year the individual deposits in Portland banks have increased about 20 per cent. This means an increase of about $1,000,-000 in the sums deposited with the national banks, and it is estimated that only half the banking business of the towh is done by those institutions, which would make the increase of individual deposits in Portland banks since the be-10 ginning of 1899, $2,000,000. Loans and discounts have materially increased, but not in the same proportion. This indicates prosperity for the people rather than for the bankers, for it shows the people have more money than they need Hardware
