A PINK CANDLE

The Shopper Was Very Particular, and in a Great Hurry.

A decorous but urgent crowd of women was gathered round a counter where decorated candles were on sale at reduced prices, when a piercing voice from the edge of the crowd made known a wish.

"I want a pink candle!" came the plaint. "I have to catch a train. Can't you show me a plak candle?"

At first the saleswoman paid no beed. but as the demand was repeated again and again, she finally said, "As soon as I can I will look, madam. I think the pink candles are all gone."

A veteran of the Spanish war re cently appealed to the Secretary of the Interior a case in which he claimed a pension on account of corns that he had contracted by wearing army shoes. The department, after an exhaustive course of reasoning, comes to the conclusion that corns are not a pensionable disability. The decision says: "Corns are inconvenient, but are seldom incapacitating, and when they are the remedy is simple and within the reach of any one. "Nebulous stars probably represent the earliest phase of stellar evolution," says Agnes M. Clerke, in Knowledge. "They irresistibly suggest inciplence; they have seemingly not yet fully appropriated the material allotted for their construction. In the course of a few or of many millenniums, they will, it is reasonable to suppose, have absorbed the outstanding supply and will shine as finished suns." . . . There is at present no reason to suppose, however, Miss Clerke thinks, that the stars that appear as nuclei of planetary and annular nebulae emit gaseous radiations. "Those that do-and they are very few-are palpably not stars, but condensed wisps of cosmic haze."

if subjected only to what would seem hiliarated by pleasure and amusements. It is now believed that the explosions are the result of the rapid expansion of certain volatile liquids inclosed in cavities near the center of these preclous stones. A great many diamonds, even though cut, mounted and worn as gems of perfection, are still in an unfinished condition—that is, the liquid drop from which the stone is being formed has not as yet deposited all of its "pure crystals of carbon." These movable drops may occasionally be seen with the naked eve. When this is the case, a strong microscope will give the drop the appearance of a bubble in the fluid in a carpenter's level. It is also highly probable that besides the liquid mentioned these cavities may contain gases under great tension. This being the case, one may readfly comprehend how a very small amount of heat would cause the liquid and the gas to expand to such a degree that the diamond would give way with an explosion.-London An-
