

BRITISH ARMY WITHDRAWING, SAYS REPORT

Well-informed quarters in Cairo reported Germany had not yet landed any sea-borne troops and was not using tanks.

Some improvement was reported in the situation around Retimo. But it was not clear whether German reinforcements had arrived there by air, as they did at Candia.

Authoritative quarters praised the gallant fight by the British, Australian, New Zealand and Greek defenders and emphasized the strain on empire troops was "appalling."

British reinforcements were landed on the beaches of southern Crete under cover of darkness to provide some aid for the defenders who have had no rest for days.

The royal air force made new long-range attacks on the Malmesbury air base near Crete, the spearhead of the invading army, on Monday night and Tuesday.

As the battle raged, German troop transport planes were arriving with the regularity of ferries. It was believed almost 30,000 German troops had been landed and some commentators reported Germany had three additional air-borne divisions in Greece, ready to put them into the fight.

By The Associated Press German "sky troops" have seized Crete, the capital of Crete, and smashed allied resistance in the 9-day-old struggle, the Nazi high command declared Wednesday, while Luftwaffe dive bombers frustrated a British attempt to escape by sea.

British middle east headquarters acknowledged that British troops defending Crete have been "obliged to make a further withdrawal to a more favorable position in the rear."

"Severe fighting continues," the British communique said. A series of other swift-breaking developments paced the British setback on Crete. These included: 1. Capture of Haifa ("Hell-Fire") pass in Egypt by Axis troops now striking with renewed fury toward the Suez canal.

2. Britain and her old ally, France, have met in open combat for the first time—a clash between RAF and French warplanes over Syria.

3. Germany and Italy granted France permission to build up a continental air force for "defense of empire"—apparently countering Britain's threat to attack unoccupied France if Chief of State Philippe Petain continues his active cooperation with the Reich.

Nazi Claim Victory In the critical battle of Crete, Hitler's high command asserted that allied resistance on the 160-mile-long island was crushed, with British and Greek defenders suffering heavy losses as they retreated.

Nation's Editors View F. R. Speech As War Support

(Continued from Page One) cans respond to these calls (of the president as commander-in-chief of the army and navy) or will they listen to the lullabys of wandering Aryan minstrels, the snarls of our own Lavals and Quislings, the dire forebodings of denationalized defeatists and the tinkle of Hitler's bell by which he expects to start a civil war in the United States?" (The question was left unanswered.)

THE BALTIMORE EVENING SUN (Ind.): "The powers assumed by the president under the proclamation of unlimited emergency are, of course, broad and inclusive. It is to the end that the struggle shall be successful, that the nation accepts as inevitable the president's specific assumption of powers which are latently inherent in his unique office."

WASHINGTON, D. C., POST (Ind.):—"With a full recognition of the 'sudden striking force of modern war' . . . The president last night turned commander-in-chief. He was in the role of a general who has discovered the enemy and must destroy him lest the general himself be destroyed."

ROOSEVELT TO MOVE SLOWLY IN NEXT ACTS

"Then how can we have freedom of the seas?" a reporter inquired.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that ships can be forbidden to put into ports where under the doctrine of chance they might be destroyed.

Recalling that the president had said last night in his "fireside chat" that the 1917 convoy method was outmoded, a reporter asked how the newer patrol method was more effective.

Mr. Roosevelt said he thought he had explained that last night too, when he noted that additional elements had entered into ocean shipping under wartime conditions. These, he said, are improved submarines, armed raiders, and aircraft.

On the labor front, Mr. Roosevelt said he was not making a threat, but the labor objectives of the government were clear and it was the duty of the government to work toward those objectives, so that action probably would have to be taken if labor and industry did not heed his pleas to merge minor differences in the interests of defense production.

Several times, the president dodged questions on foreign policy on grounds that the answers would provide just the information which Adolf Hitler would like to have.

He would not say whether he thought there was a need at the moment for extending the American patrol system, declaring that to be a matter of military importance.

LONDON SEES WAR PROMISE IN F. R. TALK

(Continued from Page One) sary to get war supplies to Britain. It was pointed out by the president, after saying American naval patrols already were helping to assure delivery of supplies, added United States naval and military technicians were working out additional safeguards which would be put into effect as needed.

The president's proclamation of an unlimited national emergency was welcomed here as implying further acceleration of United States production, with resulting benefits to Britain.

Finally, it was noted he committed the United States to participate in post-war settlements when he said the United States would not accept a world in which the seeds of Hitlerism might be allowed to grow again.

By The Associated Press Both axis partners were grimly silent Wednesday—officially on President Roosevelt's speech, but propaganda sources which do their bidding were allowed to hint that it may be regarded as an invitation to war.

Virginia Gayda, fascist editor who often reflects Premier Mussolini's own views, said flatly that the United States president was "preparing for aggression" against Germany and Italy.

Other fascist circles in Rome said the fireside chat, committing the United States to a policy of resisting any German attempt to gain control of the seas, virtually put the United States at war with the axis.

By late afternoon in Berlin, the German press had not disclosed to its public even that the president had spoken.

But the Dienst Aus Deutschland news commentary, which has close foreign office connections and is not for home consumption, said his address undoubtedly would receive a "decisive rejection" from the axis.

The German radio—in a broadcast also exclusively for consumption abroad—was heard by CBS in New York to denounce Mr. Roosevelt's attitude on freedom of the seas as meaning "nothing short of unlimited control by Washington" of the world's sea lanes.

In Britain and throughout her empire, the president's words were heard jubilantly.

"The axis partners were great experts in undeclared hostilities," said the London Evening Star in a full-page editorial headed "America at Action Stations." "They now have their own weapon turned against them."

5 ALCOA UNITS FAVOR STRIKES

(Continued from Page One) porary recess but were scheduled to resume June 2. President Roosevelt's unlimited emergency proclamation was utilized Wednesday night in an attempt to break the 19-day strike on $500,000,000 worth of government shipbuilding orders at San Francisco shipyards.

F. R.'s Pledge Sen. Harry Truman, (D-Mo.), asked striking AFL and CIO machinists to submit their dispute with 11 west coast ship manufacturers to federal arbitration, and return to work under Mr. Roosevelt's pledge that "labor's rights shall be respected."

Two officials of the striking AFL union, appearing before Truman's special senate defense committee at Washington, said the arbitration plan would be submitted to the strike membership without recommendation. Hub of the dispute is the machinists' demand for $1.15 per hour and double rates for overtime against $1.12 per hour and time and a half rates for overtime offered by management.

Germans Report Destroyer Hunt

The new superintendent was born on January 22, 1896, at Wittenberg, Wis. He and Mrs. Gralapp have one son, Leland Wilson Gralapp, 20.

Gralapp received his bachelor of arts degree from Willamette university in 1917, as a major in natural sciences. He was awarded a master of arts degree in educational administration by the University of California in May, 1926.

At the time of the World war he began service as sergeant of M company, Oregon national guard. In late 1917 he became a second lieutenant in the 63rd regular infantry, and in 1918 he became first lieutenant and adjutant in the 32nd machine gun battalion, 11th division.

Civic Leader The new superintendent is a member of the American Legion, Lions club and Elks club. He has served in many civic capacities at LaGrande, and is at present president of the board of trustees of the First Presbyterian church of that city.

His professional affiliations include numerous educational associations, and he has served as president of the department of superintendents of the Oregon State Teachers association, vice president of the Inland Empire Education association, and president of the Eastern Oregon Education conference.

Gralapp was selected from among 60 applicants for the local position. Of this number, 10 men were invited here by the school boards for interviews. The boards of both districts collaborated in all the interviews and in the selection of Gralapp.

Boards Agree Final action was taken by the high school board Monday evening, and on Wednesday evening the city elementary school board took the same action.

The movement to unite the administration of the schools here has been in an active stage for more than a year. Many joint meetings have been held, and the problem was discussed with prominent educational experts of the state.

Under the plan finally adopted, the two districts will retain their legal identities, due to the difficult technical problems of physical consolidation. The boards, however, will collaborate closely and operate the schools, from a practical standpoint, as a single system under the single head after July 1, 1942. Such a plan has been used successfully in other communities, according to local school officials.

21 COUNTRIES CURB EXPORTS

Production of motor fuel in 1940 totaled 614,459,000 barrels, against 611,043,000 barrels in 1939.
