The Prineville Crook Co. Journal says that the Oregon Irrigation Co. is actively at work preparing to carry water from the upper Deschutes river to the so-called "Desert," which way needs moisture and labor to cause it to blossom as the rose." The turn for Klamath county for a big irrigating ditch will probably come next.

This town needs more houses or less people. There is not a vacant house in town, and there are numerous families who would like to find places to live in. The suggestion made by this little story is to build more houses to rent.

As to the proposed railroad, we hear nothing which in the least changes the program heretofore decided on. The business will, we believe, move ahead like clock work; work will commence on or before October 1st and be pushed rapidly until Spencer creek is reached.

Let harmony prevail and united energy be put forth in the development of this county and town. Let no petty differences or jealousies discourage the incoming of new settlers or the introduction of new enterprises and improvements. Let all help and none hinder the big growth which the future assures.

This fall the crops of alfalfa, grain and vegetables are enormous in this county, and the question is, what will people do with it after all those here are supplied. It will cost more than its value to send it by team to market. This is one instance where the O. M. R. R. could, if here, help people very materially.

About two weeks ago Major Worden set, at a hole in the rocks near his place in this town, a steel trap which has caught up to this time the following catalogue of varmints, viz: Eight woodchucks, seven large squirrels, five big wood rats and finally one skunk, in all twenty-one. This is a big yield from one trap.

Alex Martin Sr. arrived home Sunday evening from Ashland, where he had sold a lot of horses and mules to government agents. He reports that there is considerable interest in Ashland and vicinity respecting the proposed railroad through this county and says he came in touch with a number who look forward to making investments here in the early future.

This locality never specially brags of its fruit, yet all the fruit trees are full and many of them are loaded so heavily as to be in danger of breaking down. Apples, plums, prunes and apricots are in great abundance, though peaches and pears are not so plenty on account of the severe frosts of last spring. This is a good fruit country, and the fruit is of an excellent quality.

Ashland Tidings: Fred, Mlonie, Eva and Elsie Applegate, son and daughters of Lucian Applegate, of Klamath county, arrived in Ashland Friday. The Misses Eva and Elsie left on Saturday's train for San Jose, Cal., where they will attend school during the winter. Dr. W. S. Johnson returned from Portland yesterday and left for Yainax on the Klamath reservation today.

Would it not be a good thing if the county had a county fair this fall. The great crops of every kind will furnish a grand display of exhibits. Fast horses and fat cattle, horse races and the thousand other attractions on such occasions will make a "Klamath County Fair" equal to any in the state. Think it over. Such a fair would show up the productions and resources of this county in grand style.

W. E. Conner, landlord of the Hotel Oregon at Ashland, was here Sunday at the head of a party of fifteen tourists who had spent two weeks viewing scenery and enjoying camp life at Crater lake, Spring creek and Pelican bay. Among the party were H. S. Sanford and family and Mrs. Frank E. Hoff and two sons, of Long Island City, N. Y. Mr. Sanford used to be mayor of that city, and Mr. Hoff is treasurer of the Long Island R. R.

The number of big successes in gold mining is probably very small compared to the number of failures. Put J. W. Downing, of Siskiyou county, Cal., who, with fifteen others, passed through here last week on his way to the Lakeview land office, is one of those who have been wonderfully fortunate. Not long ago he bought a mine in Siskiyou county for $500, and on developing it found it to yield the richest ore. It is said he has lately been offered $20,000 for the mine.

A few of the sales of cattle, mules, etc. in this county last week, are the following: L. B. Applegate sold to Silas Obenchain, of Langell valley, 200 head of cattle at $35 per head. L. A. Lewis, Frank McCormack and Dave Haugh, of the Big Klamath, sold 100 head of cattle to J. C. Mitchell of Gazelle, Cal. Judge Smith of Altamont, sold ten head of mules for $625 to Mr. McHenry of Modesto, Cal. Mr. McEl, also bought about 100 head of mules of John Wells of Bly. He also bought in Sprague river valley 600 head of cattle at 6 and 6 cents per pound.

Siskiyou News: On Tuesday afternoon of this week J. D. Dervan of Klamath Falls and Miss O'Brien of Michigan were united in marriage at the parlors of the Franco-American hotel by Rev. Father O'Meara of this city. Some weeks ago the young man advertised for a wife and after a short correspondence the happy event just recorded took place. They departed for Montague Tuesday evening and will go from there to their future home in Oregon. Advertising always brings good returns.

J. C. Ferguson, who came from Montana to Ashland a year ago, arrived here yesterday and will henceforth be a citizen of Klamath county. While he lived in Montana he was in the business of mining and stock-raising, and in Ashland was in the mercantile business part of the time. He is a genial, honorable and reliable gentleman, as the citizens of this county will find on acquaintance. He has located on a ranch which he bought of Henry Parrish and which is situated about ten miles southeast of here.

While Ashland has many worthy people in it, there are a few residents of that town who are not friendly to the building of the Oregon Midland R. R. into this county. The building of the road to this region would naturally cut off from the towns in the Rogue river country a large amount of trade which these towns have heretofore profitably enjoyed to the extent of many thousand dollars per year. Hence, they try to hypnotize themselves into the belief that the road will not come. But it will come all the same.

Lakeview Examiner: Several months ago Harry Morton contracted to dig an irrigating canal in the vicinity of Bly, on Sprague river, and was backed financially in the enterprise by Dave Elder, a Lake county wood-grower. Mr. Elder had advanced money to Morton in the sum of about $800, it is said, and also went on his bonds for the completion of the canal contract. Nor was this all Elder did for Morton: He purchased a team from J. Q. Adams for Morton's use, and the latter was supposed to take the team to Sprague river to work. One day last week Elder became suspicious of Morton, and having good reasons for believing the man he befriended was about to leave the country, started for Klamath county last Friday, and overhauled him at the Falls. Elder's suspicions were then confirmed, and he took the team away from Morton, who departed quietly for parts unknown. Elder is considerably the loser by assisting Morton, but is thankful it is no worse.

Ashland Tidings: Salem was given a seven-day sensation in the marriage line, yesterday, in the wedding of one of its oldest pioneers and citizens, William Miller, aged 85 years, to Mrs. Mary Pearson, of Klamath county, whose age is 65 years. Mr. Miller was born in Lancashire, Scotland, in 1815, and is one of the prominent and prosperous pioneers of the Willamette valley, having come to the state in 1846. He has a farm of over 1,000 acres just north of Salem and much other property. The sexagenarian bride is a resident of Klamath Falls, and during the present summer has been officiating as the housekeeper at Pelican Bay lodge, where her octogenarian groom visited a few weeks since. She arrived in Ashland Monday en route to Salem for the wedding.

In the east people have been sweltering from excessive heat throughout August, while during the month here fires have often been sources of comfort, and none of the time has it been warm enough to inspire a sweat. Comparatively few people of this region have ever realized the extremes of heat and cold as experienced in the east. This reminds us that in the matter of fuel consumed, there is little difference between here and the east. Here a little fire is needed for comfort during a longer period than in the east, where an almighty hot fire is indispensable for a short time. The cost of fuel in the long run is probably about equal. One favor to this country is that the ice dealer is unnecessary and unknown individual, while in the east at this time and for several months each year he commands paramount respect and consideration.
