

An Ancient Foe

To health and I apprehend a Scrofula- as it is ever since time immemorial. It causes hunches in the neck, it crosses the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

Hood's Sarsaparilla will rid you of it, radically and permanently, as it has rid thousands.

To Heaven by Installments

Willie—Your papa's only got one arm, hasn't he?
Robbie—Yeth.
Willie—Where's the other one?
Robbie—It's up in heaven.—New York Times.

The Cultivated Taste

Monopole coffee was not intended for the use of those who prefer a 10- or 15-cent grade of coffee. These people, perhaps, won't see the value in it. But if your taste has been in any degree cultivated by the use of the higher grades, you'll think that Monopole pure Mocha and Java is the acme of perfection—presuming, of course, that the coffee is made right. This coffee is sold in one and one-half pound cartons. If your grocer doesn't keep it, send us his name. Wadhams & Kerr Bros., Portland.

The Worm

She—Yes; I'm very sorry I married you; is there?
He—Oh! You were glad to get anybody, I guess. You were no young bird when I married you.
She—No? But considering what I got you must admit I was an early bird.—Philadelphia Press.

The fools are not all dead; their foolishness and rickety nature would both be cured with Hamlin's Wizard Oil.

A Genius

"There goes a great genius!" exclaimed a Georgia citizen as a tall figure slouched by.
"Novelist?"
"No; but he reads all the novels the other fellows write."
"You call that 'genius'?"
"Well, if it ain't exactly genius, it's the patience of it."—Atlanta Constitution.

Insomnia

Professor—Tell me to what class of maladies insomnia belongs.
Student—Why, er, it is a contagious disease.
"I never heard it so described. Where did you learn this?"
"From experience, sir. Whenever my neighbor's dog can't sleep, I'm just as wakeful as he is."—Tit-Bits.

The Field of Danger

Greene—Some folks imagine that golf is a dangerous game. Do you think so?
Gage—I had two friends who got engaged on the golf links last season.

No External Symptoms.

The blood may be in bad condition, yet with no external signs, no skin eruption or sores to indicate it. The symptoms in such cases being a variable appetite, poor digestion, an indescribable weakness and nervousness, loss of flesh and a general run-down condition of the system—clearly showing the blood has lost its nutritive qualities, has become thin and watery. It is in just such cases that S. S. S. has done some of its quickest and most effective work by building up the blood and supplying the elements lacking to make it strong and vigorous.

"My wife used several bottles of S. S. S. as a blood purifier and to tone up a weak and emaciated system, with very marked effect by way of improvement."
"We regard it as great tonic and blood purifier."—J. F. DUFF, Princeton, Mo.

S. S. S. is the greatest of all tonics, and you will find the appetite improves at once, strength returns, and nervousness vanishes as new rich pure blood once more circulates through all parts of the system.

S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known. It contains no minerals whatever. Send for our free book on blood and skin diseases and write our physicians for any information or advice wanted. No charge for medical advice.

Changes of a Lifetime.

It took the Roman republic some ages to pass from the simple poverty of its early days upon the seven hills to the age of Augustus, but the American republic has made that change in one generation. In the second decade of the nineteenth century the lives of the American people were severely simple and plain. Most of the necessities of life were raised on the farm by the people living on it. Most of their trading was done by barter. The country people scarcely ever got in the course of a year more than enough money to pay their taxes. The farmers' houses were almost destitute of furniture. Except a few school books and the family Bible, there was no reading matter, except in favored neighborhoods where two or three families took a weekly newspaper together. Mails were infrequent and postage was almost prohibitory. The era of invention had not begun. The only means of cooking was the open fire and the brick oven. Meat was roasted by suspending it from a hook and attaching a hook in the ceiling. It was with great difficulty that fires were started or kept going. Tools and food and the labor of men and animals were freely borrowed and lent. Farming tools were made and fashioned on the spot, and the farmer in respect to tools made it impossible for farmers to prosper except by cattle raising and the cultivation of the small grains. Heating stoves or furnaces were unknown. Communication between distant parts of the country was practically non-existent and transportation was of the crudest sort. Men were narrow and bigoted. Civilization was stationary. There was a prejudice against wisdom and change, a belief that all wisdom was in the fathers.

Contrast this simple, narrow life with the complex and broad life of the poorest farmer of our times. Think of the tools and horses, the machinery and the improved methods he has. Think of the comforts and luxuries that are his. Think how farming has been changed from slavery to inspiring work. Then contrast the picture of the past with the general wealth, progress in education, diffusion of knowledge, opportunities and hopefulness of our own times. Only the beginnings of the great power of the people are so far seen. As a matter of fact the tremendous changes wrought by improvement in communication and transportation have made it possible for great free governments to exist permanently.

It is now and ever will be the fashion to talk of the good old times, but in America the old times are not to be compared with ours. Our wealth has not spoiled the nation, though it has ruined some classes. At the core the nation is sounder now than formerly because it is wiser and better trained and equipped.—Minneapolis Journal.

Feminine Work.

Now and then one hears the comment that women never know when to stop and take a rest, but persist in going on and on until they are exhausted. The explanation is in the fact that women are not only the backbone of the home, but also the backbone of the nation. They are the ones who do the work that men are not fit to do. They are the ones who are the backbone of the home, and the backbone of the nation.

tion, when one comes to think of it, is a simple one. Women have for innumerable generations been engaged in work which does not admit of vacations, while man's work does. Hence a public opinion has grown up in the one case which does not exist in the other.

The type of woman who is liable to overwork is conscientious. If she goes away for an absolute rest of a month or three months, or a year, she hears a chorus of voices denouncing her as idle, incompetent or neglectful of duty. This is especially the case if she be the mother of a family. She never gets away from the care of that family, and she is always conscious of the fact that if anything happens in her absence she will be condemned by a jury of her peers for having been away when it occurred. This sort of thing takes all the rest out of a vacation, and few people have the nerve to disregard it.

This morbid conscientiousness, however, is not a thing to encourage. The thing which every human being should do is to make sure, first, that he or she has a fair amount of the work of the world to do, and second, to stop when that work is done. If a rest is necessary, it should be taken. The power of the world is not anything in life do more than their share of work, but they should not break themselves down in the process. Every sensible person should find out how far it is possible to go, with safety to health and usefulness, and stop there. Life and death are involved. In that way more will be accomplished for one's self and for others than by continual overwork of some notion of pride or duty which is not real conscientiousness at all.—New York News.

The Press and Crime.
Much has been said and written upon the idea that the press, by the publication of the details of crime, incites to the commission of other crimes. Because the details of a suicide or a murder are somewhat copied by other suicides and murderers there are those who generalize from that fact that a curb should be put upon the press to restrain them from giving the sensational incidents of such tragedies.

People who argue in that fashion to such conclusions understand human nature imperfectly. They who know most of the psychology of the human animal understand that there is no rigid law of imitation that will explain incidental repetitions of example. The faculty of appealing to any such law was evidenced in the cases of Cain and Abel. The law does not exist, else both those boys would have been righteous instead of but the one, and to-day we would be rejoiced by seeing only good boys and good girls in the families of which the parents are models of morality.

Humanity is born crooked—twisted into a living interrogation point. It wants to know all about things as soon as it finds out that there are things. It instinctively wants to put this and that together and get at the ends of things—and that is why the baby tries to put his toes in his mouth! That same human curiosity follows the human creature always and accounts for the enormous growth of newspapers and gives invaluable support to the doctrine of the freedom of the press.

One of the greatest laments of a reading civilization is that the world's history begun before the printing press was invented and the reporter who interviews got on the scene. How rarely satisfying it would be even now to read the details of the meeting between Satan and Eve, a stenographic report of their conversation and graphic interviews with Adam after he got fired from the Garden of Eden and with Noah after he ran aground on Ararat!

Newspaper makers know human nature better than amateur moralists. They do not find that news reports of crimes breed crimes any more than news reports of serious breed conversions, or news reports of gifts to charity set everybody or many bodies crazy to make large donations and get their names printed. The real newspaper gives the news—the good, the evil, the wise and the silly, because the public want to know it all and will be satisfied with nothing less. The newspaper is printed for the news, and not for the sake of the news, and not for the sake of the news, and not for the sake of the news.

Playing with Moral Fire.
In various parts of the country there has been an extraordinary number of tragedies of late arising out of the adventures of unmarried women with married men. Married literature, chiefly of foreign birth or extraction, has been promoting in this country the myth of platonic affection between men and women. Almost invariably the result is a married and single. Almost invariably the result is a married and single. Almost invariably the result is a married and single.

Many a blackened home is a grim monument to the satanic character of the myth of platonic love between married men and unmarried women and no less often between married women and unmarried men.—Chicago Chronicle.

What He Wanted.
"Your honor," said the prisoner, who had been brought in for a preliminary hearing, after six weeks in the county jail, "I want a change of menu."
"You mean," said the judge kindly, "that you want a change of venue."
"No, I don't mean that. I want a change of menu. That sheriff seems to have tried to cramer the corned beef market of the world."—Baltimore American.

Probably True.
"Where did all those skeletons come from?" asked the visitor at the medical college.
"Can you keep a secret?" queried the medical student.
"Then I'll tell you," said the embryo M. D., and continued, in a loud whisper: "We raised 'em!"—Chicago News.

New Sword Metal.
The Austrian government has, it is said, decided to arm several cavalry regiments with swords made of a new metal named magnalium, which is asserted to combine the lightness of aluminum with the strength and flexibility of steel.

Revival of Cameo Jewelry.
There is a revival of interest in old fashioned cameo jewelry this year. One of the large manufacturing houses in New York says that it has done more work altering and restoring old cameo jewelry this season than it has for 20 years.

Mobbed.
First College Girl—I hear you girls mobbed the umpire at the class game?
Second College Girl—Yes; we called her a "mean old thing" and told her that she was "perfectly horrid."—Puck.

FRIEND TO THE FARMER.
To the Editor—We have noticed in your paper from time to time, during the present season, some extremely instructive and interesting articles on Binding Twine.

Permit us to add a few words today with special reference to our own influence in this market. The "Farm Implement News," issue of July 17, gives the following prices of twine as the prevailing Eastern prices to the dealers:

Standard (500-ft.) 11 cents a pound
Manilla (500-ft.) 14 cents a pound
Manilla (500-ft.) 17 cents a pound

While it is perfectly true and fair to say that we would be justified in charging one cent in advance of Eastern prices for our twine of Oregon manufacture, that is, the price of freight added to Eastern prices, as a matter of fact, Pure Manilla, Red Clover Leaf Brand, 650 feet, are quoted to the dealers under date of July 15 at 16 cents per pound, or one cent below the prices quoted for Eastern goods.

Taking everything into account, it seems reasonable and appropriate that we call attention to the fact that, although many people entertain the belief that we are grinding monopolists, demanding all we can possibly get for twine, here we are in the midst of an important and strenuous season, offering our goods at one cent below the prices Eastern dealers are obliged to pay. In other words, instead of being an oppressor of the farmer, we demonstrate in a very practical manner that we are his friend, and a good friend of the general public, because, if any Eastern twine is sold in this market, we force the Eastern manufacturer to take a less price for it than he does in his local market besides the freight to the coast on account of our low selling prices.

We cannot be too enthusiastic about some of the remarks that have been made in your paper concerning Binding Twine. You have urged the consumer repeatedly to disregard the representations of unscrupulous dealers, and to always make his decision concerning purchases of twine by asking the question, "How many bundles can you bind with a dollar's worth of twine?" If the consumer will always keep in mind this question when he makes a purchase, he will inevitably and invariably select Pure Manilla twine, for it is 30 per cent longer than the other twine, dollar for dollar and pound for pound.

Coughing
"I was given up to die with quick consumption. I then began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I improved at once, and am now in perfect health."—Chas. E. Hartman, Gibbstown, N. Y.

It's too risky, playing with your cough. The first thing you know it will be down deep in your lungs and the play will be over. Begin early with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and stop the cough.
