The Note Might as Well Have Been a Piece of Wrapping Paper - He Conldn't Get It Changed-Case of Compulsory Honesty.

"I've slept under a shed with the thermometer 'way below zero," said the tramp, "and I've gone two long days with nothing to eat, but I'm telling you straight that when I once had $1,000 in my pocket I was worse off than at any other time I can remember. I had just been let out of the bridewell in Chicago, and was begging on the streets and being turned down on every hand, when I picked up a $1,000 bill on the sidewalk. I thought it was a dollar, and you bet I made a hustle to get down a side street. When I dodged into a doorway and made out that I was a thousand dollars ahead of the game the sweat started from every pore and my knees knocked together. I was regularly seasick for ten minutes and my heart thumped away until I thought it would break out.

"That $1,000 meant a heap for me. you understand, but I was so excited that it was two hours before I could do any planning. The first thing was to buy a new suit of clothes, and I entered a store and picked them out. When I exhibited that $1,000 bill the clothier ran to the door to call a policeman. I got away by a close squeeze, and then I realized the situation. Tramp that I was, I couldn't get it changed at a bank nor use it to make me more comfortable. If it had been a ten I could have got lodgings and a bed, but I'm telling you that I walked the streets as hungry as a shark, and slept at police stations and in lumber yards.

"Under the circumstances the bill might as well have been a piece of brown paper. I tried all sorts of dodgsold it for half price and been glad to, but there was no such thing as making one of the newspaper offices and looked past. The loser had advertised, and I gave up the bill. The reward was $50, and said:

Species of Gar that Makes Fishing

Dangerous Near the Aru Island. This is a fish story, but it's true, if the writings of a man who signs "F. R. G. S." after his name count for fact. We all know the "gar," a long thin gentleman like an elongated pickerel, that often occupies a stall in our fish marover twelve inches here, but at Aru, Fiji, and thereabouts they grow much larger, and the bill, armed with sharp teeth, is a weapon to be dreaded.

The fish bask habitually at the very surface of the water, and become ex-tremely excited and, in the lorger specimens, vicious at the slightest alarm.

The gentleman who describes the incident was collecting specimens of shells along the reef in the Aru Islands. natives towing the boat along the streets and by-ways. Tossing the useticed that almost invariably the large gars that were in the vicinity would start out of the water and dash away at headlong speed, glancing in and out of the water like a shot. One of the fish coming near the boat, he observed held it up as a shield, at the same time raising his club.

theless a good one, as a few moments later a native, some 300 yards to their and finding nothing in it hurled it back again. It fell with a loud crash, and almost instantly four or five gars darted away with incredible speed. Two of the largest came flying toward the bound, striking the water and glancing out again, and the native had barely time to utter a warning cry, when one of them passed directly over where his head had been a moment before. who attended it.

Most people eat more than is good for them. The stomach tries to digest all that's put into it, but if repeatedly overloaded, it goes on a strike. That's indigestion. Rich, over-sweet, indigestible food weakens the stomach and makes it unable to take care of the material put into it. More food taken into a weakened stomach than the stomach can digest, stays there, forms gases and rots, bringing on all the horrors of dyspepsia. The only way to cure dyspepsia is to clean out the digestive canal with CASCARETS. Keep it clean with Cascarets, eat light food sparingly, and give the stomach a chance to rest up and get strong again.

CASCARBTS are absolutely harmless, a purely vogetable compound. No mercurial or other mineral pill-poison in Cascarets. Cascarets promptly, effectively and permanently cure every disorder of the Stomach, Liver and Intestines. They not only cure constipation, but correct any and every form of irregularity of the bowels, including diarrhosa and dyscatery. Pleasant, palatable, potent. Taste good, do good.
