

QUEEN CROWNED AT GOLD, GREEN BALL

The Southern Oregon Gold and Green ball, annual pageant held in each Mormon community, was observed Saturday night in Legion hall with a background of gold and green symbolizing "light" and "growth." Jimmie Dee Rink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Rink of Klamath Falls, was crowned queen in a simple but colorful ceremony by Nicholas G. Smith, president of Northwestern States Mormon mission.

More than 100 couples from southern Oregon attended the dance, representing Medford, Bend, Burns and Klamath Falls.

Judges were Malcolm Epley, Walter Eschebeck, and H. J. Hendrickson. Ribbons formed a lane the length of the hall through which walked the queen candidates, now princesses of the court, Elsie Langston of Medford, Melba Westenskow of Burns, and Molly Harris of Bend, followed by little Arlene Robinson, flower girl, and Master Robert Wilson, bearing the crown. Queen Jimmie Dee then approached the throne where she received the crown as queen of the eighth annual Gold and Green ball held in this city.

The "Gleam Waltz," demonstration dance, from which medium of the church 200 finished dancers are picked each year for a massive spectacle at Saltair in Salt Lake City, was performed at 11 o'clock by chosen couples from southern Oregon branches.

Five Residents To Attend State TB Meeting

The annual Oregon State tuberculosis association meeting in Portland March 27 and 28, will be attended by five Klamath county residents, vitally interested in the work of the organization in this section of the state.

Leaving Wednesday afternoon will be Dr. Peter H. Rozendal, Klamath county health officer; Mrs. Burt E. Hawkins, chairman of the Klamath county seal sale; Mrs. Myrtle Caldwell and Mrs. Lydia Fricke Howard, members of the public health nursing staff, and Paul Roberts, president of the Klamath County Public Health association.

Health Association Elects Founders to Attend Meet

Three of the founders of the Klamath County Public Health association, Mrs. Burt E. Hawkins, Mrs. Lydia Fricke Howard and Fred Fleet, were elected at a meeting of the association's executive board held Friday evening, March 21, at the health unit to attend the state meeting of the Oregon Tuberculosis association.

The 25th anniversary of the founding of the Oregon association will be observed at the convention to be held in Portland March 27 and 28. R. Paul Roberts, president of the Klamath association, will preside at the Friday morning session in Portland. Rev. E. V. Haynes, chairman of the visual education committee for Klamath county, and Dr. P. H. Rozendal, county health officer, will also attend the state meet.

The executive board gave a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Hawkins, county seal sale chairman, for her most efficient and well handled seal sale campaign which took Klamath over the $2500 goal for the first time.

A small fund was donated by members of the board to provide refreshments at the open house at the health unit on April 24, which will be one of the features of the Early Diagnosis campaign during April. Mrs. Robert C. Hart is chairman of the campaign for Klamath county, assisted by Mrs. D. L. McLucas and Mrs. Burge Mason Jr. Mrs. Mahr Reymers is in charge of arrangements for the open house.

Mrs. Nelson Reed was elected to the office of director on the state association, representing Klamath county, to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Mrs. Neal Stewart.

A brief narrative report of some of the activities of the Klamath County Public Health association during 1940 was presented by the president at the Friday night meeting as follows:

Installation of the x-ray machine, donated to the association, was completed. A total of 110 x-rays were taken and in addition to this the x-ray was used in pneumo-thorax work, and the fluoroscope was used at various times.

Eight individuals were admitted to the sanitarium from Klamath county; 16 were admitted to medical service and 178 were admitted to nurse service.

A total of 328 tuberculin skin tests were made, most of them among school children, and 51 positive reactors were discovered.

Two chest clinics of two days each were held under the direction of Dr. Gevurtz, one day each being spent at Klamath Falls and at the Klamath Agency hospital. A total of 250 individuals were examined at these clinics.

During the year there was considerable difficulty experienced by the county health department and the county health board in obtaining adequate funds for maintaining a county sanitarium. After due consideration, the health association agreed to underwrite this program for the year 1940-41 to the extent of $300 if the county court found that sufficient funds were not available.

The health education committee, under the direction of Rev. E. V. Haynes, past president, was active throughout the year, and many showings of the 16mm silent picture were arranged in the county schools. It is estimated that at least 2400 school children and adults saw this picture. There was also wide distribution of tuberculosis control literature.

Christmas boxes for Klamath county patients at the sanitarium were financed, work of purchasing gifts and preparing the boxes being managed by the Girl Scout troop at Modoc Point under the direction of Mrs. D. B. Savage.

Under the direction of Mrs. Burt E. Hawkins, a successful seal sale resulted from all these activities, with the receipts totaling more than $2500, of which 75 per cent will be retained for work by the Klamath association.

GOVERNOR SIGNS VOCATIONAL BILL

SALEM, March 26 (AP)—Governor Charles A. Sprague signed Tuesday a measure to authorize the staff board of vocational education to establish regional vocational schools and to expand the scope of existing vocational schools.

The measure will not become operative until funds are provided. One-sixth of the $1,900,000 which would be raised by the two-cent per package cigarette tax measure, still awaiting executive action, is earmarked for the trade schools.

FOREST HIGHWAYS HIT BY DEFENSE

PORTLAND, March 26 (AP)—National forestry highway work totaling about $250,000 in Oregon will be delayed by diversion funds to military roads. William H. Lynch, public roads administration district engineer, and H. D. Farmer, forest highway engineer, told the state road commission here.

The commission refused permission for C. I. Good of Eugene to move a 12-ton boat over the Siuslaw highway, from Eugene to the Siuslaw river at Mapleton, a distance of 87 miles.

R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer, recalling that Good was allowed to move a smaller vessel once before, asserted, "He'll start building sub chasers next."

"If we set a precedent here, then he'll go into the shipbuilding business in Eugene. That's no place for shipbuilding," commented Henry F. Cabell, commission chairman, who proposed that Good "explore the possibilities" of going to the ocean via the Willamette river or using the railroad.

A proposal that the forest service illuminate Multnomah falls at night was made by the commission. The service has jurisdiction over the falls.

Baldock reported that a re-routing of the old Oregon Trail highway through Ontario would cost $34,000. The commission said it would study the possibility of getting federal funds for the project.

Cabell and Baldock will leave Wednesday to inspect roads leading to the new Hermiston munitions dump and Pendleton army air field. They also will attend the Old Oregon Trail association meeting at Pendleton Thursday.

Let me make it clear that the nation is calling for the sacrifice of some privilege but not for the sacrifice of fundamental rights. — President Roosevelt.
