Sherman a Jack-of-All-Trades.
"John Hancock was the first to sign the declaration," says a writer in New Lippincott, "and his bold, heavy, inkyblack signature is a character study in itself. There is dash and fire, frankness and firmness in it, and the tremendous flourish at its close shows ready wit, firm nerve and sure execution. Hancock was Governor of Massachusetts many terms. He left most of his fortune to colleges and for benevolent purposes. "Roger Sherman died in 1703, the same year as Hancock. Shoemaker, surveyor, lawyer, storekeeper, mayor, a glimmer of hope in this, congressman, judge and supreme judge, senator, member of the committee of declaration and of the boards of war and ordnance, he disproved the old proverb about Jack-of-all-trades by being a success at all. The Sky Road of the Geese.

J. G. Millals, the artist, in his book, "The Wildfowler in Scotland," thus describes the scene of the arrival of the wild geese from the Arctic regions, which he twice had the good fortune to witness:

I heard the first "honk" of the season coming from far up in the vast expanse of the blue heaven. For a long time nothing could I see, until at last a tiny speck appeared in the sky as far as the eye could reach, and watching it intently, I saw it grow into the form of a goose that was slowly descending in great spirals.

This bird was followed at regular in tervals by others, in little parties of from six to ten.

The leader came down immediately to $3,000 a year. So great is the interabove the Inch, and while she was pre- est which has been aroused in cattle paring to alight, there were still small judging that a number of Western colcompanies evolving themselves from leges have formed an intercollegiate the blue expanse, until at last there stock judging league, and send rival must have been some fifteen hundred | teams to annual contests, the winners birds actually on the wing, all in pro- being awarded a handsome silver trocess of descent, and all following one phy presented by J. Massage for Dyspepsia.

A French medical journal cities a number of cases where great and lasting benefits were derived by people suffering from dyspepsia and abdominal diseases from a gentle massage treatment of the abdomen, says Leslie's Weekly. One case mentioned is that of a young man aged 20 years, who for six months had been suffering with his stomach. In spite of varied treatment he was gradually growing worse and looked like one in the last stages of phthisis. He suffered from constipation and insomnia; he was very nervous and was convinced that he was about to die. After instituting the abdominal massage his condition rapidly improved: his abdomen, which had resembled that of a child with meningitis, became supple and daily enlarged. The treatment was not severe nor very special. His pain disappeared, and he was able to digest all that was given to him. The patient gained in six months about sixty-five pounds, which he has not lost since that time, now five years ago.

One Consoling Thought. Illustrating the value of caution in expression, the Hon. John M. Allen, of Mississippi, tells a story of a funeral oration, which he heard delivered by a negro preacher in the South.

The habits of the deceased brother his items of waywardness was constant whistled, danced, and otherwise dis-"Well, money's supposed to make the mare go!" retorted the woman, worthy pastor of the flock. So, in summing up the case at the funeral, the preacher delivered himself in this wise;

"My brethren and sisters, we are here to pay our last sad respects to our departed brother. Some says he was a good man, and some says he was a bad man. Where he has gone to we can't tell, but in our grief we has one consolation, and that is-he's dead."

COSTLY MINCE PIES

Ruinel a Roy's Damage Suit Against a Railway Company. Johnny Foehl ate five mince ples at one sitting, and this little feast cost him exactly $5,000. His suit against the Camden & Suburban Rallway Company for that amount for injuries sustained in being pushed from a car was progressing favorable to him yesterday in the Camden Court. Half a dozen doctors had sworn that he was an invalid as the result of the accident, when Willie Brower, one of Johnny's witnesses, in his rambling testimony told of Johnny's love for pies. Counsel for the trolley company saw "Could be eat a whole pie?" was asked of Willie. "Why, yes; he ate five within a few minutes last week," the boy replied. The three lawyers who represented Johnny were on their feet in an instant demanding of the court to know what mince ple had to do with Johnny Foehl

"Well," declared counsel for the trolley company, "any boy who can eat five mince ples at one sitting is not very much of an invalid." The court admitted the mince pie the pies remained to a finish.

Counsel for the plaintiff wanted to small five-cent ones. They were willing to send for a pie to show the jury. The railway company's lawyers cenceded that the ples were small, but contended that even so no invalid could eat five of them.

When all the testimony was in the court, relieving the jury, declared that Johnny Foehl had not made out a case. The mince ple testimony had been fatal to it .- Philadelphia North Ameri-

During the spring and summer, while the skin is most active and the pores well open, we are much more liable to be affected by Poison Oak and Ivy and other dangerous plants. Workers in brass, copper, lead and zinc have their health impaired and the blood supply poisoned through the absorption of fine particles of these metals and the acids used in polishing and cleaning them. Inhaling the fumes of lead give painters that pallid, waxy appearance of the skin. Barber's Itch is another disease that reaches the blood through the skin, and is a most obstinate.

"That noise?" echoed John, dream- going a change of heart, one when it becomes firmly fixed in the system. After the poison has reached the blood and been disseminated throughout the system it is too late to resort to local applications. In many cases the blood is affected simultaneously with the appearance of the rash or eruption on the skin, and all efforts should be directed to the purification and building up of the blood. Ugly eruptions and sores will continue to break out in spite of salves, washes, soaps or other external treatment.

S. S. S. is especially recommended for poisons of this character. So completely does it destroy the effects of the Oak and Ivy that there is no possibility of its reappearance, and it is equally as efficacious in brass or lead poisoning or Barber's Itch; building up and purifying the blood and driving out of the circulation impurities of every kind, and removing every blemish, sore or eruption from the skin. There is no substitute for S. S. S.; it is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known, and the safest and best in all constitutional or blood diseases.
