Farmers are digging, but there is a chasm in California yawning for every potato taken out of the ground in Oregon, and they are going for the purpose of trying to fill it. The California demand has already caused the price to rise from 50 to 60 cents. There are said to be a plentiful supply of potatoes in Oregon this year, however, and when digging really gets in full blast the price will come down pound. inal; Persian dates, 6@6%c per
