For President—WILLIAM MCKINLEY. For Vice-President—THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

In Bryan's home state, Nebraska, the bank deposits are over $15,000,000 more than they were four years ago.

From the reports of the department of agriculture it appears that on January 1, 1897, just before McKinley was inaugurated as president, the average price of cattle on the farm was $16.65 per head, and that under the republican administration the increase in price from that time to this, has been 50 per cent.

The Lincoln (Neb.) Journal says: "There is a man in this city who believes that, in the event of the reelection of William McKinley, the close of his second term will be marked by the crowning of M. A. Hanna emperor of America. It is hardly necessary to mention that the man wears a number six hat and reads the Omaha World-Herald every day."

The Norfolk, Neb., Daily News says that a correspondent compares Mr. Bryan's liberal quotations from Abraham Lincoln to the young man who stole roses out of the garden of his adored one's father and presented them to the young lady with his compliments. Mr. Bryan is borrowing gems from the republican record with which to coax republican votes. It is a small way to do business but very acceptable if it has the desirable effect.

MOUNT PITT ITEMS.

F. C. Wade, Gilbert D. Brown, W. B. Dennis, Elden L. Dennis, S. A. Brown and R. C. Ross were out hunting around Four Mile lake a few days ago, and the second morning after arriving at the lake there were about two inches of snow on the ground, just right for tracking. All of the party left camp quite early that morning and about noon all except Mr. Ross came into camp, and being from the city some of the party thought he would get lost. In the afternoon some of the boys brought in a number of large bucks which they had killed, but could not find Mr. Ross, and when night came on all of the party were convinced that he was lost. They joined in to hunt him for the next three days, deer hunting being postponed. The third day about 4 o'clock W. B. Dennis and S. A. Brown found Ross coming up the road near Four Bit creek. After leaving camp at Four Mile lake, Mr. Ross had gone north into Blue canyon, then turning west went around the head of Four Bit creek, having gone about 30 miles. Crystal, Oregon.
