A Kansas paper remarks that "General Prosperity" is a Republican, consequently he is never seen about the Demo-pop camp.

Congress will begin its session next Monday. Disposition of matters pertaining to the Philippines are the questions of paramount importance.

Oregon will be the first state to hold an election next year, and being the year of the presidential campaign, men of national reputation will be sent here by both political parties to help shape the results, which will be a criterion of what will happen in this state in the fall and will be awaited with universal interest.

The latest reports concerning the Philippines is that most of the Philippine troops are scattered and many of their prominent officers have surrendered. Aguinaldo, nearly alone, has escaped to the mountains and is being vigorously pursued and, without doubt, will soon be captured. It thus appears that the Philippine war is rapidly nearing the end.

The number of depositors and amounts deposited in banks of the United States are now more than double what they were a year ago. Number of depositors in 1898, 6,708,971; deposits, $3,776,410,402. Number of depositors in 1899, 13,153,874; deposits, $7,513,954,371. This is one of the many evidences of general improvement. As a matter of truth, facts and figures show an increasing growth of prosperity with every succeeding year since the spring of '97.

The war between Great Britain and the Boers has, up to the present, not been very encouraging for the English. The English army now in South Africa is about 80,000 strong, but has thus far gained little headway in its efforts, and it begins to look as if the Boers, though fewer in numbers, might, after all, be able to maintain their independence. Their ability as fighters and their stubborn bravery have aroused the respect of even those whose hopes and sympathies are with the other side.

Despite the fact that the last state legislature refused to encourage the culture of sugar beets by turning down the bounty proposition urged by the growers of the Grande Ronde valley, and the further fact that there is a considerable decrease in acreage this year as compared with last, the sugar output of the Grande Ronde factory will this year exceed that of last by at least 50 per cent. The acreage has been reduced from 3600 to 2300. The yield per acre, however, has nearly doubled since last year. The factory is still running full blast, employing about 150 men and converting about 400 tons of beets into sugar daily. The total tonnage in beets this year will approximate 14,000 and the sugar output 3,500,000 pounds.—Jacksonville Times.

Mr. Bryan's defense of Goebel and his scheme to steal the election in Kentucky brings the popular estimate of his moral sense down to the level of the judgment which the public has placed on his financial judgment. Bryan says outright: "Goebel may represent the vicious element of my party, but he is for free silver and Aginaldo; hence it is our duty to support him in all he does for the success of our cause and to prevent interference with Aginaldo's right to be dictator of Luzon." There is no reasonable man, whatever his partisan predilections may be, who will not think that it is strange logic that upholds piracy on the ballot at home, depriving Americans of the right to speak at the polls, for the purpose of preventing American soldiers from disarming semi-barbarians who seek to kill them.—Kansas City Star (Ind.).

The trouble between the English and Boers—Dutch word for farmers—dates back to 1793, when war was declared between Great Britain and Holland, the latter country having furnished the settlers of Cape Colony, Southern Africa, in 1652. The settlers were farmers, and hence have been known as Boers. When war broke out, England took possession of South Africa and retained it until 1802, when peace was restored and the colony ceded back to Holland. In 1805, however, war was renewed between England and Holland and again Cape Colony fell into the hands of the English. This time England appointed a governor over the country, and he was so tyrannical in his treatment of the Boers that the latter became very bitter against the English. Accordingly, in 1836, several thousand Boers, in order to escape

English oppression, abandoned their farms and emigrated to the northern limit of Cape Colony, and there, a few years later, organized what is called the Transvaal Republic. In 1877 the British governor of Cape Colony declared the Transvaal a dependency of England, ostensibly to defend the little republic against the savages. This action resulted in a war between England and the Transvaal in 1880, and the outcome was the restoration of the latter's independence. Diamonds were discovered in 1869 and gold was discovered a few years later in the Transvaal. This brought to South Africa an influx of English prospectors, and the Dutch accordingly became fearful of an attempt on the part of England to annex the country. So the Transvaal authorities imposed heavy taxes on miners and exports of gold, and to this the English miners objected vigorously, calling on their government for relief. This trouble is said to be the original instigator of the present war.

THE RISE IN SILVER.

(San Francisco Bulletin.)
One of the interesting developments recently has been the pronounced advance in the price of silver bullion. As the United States is now the principal shipper of the white metal, the advance will help the total value of exports from this country. According to statistics, the exports of silver during the present year to date from London to India has increased $2,900,000 and to China $2,700,000 over the same period last year. France has also appeared in the market as a purchaser, taking upward of $2,000,000 worth for coinage purposes. The natural result of this increased demand for silver for use as money and the larger requirements of manufacturers, who are now making their holiday goods, has been the rise in commercial bar silver.

TWENTY-FIVE-CENT WOOL.

(Yreka Journal.)
Theo. Davis, the one-million-pound-in-one-lot wool buyer, has predicted 20-cent wool for 1900. "Just to illustrate how confident I am," said Davis to a Salt Lake Tribune man last week, "that wool is going to raise, I will tell you what I told a sheepman who came to me the other day to ask my advice about buying 5000 more sheep. 'Why, my dear fellow,' I said, 'buy 'em and 5000 more, and if you can't get 20 cents a pound for the clip in 1900, I'll buy your wool at that figure.' Now, what leads me to believe in my prediction is the rush of every wool-cloth producer in the country and the general reign of prosperity in all other lines. The factories are running day and night in many instances, and the drummers I meet tell me their sales are 100 per cent greater than last year and that rush orders with the factories are out of the question. When I look upon our present wave of commercial prosperity, I can't help but remember that I sat in my office for three months in 1896 without selling a pound of wool, because cash buyers could not be found and we were afraid to take paper, with the fear of free trade being foisted upon us. In contrast with that gloomy condition, take the sales of wool on the eastern markets last week—11,000,000 pounds, at prices yielding a profit to everybody concerned in the delivery of the goods. My trade motto from now on is 'Twenty-cent wool in 1900.'"
