Good chestnut and white oak posts are worth now fifteen cents each, and red edar posts twenty cents apiece, undressed, and are hard to get at that. Ten years from now the supply will be much less. No more profitable use of land can be made than to plant walnut, chestnut, oak, hickory, spruce, ash, maple, poplar, willow, locust and other trees that have a value in the arts for their timber. Plant the rough land to trees. The eucalypts are now grown in the southwestern portion of our country more extensively than any other exotic forest tree.

These trees are originally from Australia; they are known there under the name of antifever trees, as by their rapid growth and large amount of foliage they absorb the poisonous gases of the swamps, making the air pure and the climate healthy. In California, Kansas and Indiana tracts of land several thousand acres in area asked a dyspeptic-looking man of his have been planted with seedlings of and pasture lots. In many parts of the southwest the eucalypts are utilleed to advantage to furnish shade in pastures. If set along the fences and be made to protect the cattle in the pasture without at any time interfering with farm work. Seedlings may be had from the nurserymen in 100 lots at five cents each. There are some thirty different varieties, and all of them are said to grow equally well in the middle and southern States. Plant the hillsides in forest trees and farm the low ground.-Baltimore

The gradients are very severe in the Mont Cenis tunnel, and trains coming ly?" from France, with an incline of one in forty against them for several miles at a stretch, when followed by a current of air in the same direction, produce what might almost be described as an Inferno. For here, as in all other steep tunnels, engines drawing heavy loads steam along with their regulators wide open, emitting huge volumes of smoke and steam, and with an atmosphere of, say, 90 degrees Fahrenheit the discomfort of the custodians of the tunnel may be imagined far better than it can be described.

At regular intervals of a kilometer in the tunnel there is a refuge, or "grande chamber," for the workmen. This refuge is supplied with compressed air, fresh water, a telephone in each direction, a medicine chest becomes direction, a medicine chest, barometer and thermometer. As it is the practice of these custodians to go in pairs, if one man succumbs to the lack of oxygen or dense smoke his companion can render assistance or telephone for further help. If a man can manage to drag his swooning comrade inside one truth, no matter how much it may hurt the of these chambers he has merely to pride or how humiliating and disagreeable close the door, turn on the store of compressed air, and wait either for the beauty, and blackheads, blotches and pimples tunnel to clear or for a locomotive to are ruinous to the complexion, and no wonder such come to their rescue.-Strand Maga-
