RESULT OF A DISPUTE

Walker Assaults Davis at Bonanza with Billiard Cue.

RECOVERY IS VERY IMPROBABLE

Drs. Johnson and Reames Perform a Surgical Operation.—Walker Gives Himself Up.

As the result of a dispute over a game of pool in a saloon at Bonanza, Tuesday night, Sam L. Walker struck J. Davis a blow on the head with a billiard cue, fracturing his skull in three places, inflicting injury which, according to the attending physicians, is more than likely to prove fatal. Walker and Davis were playing a game of pool and it was about 8 o'clock when a dispute arose between them as to the count. The outcome was an assault with a billiard cue.

Yesterday morning Dr. Reames, of this place, was called to assist Dr. Johnson of Bonanza in an examination and a surgical operation on the injured man. They found three fractures, one extending into the internal ear, from which blood flowed profusely. They raised a piece of bone which was resting on the brain, and otherwise, as far as possible, repaired the man's head. They think, however, that there are slight chances of his recovery.

Walker came to Klamath Falls, arriving here last evening, and gave himself into the hands of the sheriff. A charge of assault with a dangerous weapon will probably be lodged against him now, with the charge increased in case Davis dies.

Roger Williams Convicted.

Roger Williams, an Indian, was placed on trial Monday, charged with stealing a steer from Grayson Owen Co., in September last. The case went to the jury yesterday afternoon and in the evening a verdict of guilty was returned. J. T. Alexander was the complaining witness. The action was prosecuted by District Attorney Reames and Deputy District Attorney Rutenic, and Attorneys J. W. Hamaker and Thos. Drake appeared for the defendant.

J. E. McGARREY'S SUDDEN DEATH

Lakeview has been shocked by another sudden and unexpected death in its midst. John E. McGarrey, one of the proprietors of the Lakeview Examiner and a newspaper man of exceptional ability, died on Monday evening of last week from the effects of an overdose of morphine, injected into his arm at his request by Fred Magilton, the purpose being to produce sleep. When Mr. McGarrey's condition aroused alarm, a physician was immediately summoned, but the unfortunate man was beyond relief and the end soon came.

His wife had gone about a week before to Oakland, Calif., to visit relatives. She was at once notified of her bereavement and was expected in Lakeview Friday night. The funeral took place Saturday.

Mr. McGarrey was aged 44 years and a native of Shasta county, Calif. In youth he learned the printing business and has since followed it. He went to Lakeview in January, 1898, and formed a partnership with A. Y. Beach in the publication of the Lake County Examiner, which connection he held until his death. Besides a wife, he leaves a brother and sister. His surviving relatives have the sympathy of a multitude of friends in Lake county and elsewhere.

BONANZA "SQUIBS."

The Bonanza M. E. Sunday school will give a literary program and Christmas tree entertainment on Christmas eve.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralston who, two years ago, purchased the Langell ranch of 1500 acres, came out a few weeks ago to see the country and their farm which is being superintended by A. D. Slack, a brother of Mrs. Ralston. They are in love with this country and have gone to Ashland to remain for the winter, but will return in the spring and take charge of the ranch themselves.

School will open next Monday with two teachers. Miss Daisy Patterson has the primary department.

Mr. J. M. Davis' life is hanging on a balance at present writing, as the result of a fractured skull. Sam Walker and Davis had a few words in Terrill's saloon, when Walker struck him with a billiard cue. Davis is cared for at the Morine Hotel, awaiting the performance of an operation, as soon as surgical help can come from the Falls. Hono.

THE RICH AND THE POOR.

(Oregonian.)

Are the children of the poor healthier than the children of the rich? On the one hand it is observed that they run about bareheaded and barefooted in all kinds of weather and grow fat on exposure that would kill the more tenderly reared. Poor children are often dirty. They are frequently housed in close quarters, sparingly clothed and insufficiently nourished. Hence, we have the ideal picture of the rugged, robust, never-sick children of the poor, contrasted with the tender, anemic offspring of the rich. Unfortunately, however, this fancy picture is not realized in actual life, for poverty any more than anything else, is not the royal road to health. It is a mistaken idea that children of the poor escape with a low rate of sickness and death. A multitude of helpless little ones are carried off each winter by the ailments that are bred by insufficient air and food and unsanitary habit and surroundings. The ravages of disease among the poor of great cities in summer are appalling. Riches and poverty have peculiar possibilities of good of their own, but they will not achieve their benefits unless discriminatingly applied. Plain food and open air exercise are better for the child than sweetmeats and close confinement, and these are oftener found in humble homes. But the blessings of cleanliness in habit and dress, medicine and nursing, are more apt to be with the rich. Fortunately, in the west, the best conditions of each lot are within reach of the overwhelming majority. Pure water, especially, is an ever-increasing agency of health and vigor. Poverty is to be prized for the strength that comes through struggle, wealth for its wider opportunities. But each had its temptations to be guarded against. The poet has wisely taught us to beware at once of the squalid tenement and the cares of the envious palace. From neither place do we derive the forceful figures of our National life; but from those homes that are poor enough to teach habits of industry and self-denial and yet comfortable enough to be clean and healthful. The poverty from which greatness springs keeps its face clean and pays its humble way.

The Best Remedy for Croup.

This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hive syrup and tolu, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Chitwood & Co.

A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony his mother could do nothing to help him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson, a well known resident of Klamath Falls, Ore., says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment and especially valuable for cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by Chitwood & Co."
