IN BRYAN'S STATE.

A dispatch from Omaha says:
"The industrial situation through this part of the Missouri valley is indicative of the general prosperity that appears to prevail throughout the entire West. Ordinarily July witnesses very little business in the commercial world among Missouri River jobbers, but this month is an exception. Wholesalers generally have scarcely had time to invoice their stocks and ascertain the extent of business for the first six months of the year."

This is the situation in Mr. Bryan's own State, and in the other States near by. It makes an effective contrast to the situation which existed in that region during the years when the policy of Free-Trade, so vigorously supported by Mr. Bryan, both in and out of Congress, was in force, and the Wilson law was exerting its blighting influence upon the industries of the country. It is pretty safe to say that the business men of Nebraska and other Missouri River Valley States will not have any use for Mr. Bryan or for any other Free-Trader in 1900.

Astor, the multi-millionaire, is not the first distinguished American to renounce his allegiance to Uncle Sam in order to become a British subject—there was Benedict Arnold.

The corn bins of Nebraska are full to overflowing, and the farmers are correspondingly happy. Now this must grate on the political nerves of that prince of demagogues, W. J. Bryan.

Binger Hermann, commissioner of the general land office, has secured out of the congressional appropriation for the survey of public lands for the coming fiscal year, an appropriation of $20,000 for the state of Oregon. This is a very liberal slice of the appropriation for this state, the apportionment for last year, which was considered very liberal, being $20,000.

What Mr. Havemeyer would like to see is the free admission of raw sugar and a good sized duty levied upon refined sugar, this giving his refineries absolute control of the American market. After crushing the domestic production, Mr. Havemeyer and his associates would certainly have a good thing. The great injustice of the present schedule lies in the fact that it enables the Southern cane growers and the Western beet sugar factories to make a profit which really ought to go into the pockets of the sugar trust. Mr. Havemeyer is a sadly abused man and the best way to do exact justice will be to carry his Free-Trade ideas a step further and admit refined sugar free.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

The Oregon boys found at every station on their progress through the state the essence of a welcome that San Francisco, with all her generosity and loyalty, could not furnish—the subtle essence generated by kindred blood and distilled by parental and fraternal love and pride. The boys are something more to the home folks than soldiers who have discharged every duty and trust for which they enlisted; they are sons and brothers, husbands and fathers, who have come back to those who loved them before they were soldiers, and to whom the glory they have won in the service of the nation is subordinate to the love to which they were born. A brave man belongs to his country in a wide sense, that insures him a demonstrative welcome on his return from arduous military duty, but he belongs to his home in the deeper sense that finds expression of welcome in tears of joy, tender embraces and fervent expressions of thankfulness for his safe return. California's welcome to the Oregon troops was all that could be desired—more than could have been expected—but that of Oregon exceeded it, in that it was a welcome to our own. The one was a greeting of grace—the other of nature and grace combined.

The town of Glen City, Pa., was the scene of wild excitement on the 21st instant, caused by a mob which attacked the house of James Paige, who wished to honor the memory of Robert G. Ingersoll by displaying a flag at half-mast from the village flagpole. The people were roused to mob violence by the Rev. Theodore Banks, who on the previous Sunday denounced agnostics and atheists in general, and Paige in particular, who, he said, was possessed of the devil. He said it was a sacrilege to use the American flag to symbolize un-Christian notions, and expressed his intention to tear the flag down or float it from the top of the pole. When he attempted to do so, Paige met him with a gun. The person spent the next two days in organizing a mob, which visited Paige's house, broke down the flagpole, broke in the doors and windows, and would have handled Paige roughly had not some persons taken him away. A person that does not know that an American citizen is as free to place a flag at half-mast for Ingersoll as he has for Talmage is a disgrace to his profession, and if he knows it and sins against his knowledge, he ought to be punished as a disorderly person. It is a greater crime to tear down the National colors than to place them at half-mast for any citizen and this Banks is not worthy of the protection afforded an American citizen.

One of the features planned for the Oregon Industrial Exposition is a reunion of all the Oregon soldiers who took part in the late war. It will bring together all the young men who saw service for their country, and give thousands of people a chance to greet and mingle with them.

It is a dull day down south when the people do not get together and lynch a few negroes. It is a sign of enterprise to see business men of a community pull together. This is what the southern colonels do soon after throwing their rope on a darkey. It may be said of the victims, also, that they have a habit of hanging together for the good of the community.—McMinnville Reporter.

A Converted Agnostic.

A special to the Chicago Chronicle from Toledo, O., says: On the evening of August 15, in the middle of the street in front of the Memorial United Brethren church, this city, the elegantly bound volumes which compose the library of Marshall O. Waggoner, formerly one of the most pronounced agnostics in the world, will be burned. He was recently converted to Christianity, and made a public declaration of faith a few weeks ago and became a member of the United Brethren church. The library is valued at several thousand dollars.

Pokegama Lumber Mill Suit Decided.

Judge Morrow has finally decided the suit of the Pokegama Sugar Pine Lumber Co. vs. The Klamath River Lumber Co., in favor of the former. The S. F. Post says the case has attracted considerable attention in lumber circles owing to the extensive plant involved in the dispute. The suit was the result of the efforts of the Klamath River Lumber Company to secure possession of a lumbering plant at Klamath, Siskiyou county, they claiming that the Pokegama Company had not lived up to the terms of a lease.

On February 24, 1897, the Klamath River Company entered into a contract with Hervey Lindley by which the two parties were to operate a mill at Klamath. Later Lindley secured a lease on the entire plant, and transferred it to the Pokegama Company. The latter concern built additional railroads and milled a large quantity of timber.

The Klamath River Company was not satisfied with the progress made, and sought to sell the plant to another concern. In February, 1898, the company sent armed men to the mills, and, according to the Pokegama Company, took forcible possession. The latter concern was unable to further operate the plant, and secured an injunction. Later, suit was brought to prevent the Klamath River Company from interfering with the operation of the plant, and Judge Morrow has decided that the Pokegama Company is entitled to the property under the terms of the lease, which is in effect until March, 1904.

SUMMONS.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Klamath. Action at law to recover money. Frank W. Morgan, Plaintiff, vs. Frank W. Morgan, the above named defendant. In the name of the State of Oregon: you are hereby required to appear and answer the petition filed against you in the above entitled action on or before Thursday the seventh day of September, 1899, being the last day of the time prescribed in the order for publication of this summons, the first publication thereof being on the 27th day of July, 1899; and if you fail to answer, for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief he seeks in his complaint herein, to-wit: For a judgment against the defendant for the sum of Two Hundred and Eighty-Four and 25/100 dollars, together with the plaintiff's costs and disbursements of said action. And for an order of the court that any property taken under attachment herein, be sold to satisfy the judgment obtained by plaintiff in said action. This summons is served by publication through the KLAMATH REPUBLICAN, by order of Hon. H. L. Benson, one of the Judges of said court, which said order was made in said action on the 26th day of July, 1899, and required that summons therein be published once a week for a period of six consecutive and successive weeks from the 27th day of July, 1899. JOHN S. ORR, Attorney for Plaintiff.
