British garrison under bombardment there for four days.
On the axis side, the side on which the Baghdad government has aligned itself, spokesmen claimed Habbaniya had fallen to Iraq soldiers. Basra, key base, also was reported "completely encircled."
Turkey and Egypt were reported to be trying to settle the dispute, throwing Moslem influence into an effort to bring London and Baghdad into accord on terms.
Beirut reports claimed the shooting down of two British troop-carrying planes, killing at least 37, and the desertion of British imperial troops to Iraq.

CITY BRIEFS

Resumes Position—Mrs. Don Golding has resumed her position as clerk in the US reclamation offices following a week's illness when she was confined to her home in the Audley.

Fire Alarms—The city fire department answered a call at 5:10 p. m. Sunday to the Paul Lambert residence, 226 South Fourth street, where a flue fire was reported. There was no damage. The department was called to the Kerns Implement company, 216 Elm street, at 10:13 a. m. Monday when fire in a truck was started by a welding torch. Slight damage was done to the truck.

Neck Injured—F. J. "Tex" DuVal, laborer employed on the Conifer Lumber company plant on the Weed highway, suffered painful neck injuries late Monday morning. He was rushed to Klamath Valley hospital where his condition was said to be good later in the day.

U. S. READY TO 'FIGHT' AGAIN, F. R. ASSERTS

"By this action we are bearing true witness to the faith that is in us—a simple faith in the freedom of democracy in the world."
"It is the kind of faith for which we have fought before, for the existence of which we are ever ready to fight again."
Woodrow Wilson's career, the president said, "was a triumph of the spiritual over the sordid forces of brute strength" and he declared that "physical strength can never permanently withstand the impact of spiritual force."
Furthermore, he said, Wilson "taught that democracy could not survive in isolation. We applaud his judgment and his faith."
Support Seen
Indications of increasing support for proposals to assure delivery of war supplies to Britain appeared in two quarters here.
Wendell L. Wilkie, the republican leader, declared that "we should protect our cargoes of arms and food to England," and he characterized the operations of the United States neutrality patrol—as designed to provide safe lanes in the western Atlantic—as inadequate.

F. R. DEMANDS SUPREMACY IN AIR STRENGTH

The axis aerial challenge must be met in kind and bettered.
"The effective defense of this country and the vital defense of other democratic nations requires that there be a substantial increase in heavy bomber production," he wrote. "To this end will you take whatever action that is needed, including the procurement of aircraft, to obtain substantially the production rate which I am indicating to you in a private memorandum."
The order came less than a week after Mr. Roosevelt directed the maritime commission to pool 2,000,000 tons of shipping to aid Britain. It likewise followed extension of the U. S. neutrality patrol far out in the Atlantic.

Thus, his latest action was taken as an indication that British prosecution of the war by air is no less important than maintaining the British supply lines across the Atlantic.
Heavy bombers are especially suited to long-range operations.
It was recalled that British Prime Minister Winston Churchill said recently that Britain would have to carry an aerial counter-offensive to Germany.
"I am fully aware of the fact that increasing the number of our heavy bombers will mean a great strain upon our production effort," Mr. Roosevelt wrote. "It will mean a large expansion of plant facilities and the utilization of existing factories not now engaged in making munitions."
He sent copies of the letter to Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, OPM Director General William S. Knudsen and co-Director Sidney Hillman.

31 ENROLLED IN FLIGHT TRAINING

Thirty-one have started in the civilian pilot training classes here, but it is still possible to get into the courses being offered under Wilbert Carter, it was reported at the chamber of commerce Monday.

Persons wishing to enter the classes should go to the Fremont school any evening this week, except Saturday or should call at the chamber of commerce.
First work is in the ground school, where students study meteorology, regulations and navigation. About 20 per cent of those in the ground school will be given flight instruction.

DISPUTES STILL ON IN 3 LABOR CASES

Labor activity in the Klamath basin maintained a simmering pace Monday on three fronts.
Most active, and threatening to become statewide proportions, was the strike of AFL truck drivers at the Pacific Fruit and Produce company on Spring street. Prolonged negotiation in Portland had failed to produce a settlement by Monday noon and it was rumored truckers of other Pacific Fruit branches throughout Oregon may be pulled out.

In a third sector William A. Babcock Jr., National Labor Relations board attorney from Seattle, arrived in the city to conduct a board hearing Thursday on CIO charges that the Hosley Logging company of Chiloquin is sponsoring a company union.

TWO SHEET METAL CLASSES STARTED

An inaugural brace of aviation sheet metal classes Monday began actual operation in Klamath High school classrooms, according to an announcement by the Klamath defense training committee.

Twenty students appeared at 10 a. m. for the opening of the first class under the guidance of instructor John Carruthers of Salem. The second was to get under way at six Monday evening with an equal number of youths enrolled. Class periods will be from 10 to 4:30 and 6 to 12 each day.

Although many more than 40 Klamath youths have applied for admittance into the course, the present schedule can not accommodate more, it was said. More classes will be started as soon as they can be arranged.
