, E. J. Griffith, state administrator, said today.

Griffith said increased working hours would average from 20 to 60 per cent more, affecting 200,000 workmen at present employed in a work-week of 30 to 40 hours.
