See the new advertisement of I. A. Duffy's popular store, and take notice of his remarkably low prices and excellent assortment of goods.

M. and Wm. Morgan and Clay Barker arrived from Fort Klamath Sunday, leaving on their return home Monday. Mr. Morgan made this office a pleasant call.

The high school students are preparing to give a literary and musical entertainment in the opera house on Friday evening, the 14th inst., for the benefit of the school.

At night, the new electric lights, 150 feet apart and standing in a straight line along Main street for three-fourths of a mile, gives it quite a metropolitan appearance.

Circuit court had an adjourned session Monday, when a decree of divorce was granted to Daisy Williams from Marlon Williams. Court adjourned to meet again on the 17th inst.

Ashland Record: Mrs. Wm. Miller, who has been visiting her children at Klamath Falls, took yesterday's train for Salem. Her husband met her here and accompanied her home.

Thanksgiving services were held in the Presbyterian church Thursday morning and the sermon was preached by Rev. Chastain, the Baptist minister. A good-sized crowd attended.

Ashland Record: F. W. Moore went to Klamath county last week with three of Owens & Moore's fine blooded Hereford bulls which were sold to parties in Sprague river valley.

The president's message to congress, on Monday, recommends early attention of the senate to the convention with Great Britain to facilitate the construction of the Nicaragua canal.

Ashland Tidings: E. A. Alford, of Klamath Falls, has been visiting in Ashland and vicinity during the past week, accompanied by his family. They left, yesterday, on their return to their home.

There was a pleasant social gathering at the residence of Mr. W. F. Moore in Poe valley last Thursday night, about a dozen guests being present. There were games, refreshments and a good time for all.

The president's message recommends that internal revenue taxes be reduced in the sum of $30,000,000, by the reduction of such taxes as experience has shown to be the most burdensome.

J. Conger reports that he has lately sold 10,000 pounds of apples from his orchard near the river. He had thirty varieties of apples. The birds invaded his orchard this year and reduced the yield considerably.

An interesting and instructive communication concerning the timber in Klamath county, from an esteemed correspondent at Grants Pass, has been received too late for this week's paper, but will be gladly published next week.

Congress assembled on Monday. It is to be hoped that the Nicaragua canal and the subject of irrigation, will receive favorable attention. These are matters which are of the greatest importance to Oregon and other western states.

A construction company of which C. I. Roberts is chief engineer, has built in the front window of Baldwin's hardware store, a locomotive and a lengthy train of loaded freight cars. It is skillfully and attractively done, and is the first train of cars ever in town, but it is to be hoped it will not be the last.

We call attention to the large and interesting advertisement of Reames & Jennings' well known and popular mercantile establishment. They have an immense and judiciously selected stock of new goods of all kinds, and at prices which cannot fail to be commended. Call at the Brick Store, and see for yourselves.

There is no reason for discouragement over the railroad prospects for this county, nor is there grounds for doubt that Klamath county will witness a growth equal to that of any county in the West from now on. Our diversified resources demand a railroad and commands the attention of investors and home seekers.

An explosion of giant caps in the Ashland mine occurred on Wednesday morning of last week and injured three miners, John Matson, W. K. Smith and H. G. Fairclough. Their flesh was perforated with flying copper and brass, the most serious injuries being those received by Matson, whose right eye was hit and likely to be lost. This is the first accident that has ever happened in that mine.

The following directors were elected at the annual meeting of the directors of the Oregon Midland Railway company held here Monday: David Horn, of Hornbrook, Cal.; H. L. McWilliams, L. W. Van Horn, W. J. Woods and J. A. McCall, of Ashland, Or.; R. S. Moore and Geo. T. Baldwin, of Klamath Falls. Those living west of the mountains were unable to be present on account of the bad roads and their votes were cast by proxy. The directors will elect officers at a later date.

A large audience witnessed the drama "Hazel Adams," in the opera house Thursday night and all seemed highly pleased. The plot was interesting and the characters were well represented. The total receipts amounted to $83.50, netting the sum of $62.25, which has been added to the piano fund of the Degree of Honor lodge. The entertainment was a gratifying success financially and otherwise. After the drama an enjoyable dance was given under the auspices of the orchestra.

One of Ashland business men, E. Edelhoff, the general manager of the Ashland Grocery Co., is reported by the Tidings, to have skipped for taller timber. He had a one-third interest and had general supervision over the business. On Thanksgiving day he took the train for Hornbrook, Cal., but neglected to stop there and continued on his journey, and has since been unheard of in the haunts which knew him. The result of his flight has been that the business has been assigned to F. G. McWilliams and E. M. Granger as trustees. He left a wife and two children.

Ashland Tidings: A Washington dispatch of Friday says that the controller of the currency has approved the application of the First National Bank of Ashland, to organize with a capital of $25,000. H. L. McWilliams, E. A. Sherwin, T. E. Hills, C. A. Miller, A. S. Barnes and C. H. Vaupeul are named as stockholders. The gentlemen connected with the application for this new bank, who are all well known residents of Ashland, say the capital for the proposed financial institution is fully promised. No definite arrangements have been made as yet as to location or organization of the new bank.

It is reported that a Michigan lumberman will next spring build at this place an immense saw mill capable of cutting 300,000 feet of lumber per day. Should this be done, it will necessitate the employment of 250 or 300 hands to run the mills. Two hundred and fifty or three hundred hands, means an increase of population of at least double that amount. And if all signs turn out right, we do not doubt the building at this point of several such great mills, which will be necessary to bring into market the millions of acres of pine forests on the north whose only natural outlet is Great Klamath lake.

to represent the Klamath Indians in securing a ratification of the recent treaty made with them in regard to settlement for certain lands taken from them when the boundary of the reservation was re-established a few years ago. He will impress the Washington authorities with the superiority of the Klamath Indians over the eastern tribes in education and habits of civilization. He is an Indian of exceptional intelligence, is a fluent and learned speaker and is thoroughly equipped in knowledge about the reservation and the Indians.

A narrow escape from a fatal accident occurred at the residence of Marion Barnum at this place Sunday evening, when a 44 Winchester rifle accidentally discharged and the ramrod, which was in the barrel, struck the right hand of Harry Slater, 14-year-old son of Mrs. Dawson, tearing the flesh from three of his fingers. A number of children were playing with the gun, and by working the lever Chester DeLap threw a shell from the magazine into the bore. Minnie Barnum then took the rifle and while it was in her hands, it accidentally discharged, the ball striking the side of the room and the ramrod penetrating the fingers of young Slater. No bones were broken, the wood merely tearing the flesh. It was a most fortunate escape from what might easily have been a fatal accident.

We are informed that Klamath county is not represented among the products of the state displayed in the Chamber of Commerce at Portland for the information of new-comers and that many who have come from the east seeking homes in Oregon have been disappointed in not finding any evidence of this county's resources, frequently abandoning their intentions to come out here and investigate. This is a most detrimental neglect, but we are glad to know it will not be long continued. This week E. W. Gowen is gathering a suitable exhibit of alfalfa, grain, vegetables and apples and will send it to Portland without delay. The display, which should have been made long ere now, will undoubtedly do much towards advertising and bringing new people to Klamath county.

H. P. Brownvigg of Astoria, Or., arrived here on the Ashland stage Thursday night and has since been looking over the country to ascertain the resources for the guidance of not only himself, but of relatives and friends who are desirous of investing and locating here. If conditions and prospects satisfy him, his son-in-law and family will locate in Klamath county, together with at least four other well-to-do citizens of Astoria and two acquaintances now residing in Arkansas. All will act according to the representations of Mr. Brownvigg and all will want ranches. We are glad to know that the gentleman's expectations have thus far been more than realized. All are desirable citizens and can benefit themselves and the country by coming here. Mr. Brownvigg located in Astoria about a year ago, going there from Wisconsin.

Last Friday the Klamath County Bank filed with the county clerk its articles of incorporation, under the state laws, with capital stock of $70,000, which is fully subscribed. Alex Martin Sr., E. R. Reames and Alex Martin Jr. are the incorporators, with Klamath Falls named as the principal place of business. The directors are Alex Martin Sr., E. R. Reames and Alex Martin Jr., the officers being divided as follows: Alex Martin Sr., president; E. R. Reames, vice-president; Alex Martin Jr., cashier. Messrs. Martin and Reames came to Klamath Falls from Jacksonville, Or., in 1881, and since then they have been instrumental in the growth and development of the town and county. They first engaged in the mercantile business, in which they continued as partners until a few months ago when Mr. Reames and his son-in-law, E. W. Jennings, became exclusive owners of the store. Alex Martin Sr. and E. R. Reames organized the Klamath County Bank as a private institution June 1, 1899, and about a year ago constructed the neat, commodious stone building now occupied exclusively by the bank. The steady and substantial growth of the business justifies the step of incorporating. It will be of interest to note that Messrs. Martin and Reames have not only been identified with Klamath county's interests for twenty years, but are among the early settlers of Oregon, having immigrated to the state nearly a half century ago. E. R. Reames crossed the plains from Illinois and located in Jacksonville in 1852, and a year later Alex Martin Sr. pitched his tent in the same town, also coming from Illinois.

The fact that H. E. Ankeny has bought a half interest in the irrigating ditch leading from near the source of Klamath river is an assurance that the canal will be enlarged in the near future. He is too successful a business man to make such an investment without a determination to improve it and add to its service and profit. That is his intention, and with his abundant capital and well known enterprise there is no reason to doubt that he will succeed. When enlarged the ditch will water thousands of acres now dependent for moisture on the rainfall and will increase the demand and value of real estate generally. Indeed, this enterprise, which is as nearly assured as anything can be that isn't already realized, is of vast importance to the agricultural interests of the county, and its influence alone will be a potent means of swelling the number of investors and new settlers.

Many of those who live in other parts of the county and who desire to visit Klamath Falls on business or pleasure, are, at this time of the year, greatly deterred from doing so. Nor can one blame them. Why? Because the streets of the town and the roads leading into it are in many places almost impassable on account of the mud. The roads as they enter town are a holy terror to freight wagons, horses and teamsters, and it is said that in no part of the county are the roads so diabolical as they are here. Citizens of Merrill, Keno, Bonanza or Dairy, whose business calls them here, think twice and wait long before venturing on an expedition where the possible engulfment in bottomless mud and slush are liable to be the result of their journey. It would pay those citizens who wish for outside trade and business, to chip in and try and fix the roads. Whatever the cost it would be amply repaid by the increased amount of patronage the town would get.
