

And the constantly increasing demand for, and steady growth in popularity of, St. Jacobs Oil among all classes of people in every part of the civilized world show conclusively that remedy the people use for their rheumatism and bodily aches and pains. Facts speak louder than words and the fact remains undisputed that the sale of St. Jacobs Oil is greater than all other remedies for outward application combined. It acts like magic, cures where everything else fails, conquers pain.

Their Ways.

Tess—If you don't love him, why don't you let him know it?
Jess—Well, he sends me flowers and takes me to the theatre, you know, and—
Tess—But, gracious, I can't see how you can play with his affections that way.
Jess—Play? I call that "working" them.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure it, have done more to injure the system than the disease itself. It is now known that catarrh is a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, etc.

From Milwaukee.

"Yes," said the haughty young woman who was a Colonial dame as well as a "Daughter of the Revolution," "my great-grandfather fell at Bunker Hill."

"Ice or banana skin?" inquired the polite young man from Milwaukee.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Helpful.

Borus—Nagrus, I am writing a story I would like a name for. It's somewhat on the plan of "Ships That Pass in the Night," but I want the title to be as different from that as possible.

Nagrus—How would "Elevators That Pass in the Daytime" do?—Chicago Tribune.

Mothers will find Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup the best remedy to use for their children during the teething period.

Which?

"You can depend on that man's keeping his promises," said the close political adviser.
"Yes," answered the practical politician, "but which promises is he going to keep, those he makes to me or those he makes to the voters?"—Washington Star.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first use of Dr. Kline's Great Kidney and Bladder Remedy. Send for Free Book. Dr. J. C. Kline, Philadelphia, Pa.

Preposterous!

"Bill, can you lend me two-pence?"
"What a silly question to ask! Why if I had two-pence, would I be 'doin' standin' outside a public 'ouse'?"—Punch.

Looked Ahead.

He—If you didn't love me why did you marry me?
She—Because you were the only man I cared to be divorced from.—Brooklyn Life.

NICKNAMES IN AUSTRALIA.

Queer Appellations Given to People of Its Various Sections.

Although the Australian colonies have now been linked together in a commonwealth, it is not probable that the nicknames bestowed by one province on another will be abandoned.

The inhabitants of New South Wales have long been known as "cornstalks," an allusion to the length and slenderness of the average young New South Wales native. Victorians are known as "gumsuckers," with reference to the gum that is found on many native trees, some of which is relished by juveniles. "Crow-eaters," as applied to the South Australians, owes its origin to a statement that in times of drought the wheat farmers of South Australia are driven to the source suggested for food. "Wheatfielders" is a more euphonious name sometimes used for the same province. The Queenslanders are known as "banana landers," that tropical fruit growing there abundantly. Western Australians are known in the east as "sand gophers" or "gropers." The Westralians themselves group all the other states into "other side," and call the residents "other siders."

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

BISHOP SCOTT ACADEMY PORTLAND, OREGON. FOUNDED 1870. A HOME SCHOOL FOR BOYS MILITARY AND NAVAL TRAINING. A. C. NEWELL, PRINCIPAL.

JOHN POOLE, Portland, Oregon. Foot of Morrison Street.

Can give you the best bargains in Engines, Pumps, Boilers and Engines, Win-mills and Pumps and General Machinery. See us before buying.

Summer Resolutions

THE KEELEY CURE Sure relief from liquor, opium and tobacco habits. Send for particulars to Keeley Institute, Moved to 420 Williams Ave., Portland, Oregon.

THE STAR OF STARS STEEL STAR WIND MILL.

Has bearing in turn-table. Turns freely to the wind. Ball bearings thrust in wheel, insuring light running qualities, and reserving great amount of power for pumping. Galvanized iron making. Put together with galvanized bolts, double-headed; no part can rust or get loose and rattle. Weight regulator; perfect regulation. No spring to change tension with every change of temperature, and grow weaker with age. Repairs always on hand. These things are worth money to you. Then why not buy a STAR?

MITCHELL, LEWIS & STAVELAND CO., PORTLAND, OREGON.

N. P. N. U. No. 44-1901.

When writing to advertisers please mention this paper.

AN ETERNAL VOICE. Edith—I suppose he swore to you "till the earth grows old and the stars grow cold," and all that?

Ethel—Oh, longer. He swore to love me until that Chinese indemnity was paid.—Judge.

FISCH'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION Cures where all else fails. Do not cough, spit, or lose weight. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

SHEEP MEN GO TO LAW.

Owner of Utah Flocks Bring Damage Suit Against the Idaho Authorities.

Salt Lake, Oct. 28.—Utah sheep men who had so much trouble with the Idaho authorities early in the summer over the question of grazing Utah sheep in Idaho, have begun suits in the Third district court to recover damages. There were nine suits filed in all, eight of them for damages to the flocks and one for malicious prosecution and damage to character. The aggregate amount of damages claimed is $34,47.

With the exception of the complaint of Shafer, the allegations are all similar, and state that on or about July 12, 1901, the defendant unlawfully took possession of flocks of sheep belonging to the plaintiffs and grazing on the public lands of Oneida county, Idaho, and that by reason of the action many of the sheep died, and strayed, many lambs were prematurely born and a large amount of wool was lost.

Congratulations.

"Did Polehunter have any success on his Arctic expedition?"
"Oh, yes! He succeeded in getting back."—Puck.

WANTED Every man, woman and child suffering with colds, coughs, croup, pneumonia or consumption to write us. American Lung Balm Pad Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Supremely Restful.

"I wonder if there's any lazier occupation than fishing."
Well, yes—looking at people fishing.—Brooklyn Life.

NICKNAMES IN AUSTRALIA.

Queer Appellations Given to People of Its Various Sections.

Although the Australian colonies have now been linked together in a commonwealth, it is not probable that the nicknames bestowed by one province on another will be abandoned.

The inhabitants of New South Wales have long been known as "cornstalks," an allusion to the length and slenderness of the average young New South Wales native. Victorians are known as "gumsuckers," with reference to the gum that is found on many native trees, some of which is relished by juveniles. "Crow-eaters," as applied to the South Australians, owes its origin to a statement that in times of drought the wheat farmers of South Australia are driven to the source suggested for food. "Wheatfielders" is a more euphonious name sometimes used for the same province. The Queenslanders are known as "banana landers," that tropical fruit growing there abundantly. Western Australians are known in the east as "sand gophers" or "gropers." The Westralians themselves group all the other states into "other side," and call the residents "other siders."

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

Tasmania, the green little isle that is much like England in climate and other characteristics, is generally regarded as very quiet and rather behind the times, and is referred to as "the land of lots of time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on, while the inhabitants are called "Tassies" and "jam eaters," the latter being an allusion to the great fruit production of the "tight little island."—London Leisure Hour.

QUAINT SAM HOUSTON.

Amusing Story of the Famous Texas When He Sat in the Senate.

Gen. Sam Houston of Texas was the most picturesque figure in the Senate during my first years of service at the capitol, writes Galusha A. Grow in the Saturday Post. Like Benton, he was very fond of young men, and soon came to count me as "one of the boys." Only those who were youngsters in the '40s can realize the interest people felt in Houston in the days when his part in the struggle for the independence of Texas was still fresh in the public mind. Visitors to the Senate chamber invariably asked to have him pointed out to them, and they were never disappointed in their hope, for he was large of frame, of stately carriage and dignified demeanor and had a lionlike countenance.

No passage in Houston's career was nobler than the heroic stand against disunion which marked its close, and his kindness of nature and generous helpfulness to those in distress one could recall stories sufficient to fill a volume.

Near Quincy, Ill., there was a stretch of country known as the "Indian tract," to which Houston held title, a fact many of the settlers thereon, a careless pioneer brood, failed to search out. One of them called upon William A. Richardson, long a member of the House from the Quincy district and subsequently a Senator from his State, confided to him that he had inadvertently settled upon 100 acres of Houston's land and that all he was worth stood in improvements on it. He wanted Richardson to see Houston and make the best terms that he could. Richardson upon his return to Washington told Houston the story and asked what he would take for a quit claim deed to the 100 acres.

"What sort of a man is this constituent of yours who has blundered upon my land?" asked Houston.

"A good, square, honest man," was the reply.

"When I turn him off my land I reckon he and his family will be beggars?"

Richardson nodded.

"What's this farm worth now?" asked Houston.

"Improvements and all, about $6,000," was the response.

"What was the bare place worth when you fellows went on it?" queried Houston.

"About $5 an acre; $500 in all," answered Richardson.

"Good fellow, this man of yours, Richardson?" This after a moment's thought.

"Best in the world," said Richardson.

"Tell him to send me $500 and I'll make him a deed."

In due time the $500 reached Washington in the shape of a New York draft. Richardson sought Houston, who, having executed a deed, took the draft and indorsed it.

"You say this man of yours is a good fellow?" he asked, thoughtfully.

"Couldn't be a better one," was the emphatic answer.

"Send him back this draft and tell him Sam Houston has changed his mind. What can you buy a good saddle horse for in that country?" He was told that $200 would do it. "Well, then," said Houston, "write to your friend and tell him to buy a first-class saddle horse, about 4 years old, and keep him for me. When Congress adjourns I will go home with you and ride the horse down to Texas."

Without delay the man in Illinois received back his draft and bought a saddle horse, the best he could find. Just before adjournment Houston sought Richardson. "You say the fellow who's got my horse is a tip-top good man?" Richardson again declared him one of the best in his district. "Well," said Houston, with a sigh, "I should have liked first rate to see him and also my horse, but as affairs turn out I must go straight to Texas. When you get home go over and see this man and tell him to sell the horse and do what he pleases with the money. And, by the way, Richardson, I wish you would write and tell me if it was a good horse or not."

The Usurper.

I list don't like my sister, an' I wish sh'd go away. My sister ain't bin her long, cos She only cum 'd day.

My sister ain't got enny hair Upon her head a-tall; It's all red cos it kin be, An' round as enny ball.

My sister has such teenie eyes, An' little weentle han's; Maw talks 'er, but I don't think 'At she list under'n's.

My sister she can't talk a-tall, Bit more'n she kin fy; But you list bet she makes a noise When she starts in 't cry.

I ast my paw where she cumm'd from; 'Nen he list left 't at me, An' he list found her in th' wudds, In a ole holler tree.

My maw she loves my sister more 'N she dux me, I know, An' 'at's the very reason I Don't list my sister so.

I jist don't guess it's enny use Fer me to make a fuss, Cos paw he sez my sister she, Will make her home with us.—Boston Post.

Untidy London.

A London medical journal says the English metropolis is possibly the most unclean and most untidy city of Europe. The streets are either muddy, slushy or dusty; they are littered with straw, cabbage leaves, newspaper posters and omnibus tickets; they are constantly being grubbed up for some reason or other; barrels of beer, coals and other goods are delivered across the footways at all hours of the day. So long as London is governed by, or rather is dependent for its due regulation upon, a number of bodies all independent of each other, so long will nuisances of various kinds continue.

Power of Niagara Falls.

The total undeveloped energy of Niagara Falls is estimated by electrical experts to be 8,000,000-horse power.

The chewing gum trust causes more jawing than any other.

FREE FOR TOBACCO TAGS

NOV. 30TH

FROM
"STAR"
"MASTER WORKMAN"
(PLUG SMOKING.)
"HORSE SHOE"
"DRUMMOND" Natural Leaf
"SPEAR HEAD"
"SICKLE"
(PLUG SMOKING.)
"NOBBY SPUN ROLL"
"PIPER HEIDSIECK"
"BOOT JACK"
"OLE VARGINY"
(PLUG SMOKING.)
"OLD PEACH & HONEY"

"E. Rice, Greenville," "J. T.," "Good Luck,"
"Cross Bow," "Old Honesty," "Brandywine,"
"Jolly Tar," "Standard Navy," "Planet," "Neptune," "Razor," "Tennessee Cross Tie," "Oranger Twist."

(Two "Oranger Twist" tags being equal to one of others mentioned.)

TAGS MAY BE ASSORTED IN SECURING PRESENTS.

Our new illustrated
CATALOGUE OF PRESENTS
FOR 1902

will include many articles not shown here. It will contain the most attractive list of presents ever offered for Tags, and will be sent by mail on receipt of postage—two cents. (Catalogue will be ready for mailing about January 1st, 1902.)

Our offer of Presents for Tags will expire Nov. 30th, 1902.

CONTINENTAL TOBACCO COMPANY.

Write your name and address plainly on outside of packages containing Tags, and send them and requests for Presents to

C. H. BROWN,

4241 Polson Ave.,

St. Louis, Mo.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

A Prayer.

Not for the silent child whom Death Gently and sedulously keeps Within a splendid calm; naught mars His well-won laurels where he sleeps.

Rather for him who newly stands Half startled on a slippery height, Like a strong falcon whom some hand Unhooded rudely, whom the light Floods unforeseen, but who