CHIEF NEWELL TO ENGINEERS Specific Instructions As To Future Course of Proceeding In Klamath Project. Klamath Falls, Or, Aug. 8, 1905. Mr. J. B. Lippincott, Supervising Engineer, U. S. R.S., Dear Sir—With reference to the Klamath situation I desire to indicate the policy to be pursued. We have in the past instructed our engineers to employ great speed and to push the plans and specifications to early construction. I believe that the present contracts regarding the disposal of excess holdings can and will be signed. There seems to be a fear, however, that development may proceed too rapidly and that too much land may be offered for sale within the next few years. In order to relieve this fear and to permit ample time for the signing of the excess contracts it is desirable to lessen our speed of work and to prolong indefinitely the time of completion of the system. You are, therefore, directed to proceed as follows: 1st. Reduce the present force at once to the smallest economical amount consistent with the preparation of general plans and of alternative plans for temporary structures. 2nd. Complete the plans and specifications for the Main Canal and forward these to the Washington office to be held until the contract with the Association has been completed and signatures have been secured for certain excess holdings. 3rd. Call upon the Water Users' Association for a list of the persons who refuse to sign for the excess holdings. Plat these holdings on a map and then study the practicality of building temporary structures to irrigate the remaining lands. These temporary distributing systems are to be so placed that they can be enlarged in five or ten years. The head-gates, etc., should be of wood to be replaced ultimately by concrete at the end of five or ten years at which time all of the land will probably be held in such form as to receive water. With regard to the swamp land it is reported that the large owners will not sign for the present at least. This delay will permit to study the situation carefully and to defer construction until sufficient funds have been accumulated from the reclamation of the best and higher lands. Do not urge the signing up of excess holdings but leave this matter wholly with the people interested. I think that with careful planning the country can be developed slowly with less outlay and with less risk to the Government and at the same time allaying the fears of the people. The cost of construction will also be reduced in the future as a railroad will ultimately come into the valley. Yours Very Respectfully, F. H. NEWELL, Chief Engineer.

Cornered. Elderly Aunt—Gwendolen, you shock me when you talk of a wedding being "pulled off." You ought to be ashamed to use prize-fighting slang in speaking so solemn a thing as a wedding. Young Niece—You misunderstand me Aunt Heshah. I said the wedding had been put off. But how did you happen to know that "pulled off" is a prize-fighting slang?—Cassell's. Sad Days. The melancholy days have come. When windows have to be closed tight. Those keeping in the dille. —Lonkers Statesman. COMPETENT TO ADVISE. Tourist (to Burly Hill, who has circumnavigated the globe scores of times)—I think chaps like you ought to travel a bit. It enlarges the mind. "It did mine when I went to Dieppe last year."

A Criticism. This world's indeed a feeling show. With contrasts day and end. Some characters are pretty good. And some are very bad. —Washington Star. The Real Object. "I notice," said the young man, "that whatever your personal opinions may be, you never desert your party." "It isn't that," answered Senator Sorghum. "The main thing is to avoid doing or saying anything that will give my party reason to desert me."—Washington Star.

An Unkind Stud. BiHwang—That's a swell stud you are wearing, Smithkins. I wish my friend, Trotter, could get a glimpse of it. Smithkins (flattered)—Is your friend a diamond expert? BiHwang—No; he travels for a plate-glass factory.—Cincinnati Enquirer. A Wise Son. Parent—What in the world do you want with a trombone? You know that the man next door has driven us nearly wild by his performances on that awful instrument. Son—Calm yourself, father; that's the one I've bought.—Golden Days. Her Way. Mrs. Nagger—Are these stockings a pair? Mrs. Nagger—I don't think so. Mrs. Nagger—What's wrong with them, then? Mr. Nagger—Why, the two are quite different. Mrs. Nagger—No, they're not; it's only one that's different.—Ally Sloper.

Anyone desiring to purchase the lumber in the sheds on the Mitchell ranch and in the camps near Bonanza belonging to the Klamath Canal Company can submit bids to E. R. Reames at Klamath Falls. WEEKLY WEATHER REPORT. Below we give a report of the weather as recorded by the Government weather bureau station at Marion Hanks' ranch. This report is changed each week, and if our readers wish to keep a yearly record of weather conditions for future reference, cut out the report along the upper and lower lines and paste it in a scrap book one week after another. This record will be taken on Saturday to end each week and begin on Sunday for the next week. MARION HANKS, Voluntary Observer.
