

Defense Program Stand of League

Women Voters Announce Platform in Interesting Paper Distributed by National Organization

Of interest to members of the Klamath Falls League of Women Voters is the following announcement and stand on the defense program in which the Klamath chapter league joins other leagues throughout the country.

In an all-out drive to make the present United States production program succeed the National League of Women Voters will initiate an immediate nationwide campaign to arouse public demand to "Win the Battle of Production." The campaign plan, based on recognition of "the grave threat to democracy and American security brought about by continued aggression," was adopted at the league's general council session in Washington, D. C. this month. At the same time the council directed the league to concentrate its efforts during the present crisis on a seven point defense program, highlighting items on the league's current program of work. Council action which called for directing "all the league's resources to promote increased understanding for the immediate need to win the battle of production," came as an outgrowth of the league's vigorous work for the passage of the lease-lend bill. The league was the first great national women's organization to give support to the measure. Pledging the League of Women Voters to do its part "to insure the success of the American policy so recently authorized by the congress, promoted by the executive, and adopted by the public," Miss Marguerite M. Wells, national president said. "The Council of the League of Women Voters has been discussing the contribution the league is particularly equipped to make today. The League of Women Voters recognizes the grave threat to democracy and to American security brought about by continued aggression. Because our form of government is being seriously challenged, the league, which has worked for 21 years to make democratic processes effective is now determined to put its understanding and experience to work in defense of that democracy. To that end the league will concentrate its efforts on an immediate campaign to arouse public demand for an all-out effort to 'win the battle of production.'"

"The American people have inaugurated a plan for defending democracy by throwing its weight on the side of those who share with us common ideals of freedom and believe in the dignity of the individual. This plan will succeed only if the people recognize the emergency, and work and sacrifice with the unity of purpose hitherto characteristic of war. The League of Women Voters has faith in the American people and in their capacity to carry out the plan they have adopted. We trust our government to find a way to make our plan effective. We reject the slander that only through a war can a people achieve a support of national unity."

The seven point defense program adopted by the general council consists of—taxation in defense, inter-American cooperation, living costs and defense, school facilities and housing in defense areas, relief in relation to defense, collective bargaining in relation to defense, and civil liberties in relation to defense. "Federal aid to public education for the defense emergency" was added as a new item to the league program after the council voted the existence of "altered conditions," a constitutional proviso for modifying the program in non convention years.
