LOCAL AND GENERAL.

The Linkville House was crowded this week by the large number who were going to or returning from the Lakeview land office.

"They are all Tongue republicans in the north end of Jackson county," according to a Beagle correspondent of the Medford Mail.

We are informed that the democrats will hold their preliminary caucus tomorrow, and their county convention for nominating county officers, on Saturday of next week.

An immense concourse of salt-water sea gulls,—ten thousand of them, more or less,—were seen over and on the lake near town, on Tuesday—sporting, fighting and making noise enough to rouse the dead. They came from the Pacific ocean, and they come in force to the lakes of Klamath county every spring, though generally not so early as they have this year.

It is reported that E. V. Carter, congressional candidate, has secured a favorable delegation to the county convention from Ashland precinct. But it is claimed that Jackson county is divided between Carter and the present incumbent. Carter is a good man and may be building for the future, but of course in his present candidacy he doesn't stand a ghost of a show of success.

Mr. Finley, the gentleman who was here last week from Wisconsin, was, among other things, looking for a suitable location for a large colony of the sturdy and energetic sons of Wisconsin. Mr. Finley was pleased with the land and the location as well as the healthy and invigorating climate. He stated that there was but one objection, and that was the difficulty of reaching outside markets, and said that if the O. M. railroad became a certainty, the colony he represented would come.

The Lakeview Examiner of last week contained an ably written editorial in behalf of the re-nomination of Hon. Thomas H. Tongue to congress. As the Examiner says, Mr. Tongue is a tried and faithful friend to the people of his district; is firm as a rock on the money question and a staunch defender of the republican administration. His consistent and useful career during his two terms in congress, admirably recommend him for re-election and the appreciative voters of the district will without doubt see that he has it.
