KLAMATH'S OPPORTUNITY.

After many years of peaceful sleep, Klamath now has an opportunity to arouse, shake off her manacles of ignorant Silurianism and join, with other Oregon counties, in the friendly, but well-timed contest for a material increase in her population.

While selfishness is one of the chief mainsprings of human action, the universe is so gauged that others are large beneficiaries of the acts, even of the most selfish. The railroads are not organized and operated solely for philanthropic purposes, but it sometimes happens that in successfully carrying out a business policy, these corporations incidentally bring great good to communities through which their roads pass, or which are tributary to them.

Jim Hill with his Northern Pacific and Great Northern systems has taken the initiative and is populating the state of Washington at a rate which will leave Oregon far behind if she does not "get busy." The Harriman system, said to control the O. R. & N. company, the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific railroads—therefore has been induced by the stern logic of events to announce that it will co-operate with the State of Oregon as a commonwealth, and her various counties as integral parts, if they will use the occasion and "catch the rabbit." That is to say, the railroads will judiciously and effectively distribute matter prepared in pamphlet form and attractively illustrated, setting forth the respective merits of different counties in Oregon.

Now this is no mean service, as lightly as some would pass it by. These roads, if anything, are systematic. They have barrels of data about farmers; what they are worth, what they want, what they stand for and where they would like to take up their future residence. This is the open sesame to effective colonization-work. It would cost the counties thousands of dollars to do as effective advertising without the assistance of the railroads—in fact they would never do it. This is the first time in the history of Oregon, that an organized effort on the part of the railroads has been put forth to solicit the friendly co-operation of the counties. Shall it be in vain? The chief interests of the railroads are in the main, general; and rest with the future. They want to haul the people to their new homes of course, but their real reward will come years later in hauling a largely increased tonnage of freight to market. Their interests in this case are founded on the right side of economic and commercial ethics and every county should lend them a generous and intelligent support.

What will Klamath do? Will she with the Biblical sluggard say: "A little more sleep. A little more folding of the hands to sleep?" Will she in a vain-glorious spirit like the reprobate of old exclaim: "Let us alone;" or will she gird herself for the fray and "rejoice as a strong man to run a race?" Upon her action towards this far reaching opportunity now at hand, depends her future, to a large extent. Will our business men, lawyers and county officials call a meeting and subscribe a modest fund for the purpose of preparing descriptive pamphlets of Klamath's remarkable timber, irrigation possibilities, cattle, water-power and other resources, attractive to prospective settlers, or will she merely sneer at the possibilities of outside assistance, wrap herself in her traditional lethargy and let the only glance she casts at the stranger in her midst, be that known as the "glazy stare."

"KLAMATH IS BOOMING."

Under the above head, Saturday's Oregonian publishes the following interview with State Treasurer Chas. S. Moore on his return to Salem from Klamath county:

"Times are more prosperous in Klamath county now than I ever knew them to be before," said State Treasurer Moore today, on his return from a trip to that county. In company with others, he went on a three weeks' fishing expedition to the mountain streams which flow into Upper Klamath Lake, and reports having had a very enjoyable outing. In speaking of his observations, Mr. Moore said:

"The only complaint that the people out there have to make is that there is more work than can be done with the labor that can be employed. Money is plentiful and the hay crop is large. Farmers are able and willing to pay good wages, and a sufficient number of men are not to be had. Two dollars a day and board is being paid for men who work in the hay fields.

"Cattle are in splendid condition, and with plenty of feed and high prices for beef, the people of that section have a very bright outlook for the present and coming seasons. Money is being invested in various improvements that indicate a rapid development of the country.

"Hundreds of men and women are going into the mountains between Goose lake and Klamath lake to take up yellow pine timber land under the timber and stone act. Each person can purchase 160 acres at $2.50 per acre from the government. Many buyers of timber land are also going to the Upper Deschutes country in the northern part of Klamath county. So numerous are the seekers for timber land in that section that all liverly teams are kept busy, and it is difficult to get a team except by ordering in advance. The liveries are making money, but the horse look pretty well worn out.

"The timber land now being taken is a long distance from railroad transportation, so it would seem that people are buying the land upon belief that a railroad will be built into that country in the near future. The timber would be of little value without transportation facilities. It is yellow pine, averaging about 12 inches in diameter, with the limbs 40 to 50 feet from the ground. So far as I know, the land is being bought by people who want to use it for their own benefit. If it should be found later that one company buying out the first purchasers, it would be an indication that a road is to be built by those interested in the development of their property."

Southern Oregon Normal.

The Southern Oregon State Normal school is making thorough preparation for the coming year's work. The buildings are being renovated and repaired, and extensive additions to the chemical and physical departments are being made. The faculty is composed of strong teachers created to the work, and each department is in the hands of a specialist.

A year's course in Latin and Rhetoric has been added to further prepare teachers for high school. The training department will be especially strong. A man of wide education and wide experience will be at the head of this department. Much attention will be given to oratory, and athletics will be prominent. The citizens of Ashland have guaranteed some $200 as for excellence in these lines. City Library of 2000 well selected volumes is thrown open to students of the institution. Board and lodging can be had at from $2.00 a week to $4.00. Climate by course of study practical and healthful. For catalogue of announcements, write B. F. Mulkey, principal, or Clifford Thomas, secy, Ashland, Oregon.

Dysentery Cured Without the Doctor.

"I am just up from a hard case of the 'flux' (dysentery) says Mr. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. "I used a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was cured without paying a doctor a cent. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There need of employing a doctor if this remedy is used, for it can prescribe a better medicine for children or adults. It is pleasant to take. For sale by Chitwood & Co.
