VOL. VI.

KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON, THURSDAY, MARCH 29, 1900.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

"Pug and the Baby" tomorrow night.

Chas. Horton, of Poe Valley, visited this place this week.

Henry Duncan and wife, of Langell Valley, are in town to-day.

John Hibbard and Rufus Styles of Swan Lake, were in town yesterday.

Encourage the Brass Band by patronizing the entertainment Friday night.

W. S. Hoagland, county assessor and a resident of Langell Valley, was in town yesterday.

C. B. Watson will likely be nominated for district attorney with little if any opposition.

Candidate Bryan was to have given a speech in Ashland last Tuesday, and doubtless did so.

G. T. Baldwin is busily engaged this week, taking an inventory of his large stock of hardware.

Died, at his home at Sprague river in this county, on March 14th, Henry Finley, formerly a resident of Ashland.

Mr. Warner, a dealer in fruit trees, shrubbery, etc., of Medford, arrived yesterday and will remain several days.

See the transformation tableau introducing living pictures, at the Band Entertainment tomorrow night.

The Band Entertainment tomorrow night will eliminate that "tired feeling." Doors open at 7:30 p. m. Make no mistake.

M. S. Patterson arrived home Tuesday from his trip to Salem, where he went to place his sister, Mrs. Geo. Porter, in the asylum for treatment.

Mr. Goeller will reopen the Klamath Falls planing mill next week. From present appearances the mill will do a largely increased business this season.

Prophet Hicks announces that the cyclone period, which especially affects the middle east, will begin the latter part of April and continue through May.

Services at the usual hours at the Presbyterian church next Sunday. Sermon subjects will be: "The religious cry of humanity," and "The nature of faith." Come and be welcome.

The directors of the Oregon Midland railway will have a business meeting of importance at Klamath Falls on the 9th of next month. There will, we understand, be a full attendance of directors.

J. H. Houston, of this place, returned on Friday from a two weeks' visit of business and pleasure to his numerous old friends in Ashland. Mr. Houston cordially favors the building of the contemplated railroad into this region, and rightfully feels enthusiastic over the prospects and development of the county in case the road is built.

Ogwell Bros. of Central Point this week packed the balance of their apples for shipment to Portland, amounting to three carloads. This enterprising firm have shipped a large quantity of superior apples to different parts of the United States during the past season, and will do a bigger business than ever during the coming year.—Jacksonville Times.

"A city's growth and prosperity," says the Baker City Republican, "is dependent largely on its people. Natural advantages and favorable locations are factors of no small importance, but enterprise, energy and business ability of the people are the agencies necessary to the growth and permanency of any important commercial and manufacturing center."

A raving maniac arrived at Ager, Calif., last week from Klamath Falls, in charge of the sheriff, to be committed to the Oregon asylum at Salem. He was handcuffed and his ankles also chained; yet it seemed almost impossible to manage him, as he was young and strong. On reaching the train a new quarter-inch rope was used to fasten him to the seat; but he broke it as easily as a piece of cord, and was then secured by heavier rope.—Yreka Journal.

Last week we copied from the Ashland Tidings an article in which that paper said the contract for building the Oregon Midland R. R. had been let for a distance of 72 miles to Messrs. Dunbar & Cousin, a prominent firm of railroad constructors of Chicago. On inquiry we find that in publishing such article the Tidings was very much mistaken. The contract for building the road or any part of it, has not been let. The estimates and report of the surveyors have not yet been completed and will not be before the 12th of April. Immediately after that time, if such estimates and report meet with the approval of the Chicago firm, and if the efforts for a bonus are successful, the contract will be let and the work commenced.

People raise peaches here, not as extensively as they do at Ashland, but Klamath Falls peaches are just as good, what there is of them, as those grown at Ashland. But our citizens devote more time to stock growing than to peaches. One fat steer will pay for all the peaches a family wants for a year, and it is less trouble to raise the steer than the peaches. Hence we neglect fruit growing, although this country reasonably well adapted to it. We are told that Mr. Goeller's peach tree have borne fruits every year for the past six years. Mr. Marple peach trees have done the same. At this is the experience of all who devote the necessary time to it. As for raising apples, pears, apricots, prune and all kinds of berries, there are few countries in this latitude that exceed Klamath county.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

I notice that my name is being mentioned by some of the papers in this district as a candidate for the office of district attorney, and I desire to say in regard thereto, that am not, nor do I intend to be candidate for said office.

J. S. ORR.

Rubyard Kipling's new animal story, "The Elephant's Child," is feature of the April Ladies' Home Journal. It is first of a series of "Just So" stories, and describe with Kipling's inimitable droller how the elephant got his trunk. Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady begins an interesting series of articles on his experiences as "A missionary in the Great West," and Julian Ralph writes of "The Choir Boys of England." The now almost forgotten "Mysteries of the Century," while held the centre of the world's stage in their day, are graphically recalled and "Singing 'the Messiah' on the Plains" gives a close view of the life of a music loving Swedish community in the West. Edward Bok, in decrying "The Ease With Which You Marry," suggests some restrictive uniform legislation, and speaks plainly on divorce. Ian Maclaren pays his respects to "The Gentleman Train in our Churches," and "An American Mother" writes of "The American Woman in the Market-Place." "Through Picturesque America" begun in the April Journal, the pages being devoted to views of the natural beauties of our country. "Successful Country House in New England" and "Wellesley Girls in the Play" are among the other notable pictorial features. To every branch of activity which concerns the homemaker the April Journal brings helpful suggestions or advice. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a copy.
