Smorgasbord Strictly Scandinavian Feast; Date Set Saturday

A smorgasbord is strictly a Scandinavian feast. Its origin dates back many centuries. It consists of many delicacies that are usually served before the entire or main dishes. It is told of a couple of tourists who visited Sweden that they went into a restaurant to have dinner. The inevitable smorgasbord was on hand. After eating heartily from the delicacies of the smorgasbord they called the waitress and asked for the bill. In surprise the waitress exclaimed: "But you gentlemen ordered a dinner, and you have not eaten as yet; you have only had the appetizers."

The Ladies' Aid of the First Covenant church is planning on having a smorgasbord on Saturday, May 10. It was originally planned for the following Sunday, but has been moved ahead a week. Serving will be from 6 to 8 p. m.

The menu for the dinner includes the following Scandinavian and other dishes: inlagd sill, salsalad, potato salad, Swedish baked beans, risgröns pudding, kalv sylta, rulsylta, kott sylta, Swedish meatballs and other assorted cold meats, assorted cheese, jellies, pickles, rye bread, white bread and hard tack, Swedish home made cookies and coffee.

The First Covenant church is located at 823 Walnut avenue. The general public is invited to attend the smorgasbord. The sewing circle will sponsor a needlework sale simultaneously.

Lack of Ships Hits Lumber Area, Claim

PORTLAND, Ore., May 6 (AP) — Transfer of more ships from inter-coastal trade will cripple the Pacific Northwest lumber industry, Hillman Luendemann predicted yesterday.

A shortage already has been felt, the northwest vice president of the Pope & Talbot Lumber company and McCormick Steamship company said. Lumber firms might have to cut production in half if shipping facilities are further reduced, he warned.

Temporary closure of one Grays Harbor, Wash., mill and discontinuance of night shifts at three others was blamed on the shipping situation.

Lamp of Justice Still Bright in U. S., Says Hughes

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP) — Chief Justice Hughes said today that the people of the United States "are engaged in harnessing our national power for the defense of our way of life" but that this way of life "is worth while only because it is the pathway of the just."

Addressing the annual session of the American law institute, the chief justice pointed out that "the lamps of justice are dimmed or have wholly gone out in many parts of the earth, but these lights are still shining brightly here."

"It is our high privilege, although our task may seem prosaic," he added, "to strengthen the defenses of democracy by commanding to public confidence and esteem the working of the institutions of justice in both state and nation."

The chief justice said the administrative office of the United States courts, the law institute and other organizations were doing excellent work in improving the efficiency of the courts.

"Democracy cannot escape its pressure groups," he said. "Each interest has its imperious demands. These groups compete in the market place, in the forums of public opinion, in popular elections, and in our legislative halls, but they have no place in the halls of judicial administration."

Pegler Awarded Pulitzer Prize for Labor Articles

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP) — Westbrook Pegler, columnist for the New York World-Telegram, today was awarded a Pulitzer prize of $1000 for "articles on scandals in the ranks of organized labor, which led to the expulsion and conviction of George Scallie."

Pegler's award was in the "distinguished example of a reporter's work" classification.

The Pulitzer prize trustees made no award in the category of "distinguished novel" published during 1940 by an American author. No explanation was made.

The $1000 prize for the original American play performed in New York went to Robert E. Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night."

Other journalism awards went to Reuben Maury of the New York Daily News, $500 for distinguished editorial writing, and

Jacob Burck of the Chicago Times, a like amount for distinguished cartooning, specifically for a cartoon entitled "If I Should Die Before I Wake," published June 2, 1940.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch received a $500 gold medal for "the most distinguished and meritorious public service rendered by an American newspaper during the year."

A special citation was given the New York Times "for the public educational values of its foreign news reports."

It was decided the usual $500 award for "distinguished service as foreign or Washington correspondent" would be replaced this year by erection of a bronze plaque listing the names of newspaper, press association and syndicate reporters regularly assigned to the war zone.

Certificates of award will be presented to all reporters on the plaque.

In the field of literature $1000 awards were given to the American biography, "Jonathan Edwards," by Oia Elizabeth Winslow, and to Leonard Bacon's book of verse, "Sunderland Capture."

"The Atlantic Migration," by Marcus Lee Hansen, was given the $1000 prize for a "distinguished book of the year on the history of the United States."

The following adults and children were presented for confirmation before Bishop Remington, Mrs. J. Hardin Carter, Mrs. D. E. Van Vactor, Mrs. O. C.
