Cancerous are most frebreast, though they are liable to appear upon other parts of the body. When they begin to spread and eat into the flesh, sharp, piercing pains are felt as the underlying tissue is destroyed and the tender nerves exposed. Cancerous sores develop from very trifling causes; a carbuncle or boil, swollen gland, a little watery blister on the tongue or lip, a wart, mole or bruise of some kind becomes an indolent, festering sore, which in time degenerates into cancer.

"Ten years age I had a sore on my left temple, which the doctors pronounced a cancerous ulcer; it would itch, burn and bleed, then scab over, but would never heal. Insect Food.

Those who object to eating meat as the term is usually understood will be intersted in learning of a new movement whose leaders oppose the con sumption of beef and mutton, but are equally hostile to vegetarianism. A French entomologist, M. Dagin, has discovered a compromise which he cordially recommends in the shape of insect food. He speaks on the subject with authority, "having tasted several hundred species of raw, boiled, fried, broiled, roasted and hashed insects." But the most popular insect food of all. he declares, is locust flour, which the Bedouins take boiled in milk or fried and served with rice.
