Japan is little, but she has spunk.
It is never bad policy to do right.
Affairs are still quiet in the pajama republic.

"Eastern possibilities" are the topic now.

That Chicago fire has burned itself around the world.

Chance is a sweet siren that intoxicates the senses and lures to ruin.

Mr. Hearst continues to start newspapers, but others are saving the wood.

It is positive Russia and Japan are waiting for the other powers to pull them apart.

It will be an amusing spectacle to see the little mikado pulling the czar's whiskers.

Dowie now threatens to return to life the third time after he is dead. There is no end to the resourcefulness of the old man.

Mayor George B. McClellan, of New York, seems to be gathering strength for the democratic nomination for the presidency.

Marshall Field, the great Chicago merchant, has been "mentioned" as a democratic possibility. Marshall is now in the presidential class.

The Boers are talking of coming to this country. If they do they will be assured of a hearty welcome, as they are of the stuff that makes great republics.

A Nova Scotia member of Parliament announces his ability to thrash any citizen of the United States. If he will make it a war of words we will trot out Senator Morgan.

The Colombian bondholders continue to harp on their demand for money. All their patriotism calls for is boodle, and if they can't get their boodle any other way they are willing to fight for it.

THE ONLY SOLUTION.

Revolution in Santo Domingo swings merrily on. From the tops of trees and the balconies of houses the supporters of two rival political grafters pop off their guns in the divine name of liberty at anything which offers an easy mark. Business is at a complete standstill. Pillage and arson are of such frequent occurrence that the press reports occur to them as a matter of course, even commonplace. The German papers are waxing sarcastic over the affair and drawing lessons from our benevolent Monroe doctrine. Commander Dillingham of the cruiser Detroit has reported to the president that the lives and property of Americans are daily in jeopardy. In short, it is the old revolutionary maza's pest all over again.

First it is Hayti, then two pot-bollers in Salvador fall as outs and there is more popping of the detestable little guns. Hardly has trouble been assuaged on the mainland than in the water somewhere a mima-ture volcano splits and froths, and our ships must hasten there to protect American interests. Nigh onto a century of this intolerable thing, since the immortal Bolivar and a few Irishmen cut the yoke of Spain; and yet every recurrence of the dog-days and each succeeding solstice witnesses one of these play wars. The British Bahamas have no such troubles; the Danish West Indies suffer no such intermittent fevers of brawling; the French possessions are peaceful; yet practically the same people inhabit all the Carib islands. It appears then that only a strong government by others than themselves can insure continued peace in all this nest of buzzing hornets.

What must be the policy of the United States in the future when the constant brawls on all sides will hamper our digging of the canal and the proper operation of it when once it is completed? Shall the question be solved by annexation? President Andrew Johnson in his fourth annual message called attention to the wearisome condition of affairs upon this very island of Santa Domingo and urged that it be made a part of the United States.

General Grant continually urged from the presidential chair the necessity of putting a stop to the brawls on the same island by annexation. That was twenty-five years ago, before our country had a thought to the islands of the sea, and when even the purchase of Alaska raised a storm of protest from those who sought to hew close to the line of precedent laid down by the early presidents.

Since that time we have acquired Porto Rico, the Philippines, Guam and our share of Samoa. We are to have sovereign authority over a strip of territory from ocean to ocean in Panama. We are irrevocably committed to a colonial policy.

The European powers recognize the fact that their lands are restrained from meddling on this side of the Atlantic. When their interests and the lives of their citizens are jeopardized by the petty fights in the Caribbean they can do no more than appeal to the United States to rectify the evils.

Whether by annexation or by a consistent policy of severe repression it may yet be the duty of our government to bring order out of this hundred years' chaos.—San Francisco Call.

LOST TO OREGON.

The Trade of the Inland Empire of Klamath Secured to California.

Among the developments of the past year tending to the enlargement of what we may call the general sphere of California trade and influence, but which has attracted little public notice, is the building of a railroad from the point where the Southern Pacific line crosses Klamath river, into the basin of Southeastern Oregon. This little road, now something like thirty miles long, follows the general line of the Klamath river in a northeasterly direction, piercing the mountain barrier which separates California from Oregon, crossing the state boundary a short distance above Klamath Hot Springs, and entering the fine timber belt which lies between Klamath lake on the east and the Cascade mountains on the west.

The nominal purpose of this enterprise is to reach the Klamath timber belt, but that behind this purpose there is a larger one related to the permanent commerce of the country, is made manifest by the fact that the work of construction has been done in the most thorough manner and that arrangements have been made at a point on Klamath lake looking to the establishment of terminal facilities. Some twelve or fifteen miles more of construction from Pukegama, the present northern terminus of the line, will carry it forward to a connection with navigation on upper Klamath Lake.

The great basin of Southeastern Oregon thus approached for the first time by an effective system of transportation is the largest remaining undeveloped in a transportation sense. It is a country as large as the State of Ohio, with a thousand elements of potential wealth, but which up to this time has been held in the bondage of an almost absolute isolation. The five or six thousand people occupy this great region are devoted exclusively to the stock industry and live practically the lives of pioneers. It is useless to produce anything which cannot walk out to market, therefore, nothing in the way of community industry is attempted excepting animal husbandry. Wide areas of the most beautiful and potential productive country lie barren and waste because cultivation is useless where there is no means of getting to market.

It has long been a question with those who know anything about the Klamath region as to whether it belongs commercially to California, to Oregon or to the commercial cities of Utah. It is approachable by practically level routes from the north, west and from the east and from the south; and the soberest judgment has been that the future commercial connection of the country depends largely upon which of these three routes was first to be opened. This point has been determined by the enterprise of the Klamath lumber country of which Mr. Hervey Lindley, of Los Angeles, is the most active spirit. The Klamath River Railroad which has now penetrated to Pukegama and which must soon reach Klamath Lake, cannot fail to establish the line of commercial interest southward with the commercial cities of California. One railroad will for a long time be ample for all the needs of the Klamath basin. This road, now nearly constructed, establishes the connection with California and it will probably have no rival for many years to come. California, through Mr. Lindley's enterprise, has at least won the first move and will probably be able to retain the very great advantage gained.—Sacramento Union.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Senator Mark A. Hanna, chairman of the National Republican Committee, has issued the following call for the next National Republican convention:

"The Republican Electors of the United States, in accordance with established custom, and in obedience to instructions of the National convention of 1900, the National Republican committee directs that a National convention of the delegates and representatives of the Republican party be held at Chicago, in the State of Illinois, for the purpose of nominating candidates for President and Vice-President, to be voted for at the Presidential election, Tuesday, November 8, 1904, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it, and that said convention shall assemble at 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday, June 21, 1904.

Oregon will have eight representatives.

CONGRATULATIONS.

Mr. John H. Cullom, Editor of the Grand Tri-Week, News has written a letter of congratulations to the many manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows: "Sixteen years ago when our first child was a baby he was subject to cough spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup, we have never been without it in the house since that time. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results. One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdose. I congratulate you upon the success of your remedy." For sale by C. C. Chittwood.
