SCOUT EMERGENCY CORPS ORGANIZED

The first meeting of the Emergency Service corps, a new group affiliated with the Boy Scouts of America, will be held Wednesday night at the Fremont school, Scout headquarters announced Tuesday.

Membership in the organization is open to all boys who are or have been scouts and are over 14 years of age.

The meeting brings to a realization plans which have been in the making for some time in Klamath Falls. While the Emergency Service corps has been increasingly active in establishing local groups in the east and midwest, it is only recently, according to Scout Executive Dwight Gilchrist, that interest on the west coast has begun to rise.

Proceedings will start at 7:30 under the direction of Howard Boyd.

56 CCC Camps in Oregon to Operate in Final Quarter

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—The civilian conservation corps began the final quarter of the current fiscal year, April 1-June 30, with 56 camps assigned for operation in Oregon.

James J. McEntee, corps director, said about 11,200 CCC men would work on conservation projects in the state, 3400 on national forest projects, 400 on state forests, 1200 on erosion control, 400 at the Malheur migratory bird refuge, 200 at the Hart mountain antelope refuge, 1800 on range rehabilitation, 1200 on federal reclamation, 1000 on the public domain on projects under technical supervision of the land office, 400 in state parks, and 400 in Crater Lake national park.

The spring operating program calls for the opening of one new camp, the reestablishment of nine camps, seven of which are at previously occupied summer work locations, and the closing of 13 camps. The new camp is the Siuslaw national forest in Lincoln county near Waldport. Reestablished camps included one in the Fremont national forest in Lake county, one in the Umatilla forest near Weston, Wallawa national forest near Enterprise, Mt. Hood national forest near Government camp, one in the public domain in Jordan valley in Malheur county, two in federal reclamation project work in Deschutes county near Lapine, two in Crater Lake national park near Union creek.

Interesting Notes of Herald and News Advertisers, Their Products and Activities

Allen Otto, sales manager of the Earl Smith Pontiac, local Pontiac dealers, has returned from Detroit and Pontiac, Mich., where he was the guest of the company executives at a two-day merchandising and sales conference, April 21 and 22. Otto was one of 48 Pontiac dealers' sales managers who were given the trip to the factory as part of their awards for being the leading sales managers in each of the company's 24 zones during a recent 60-day "ring the bell" campaign.

The local Pontiac man attained the remarkable record of making 172.0 per cent of the quota set up for his dealership during the campaign. "I found Pontiac a beehive of industry," said Otto, "with the factory straining every ounce of effort to turn out enough cars to keep up with orders that are piling in every day."

"Almost every phase of advertising, new and used car selling, service, parts and business management were discussed at the meeting," said Otto, "and the newest ideas available were given a thorough airing during the business meetings Monday, April 21."

Well Known Ashland Man Dies Saturday

Wilson Marshall Barber, well-known operator of an Ashland convalescent home, passed away at his residence in Ashland on the morning of April 28. He and his family were old settlers in southern Oregon and had many friends in Klamath Falls. He was born in Cambridge, Ohio, in 1863. Before coming to Ashland in 1910, he owned and edited the "Greensboro Patriot," the oldest newspaper in the state of North Carolina. In Ashland he operated the Barber Convalescent home.

He is survived by his wife, Mabel, of Ashland; four daughters, Mrs. Lucile Hazelton and Mrs. Gertrude Fraley, both of Alameda, California, Mrs. Josephine Talent, Washington, D. C., Mrs. Mildred Harmsen, formerly of Ashland now living in Union, Oregon; and one son, Marshall, of Grants Pass. Thirteen grandchildren also survive him.

A private funeral service and cremation were held in Grants Pass, in charge of the Litwiller Funeral Home.

COFFEE, TEA TAX OPPOSED BY SECRETARY

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau said Monday that proposals to tax coffee, tea and sugar would tax "the poor man's table."

He told a press conference that suggestions for taxing these items made last week by tax experts of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue went "against everything this administration has stood for."

"I don't see how they could have picked any worse things to tax," he said.

"The time may come when we will have to do it, but it certainly is not necessary this year."

Morgenthau said he was talking for the treasury and was 99 per cent sure that he was also voicing the sentiments of the administration.

The committee experts suggested the coffee-tea-sugar taxes as part of a general alternative to the treasury's $3,600,000,000 tax plan.

The treasury proposed stiff surtaxes on individual and corporate income, higher gift and estate taxes and increased taxes on liquor, tobacco, automobiles, gasoline, radios, etc.

A proposal that congress "dig down" to impose income taxes on persons with smaller incomes than are now taxed was made by M. L. Seidman, chairman of the New York board of trade taxation committee.

Seidman, a witness for public interests, suggested to the house ways and means committee that income tax exemptions be $500 for single persons, $1000 for married couples and $250 for each dependant.

Present law allows exemptions of $800 for single persons, $2000 for married couples and $400 for each dependant.

The treasury, in suggestions for raising $3,600,000,000 in new revenue proposed no change but suggested a new system of surtaxes which would boost the tax payments of all present income taxpayers.

Seidman contended that failure to lower exemptions would permit three-quarters of the national income to "escape" the increased taxation. He described lowering of exemptions as "a bitter pill to swallow politically" and added "the line of least resistance is in additional hidden excise taxes."

John V. Lawrence, general manager for the American Trucking associations, told the committee that increase of the federal gasoline tax by one cent, to 2 1/2 cents a gallon, would possibly curtail use of motor vehicles and reduce revenues.

Seidman opposed a proposed tax of two cents on each bank check, suggested a revamping of the excess profits tax rate schedule and changes in exemptions for corporations and urged that even if rates must be raised "don't let us pretend to tax excess profits when, in fact, we are taking normal profits."

Earlier congressional circles heard that the National Association of Manufacturers, representing a big segment of American industry, was ready to endorse the treasury's new revenue goal.

CORNERSTONE LAID AT NEW RESCUE HOME

The cornerstone of the Klamath Union Rescue mission on Owens street was laid early Sunday afternoon before a large group of interested men and women. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. J. Clarence Orr, pastor of Immanuel Baptist church.

Music was provided by the brass quartet and organ of the Apostolic Faith. Dr. A. Theodore Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, offered prayer followed by singing led by Rev. D. B. Anderson of the Klamath Temple.

The 118th Psalm was read by E. E. Einarsson of the Gideons. George Grizzle was introduced and spoke of the benefits Klamath Falls would receive from the mission. W. A. Sellwood, mission superintendent, discussed the progress of construction. Art Holder and James Joice, transients who have worked continuously without pay on the mission building since it was started, were introduced and their work commended.

Dr. C. B. Cassel, chairman of the mission board, placed a copper box of records, gift of the West Sheet Metal works, and laid the cornerstone of marble, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Grizzle. A short address followed by Rev. Cecil Brown, pastor of the First Baptist church with benediction.

The Corner Radio company placed a loud speaker at the mission in order the ceremony could be heard by all attending.

"For a number of years it has been the desire and hope of most of the pastors and congregations of the city, as well as a large number of businessmen and women including the county court, city council, and business houses, that provision be made to care for transients in our city," said Sellwood, mission superintendent.

The mission will fill a place by reaching a great many strangers.

ers who need a place to worship, Sellwood remarked. Transients also will find a place to be fed, house, and facilities to bathe and wash their clothes. In cooperation with the different pastors of the local churches, a service will be held each evening.

Of the nearly 21 billion gallons of gasoline used in motor vehicles on the highways, private and commercial motorists consumed 97.4 per cent.
