High Income Tax Hinders Luring Rich to California

By JOHN W. DUNLAP SACRAMENTO, June 5 (UP) California's high personal in-come tax, equalled only by North Dakota on the higher brackets, probably has kept away a good many wealthy perwho otherwise might have made their permanent home in

There have been several pro-posals to lower this tax, on the premise that the rich should be encouraged to live in California so the state would have the ad-vantage of large collections on the inheritance tax, gift tax, sales lax gasoline tax and other sales tax, gasoline tax and other

Apparently something will come of the idea this year, chiefly through the efforts of State Senator Clarance C. Ward of Santa Barbara, who has a reat many wealthy residents in Ward proposed a bill which would lower the income tax from the present top maximum of 15 per cent to a new high of of 15 per cent to a new high of 8 per cent, with a graduated schedule downwards. He argued it would affect only 914 persons now living in the state and would bring a loss of only $1.-800,000 annually which will be more than compensated for by increased tax collections, employment and return on the in-heritance tax."

Ward was successful in passing out his tax bill in the senate on the same day the upper house approved a resolution objecting to tax reductions at this time. He argued his measure was not a tax cut but more of an equalizer which would bring the state more revenue in the

The measure went through the assembly last weekend (May 30) without a dissenting voice and by a vote of 50 to 17. Assemblyman Alfred Robertson, also of Santa Barbara, made a fine presentation in the lower house.
