GREEK LEADER KORIZIS DIES; WAR GOES ON

said to have repulsed waves of German assaults.

Panzers Thrown Back

In the Grevena sector, 60 or 70 miles into Greece, below the Vistritsa river, the German "panzer" forces were said officially to have been hurled back while the British positions around Mount Olympus on the eastern hinge of the line likewise held firm.

Greek officials were cheered by news of the rugged stand around Grevena—key point of the battle of Greece whose fury is mounting hour by hour—and word of unwavering resistance.

The telephone exchange at Kalabaka, railroad terminus 30 miles south of Grevena which the nazis are trying to erach in a great drive toward Larissa to entrap the British at Mount Olympus ,said that on Thursday night and early Friday the Germans had "not been seen anywhere in the vicinity of Grevena."

It was admitted officially, however, that in their desperate Kalabaka, the Greek army had of the nazi forces down toward effort to stem the deep sweep been compelled to abandon virtually all of its battle-won territory in Albania to the Italians.

as far as Berlin's outer anti-aircraft barrage," said the daily communique, adding that "single planes succeeded in pushing through the fire belt to the city center."

While the British were striking, the luftwaffe was delivering another strong blow at the British south naval base at Portsmouth, the high command said, and heavy damage was declared done to the harbor area and docks with high explosives and incendiaries.

NAZIS ANGERED

BERLIN, April 18 (UP)—German quarters, angered by the latest British raid on Berlin, said tonight that Britain could expect "no intermission" in the crushing blows of the nazi war machine after the end of the war in the Balkans.

a well. The motion also charged he had been struck with a large stick of wood.

In answer, Mrs. Stevens, represented by Attorney Maynard Wilson, made general denial of these charges, and was expected to take the stand in circuit court to answer the allegations made in behalf of the motion.

In court Friday morning, Attorney O'Neill read depositions from Helen Felt, sister of Mrs. Stevens, and A. H. Felt, her brother-in-law. The Felts live at Tacoma.

In the deposition, which was received as a part of the court record, Mrs. Felt said that Mrs. Stevens called the boy vulgar and obscene names, hit him with "anything handy" and threw him against a wall She asserted the boy's health was impaired by incorrect diet. Mrs. Felt also asserted Mrs. Stevens had told her she put the boy down a well to punish him.

When the Stevens were divorced in court, custody of the boy was awarded his mother. The father, Albert Enson, lives at Chiloquin.

Investigation Made

Circuit Judge Vandenberg, acting as juvenile judge, a few days ago ordered an investigation by Gerald Murray, juvenile officer, whose report of interviews at Crescent was taken into the record. The interviews showed further evidence of the use of violent language and severe treatment of the child, although a school official said he came to school clean and his lunches were good.

Murray said the "well" in which the boy was allegedly placed was a sort of cellar with a wooden cover on the entrance.

MONDAY FIXED FOR SENTENCE

District Attorney L. Orth Sisemore collaborated with Van Vactor in the prosecution.

J. C. O'Neill and E. E. Driscoll, Anderson's counsel, have not indicated as yet whether an appeal will be taken from the circuit court conviction.

Anderson was returned to the county jail, where he has been held since the day after the body of Zulkoski, an employe of Buck Anderson, was found beside the highway.

SOLID DEFENSE LINES FORMED AFTER LOSSES

German infantry, attacking with almost suicidal violence, drove the allies back to a new shorter line of defense in northern Greece Friday, and front-line observers declared that if Greece is saved it will be by "a second Thermopylae."

Thermopylae — literally "the hot gates" — is the mountain pass into southern Greece where Leonidas and his 300 Spartans made an historic stand against Persian hordes in 480 B C.

Line Intact

Dispatches from the fighting zone said Hitler's blitzkrieg armies have not broken through the allied front to the plains of Thessaly but the British admitted that the arrival of vast numbers of German reinforcements flooding down from the north—presumably from fallen Yugoslavia—had forced the allies to reform their lines deeper in Greece.

It was apparent that the 13-day-old battle of the Balkans was fast approaching a climax.

British middle east headquarters, acknowledging the allied retreat deeper into the Aegean kingdom, declared however that the German advance had involved a "costly" toll.

Some estimates put the nazi dead at 50,000.

Near Porto Edda

Premier Mussolini's high command said the Greek left wing was crumbling, with the Greeks falling back along the Adriatic sea coast in disorder while fascist columns swept successively into Argirocastro, Premet and Porto Palermo.

The official Italian news agency said il duce's armies were in sight of Porto Edda — named after Mussolini's daughter—which is the last Albanian port held by the Greeks.

Dispatches from Athens said at least 10 German divisions—about 120,000 troops — were slashing at the allied lines, supported by more than 1000 warplanes.

Australian, New Zealand and other British troops fighting in the Mt. Olympus sector were reported under terrific aerial bombardment, while on the west flank, nazi panzer columns knifing down the Greek-Albanian border placed the Greeks in new jeopardy.

Yugoslavia's struggle was pronounced ended.

Hitler's high command said surviving troops of Yugoslavia's 1,200,000-man army surrendered unconditionally, effective at noon (3 a. m. EST) after 12 days of fighting.

By contrast, Holland lasted only five days against the nazi blitzkrieg last year, Poland 18, Belgium 19, and France 45.

Authoritative quarters in London acknowledged that the situation in Greece was "serious" but declared that the British-Greek line had not been pierced.

Eye-witness accounts from the battlefront said waves of German soldiers, supported by screaming dive-bombers, were being hurled incessantly at the allied defense lines with a staggering loss of life.

Hitler's high command said 17,000 prisoners had been taken on the Greek front and that the battle was going successfully for Germany despite "the most difficult terrain and weather conditions."

Front-line advices declared that nazi bodies were piled high, with the German high command still plunging fresh and seemingly inexhaustible divisions of men and machines into the assault.

A British officer, describing the stand of a famous British Hussar regiment in a mountain pass, commented:

"The Germans sent their infantry up the hill four deep. We mowed them down the first three rows, but ran out of bullets when the fourth wave came."

schools already in operation throughout the state.

Although no job guarantee is promised on completion of what will be a six to eight weeks course, it was noted that virtually all "graduates" of currently-operating schools have been snatched up by the booming aircraft industry.

Deadline Set

Paul Landry, member of the committee which includes Keith Ambrose as chairman, Harry Panning, Gene Hooker and Tracy Starr, said that as yet no class periods have been set but will be as soon as applications are in.

Applicants, who must be high school graduates and citizens of the United States, must turn in their petitions for membership in the class by next Wednesday, April 23. They must bring with them either their social security card or number.

Pre-Tests Set

Almeter stated definitely that applications must be in by Wednesday when a representative of Lockheed Aircraft company will be in the city to pre-test prospective students on their adaptability to the work. All applications must be turned in to Almeter at the Oregon State Employment service at Third and Main street.

According to Principal Lloyd Emery of the high school, both the equipment and instructor for the school will be here next Monday.

The class is open to anyone in the Klamath country, whether employed or not. Plans for subsistence for unemployed out-of-town residents between the ages of 17 and 24 are being worked out, Almeter stated.

Auto Strike Threatened In Michigan and additional vacation allowances.

Negotiations toward a new contract have been underway for several weeks. The present agreement covers more than 60 widely scattered plants employing 160,000 men.

Thomas said that if a strike should be called in the Michigan plants, similar action probably would be taken in other GMC units.

The United Automobile Workers concluded only last Friday a strike against the Ford Motor company's River Rouge plant.

Leaders of the union declared that if a strike were called, it would be organized so as not to interfere with defense contracts. The company announced last night it was "months ahead of schedule" on a $61,000,000 order for machine guns being manufactured at four plants in Michigan, Ohio and New York.

Germans Hurl Huge Forces, Says Writer

Larisa today is a ghastly parody of a city.

The famous British Hussar regiment resisted to the last round in a pass.

"After a tank attack, the Germans sent their infantry up the hill four deep," an officer told me. "We mowed down the first three rows but ran out of bullets when the fourth came."
