

NAVY TO HAVE 23 NEW UNITS FOR TRAINING

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox announced today that the navy will complete in the immediate future opening 23 new schools for training enlisted men of the regular navy and the naval reserve for rating as petty officers in cooperation with the vocational education program of the U. S. office of education.

The schools are located in 12 cities—Noroton, Conn., Charleston, S. C., Indianapolis, Ind., Los Angeles, Calif., San Francisco, Calif., New York City, Boston, Mass., Chicago, Ill., Detroit, Mich., Toledo, O., St. Louis, Mo., and Bainbridge Island, Wash.

Ten basic subjects will be given in the courses. Secretary Knox pointed out that each of them will give the men enrolled excellent training for making a livelihood after leaving the naval service. The basic courses are radio, visual signalling, Diesel engine operation and maintenance, aviation machinists, aviation metalsmiths, cooks and bakers, yeomen, carpenter's mates, storekeepers and electrician's mates.

These schools are new and in addition to the schools conducted exclusively by the navy training men for specialists ratings. The regular naval service schools are being expanded to meet the demand for the additional petty officers to be required by the building of a two-ocean navy.

The navy has recently reopened one of its own big schools at Great Lakes, Ill. It has recently opened navy schools at Seattle, Wash., Jacksonville, Fla., Alameda, Calif., and at the Ford Motor company plant in Detroit, Mich. The other navy schools are at Norfolk, Va., San Diego, Calif., Pearl Harbor, T. H., New London, Conn., Washington, D. C., Long Island City, N. Y., New York City, Mare Island, Calif., Cavite, P. I., Newport, R. I., Lakehurst, N. J., Brooklyn, N. Y., El Segundo, Calif., Pensacola, Fla., Philadelphia, Pa., Bellevue, D. C., Binghamton, N. Y., Yorktown, Va., and Dahlgren, Va.

Secretary Knox pointed out the following factors:

The schools in all classes will be available to enlisted men of both the regular navy and the naval reserve.

The 23 new schools are primarily for training naval reserves, but reserves also will be assigned to the established schools operated by the navy on an equal basis with the regulars.

There is a great need for trained specialists in the expanding navy of the United States, and the navy is in a position to offer the men who enlist either for career service or emergency service, as in the case of the naval reserves, training which will prepare them for earning a livelihood in civilian life.

This is an opportunity for young men to earn while they learn. The training will be intensive, but none the less thorough. The courses in the new schools will average 16 weeks in length.

The courses in these schools are designed to give those who can qualify intensive but thorough training in theory and shop practice of the trade or craft involved. Then, of course, they obtain experience by actual work with the great variety of machinery and service demands of the navy afloat and ashore.

Because the ships of the navy are complete communities in themselves it is essential that there be an ample supply of trained specialists in virtually all lines of activity. The specialist ratings not only include techniques and operations peculiar to naval service, such as ordnance, fire control, torpedoman, and so on, but the trades and crafts followed in civilian life, such as cooking, baking, radio work, Diesel engine operation and maintenance, plumbing, printing, shipfitting, steam fitting, meteorology, hospital work, musical training for the various naval bands, photography, including motion picture taking, showing and color photography, optical instrument making and maintenance, aviation pilot training, deep sea diving, dental technician training, pharmacy, wood-working, metal working, boiler-making, pattern making, molding, welding and in fact virtually all of the trades and crafts found in any large city.

The navy is now conducting a drive to enlist 35,000 men by June 30. The navy will need the men for the increased number of vessels scheduled to join the fleet. Due to the emergency it is necessary to have more men, and the high percentage of rated men required for a modern navy creates an opportunity for advancement which should be attractive to any ambitious and able young man.

The projected enlisted strength of the navy as of July 1, 1941, is 256,000 men. Of this number, 114,422 will be petty officers. This is approximately 45 per cent of the enlisted personnel of the navy in the various ratings. The expansion program creates vacancies, and the man enlisting now has the opportunity for advancement.

In short, the navy is in the unique position of not only providing employment for young men for the navy's own need, but able to give these men training which will be of benefit to the nation by preparing the men for civilian life by giving them special training in a civilian vocation.

7 YOUTHS ENLIST FOR ARMY SERVICE

Among the recent enlistments announced by the United States army were seven youths from Klamath and vicinity. According to Lt. Col. B. H. Hensley, district recruiting officer for Oregon, the following young men applied for enlistment and were tentatively accepted by Sergeant Frank J. Huhin, at the Klamath Falls recruiting office and were then forwarded to Portland for their final examination which they passed with a high average.

Marion C. Grant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Grant, Modoc Point, for the 72nd air base group, Bakersfield, Calif. Grant is a graduate of Chiloquin high school. Roger I. Koenig, son of Mrs. Mary W. Jarvis, Bieber, Calif., for the 47th bombardment group, Fresno, Calif. Walter M. McKeen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. McKeen, Keno, for the 77th air base group, Mather field, Calif. McKeen is a graduate of Keno high school. James H. Orth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Orth, Fort Klamath, for the coast artillery, Philippines, Clinton E. Maxson, Fort Klamath, Oregon, for the coast artillery, Philippines. George E. Thompson, son of Mr.

and Mrs. Ira S. Thompson, Modoc, Ore., for the Ordnance Aviation company, at the Anchorage air base, Alaska. Noyle A. Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Wright, Tulelake, Calif., for the 684th Ordnance Aviation company, Portland, Oregon. Wright is a graduate of Tulelake high school.

According to Sergeant Frank J. Huhin, local army recruiting officer, many desirable vacancies still remain and in order to allow as many applicants as possible to qualify for the air corps, arrangements have been made for all applicants who have at least an 8th grade education to take the army classification test for entrance into the army air corps. Interested persons are invited to apply to the recruiting office in room 219 Post Office building, Klamath Falls.
