

KLAMATH REPUBLICAN

W. O. SMITH, Editor and Proprietor.

LEADING NEWSPAPER OF INTERIOR OREGON.
TWO DOLLARS THE YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Klamath Falls, Ore., Thursday, October 12, 1905.

TRADE FROM LAKE COUNTY

Four horse teams from Lake county and the northern part of Klamath, are beginning to arrive in Klamath Falls to lay in their winter supplies. It was only a few years ago that these teams did not stop at this town but went to the railroad for supplies, but since our merchants have increased their stock and enlarged their stores, the people of the interior country have been able to save money by buying in Klamath Falls. Our town is fast becoming the distributing point for both Klamath and Lake counties.

WATER POWER AND GOLD

Much has been said on the wonderful water power going to waste over the Falls of Link river, and it has been suggested how the future will see this exhaustless power harnessed and put to practical use. The value of this power has often been represented as a vertible gold mine. And now comes the discovery that a real gold mine lies hidden beneath this rolling tumbling cataract of foam and water. Every day some new discovery adds to the advantages of the great Klamath Country.

FREE ADVERTISING

From the manner in which B. St. Geo. Bishop takes the "Roast" to which he was treated by the Editor of the Express, it would appear that it was a prearranged plan on the part of Mr. Bishop to secure a column of free advertising. It may be that the Express is getting ready to support Mr. Bishop for some political office and the Editor has got wise to the fact that his attacks always have the opposite effect, and redound to the benefit of the party attacked. It is hard to believe however, that the Editor is capable of such clear reasoning, especially as the attack is in line with the policy of the present management of the Express in "knocking" the community, the country and its citizens.

SHOULD MOVE CEMETERY

With all the new additions to the town of Klamath Falls being platted, it is surprising that someone has not thought of laying out a new cemetery. Residences have already been constructed beyond the present location of our cemetery and it is only a very short time before the present site will have to be condemned and a new one laid out. Every delay means more expense in moving the bodies as each month adds to the number that will have to be moved. Building in Klamath Falls has been so rapid that by spring the Klamath Falls Cemetery will be surrounded by residences, and this result will be hastened by the action of the Hot Springs Improvement Company in laying out their new addition. Action should be taken at once to condemn the present site and provide another location so that the future interments will be permanent.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR ALL

There is probably no country in the whole United States that offers more inducements to every class of men than Klamath County.

To the tourist we can offer the magnificent scenery of Crater Lake and Anna Creek Canyon, in reaching which one travels through green forests and beautiful valleys containing lakes and streams of crystal water, and surrounded by towering mountains. To the south of us lies the Lava Beds where the great Modoc war was fought and every section has as some point of historic interest.

For the sportsman there are the already famous fishing resorts of Spring Creek, Williamson river and Pelican Bay, while the lakes and marshes of the country are the feeding grounds of millions of ducks and wild geese. The woods abound with deer and other game that would satisfy every desire of the sportsman.

For the farmer and rancher there are hundreds of thousands of acres of the best agricultural land in the west, which is now being reclaimed and irrigated by the greatest irrigation project ever undertaken by the United States government. Besides this agricultural land there are thousands of acres of fine grazing land for summer feeding of stock.

For the investor and the man of capital we have one of the richest countries in the west to be developed, millions of feet of superior pine timber to be manufactured and marketed and unlimited material for the manufacture of brick, lime and cement.

These advantages and conditions are bringing hundreds of people into the county every week and it will take many business houses to supply their wants and needs. The towns all over the county are building up and growing as if by magic and our dreams of railroads, street cars, electric lines, steamboats and factories are fast being realized.

AMERICA.

Plutocratic Version.

Our Country 'tis of thee Land of prosperity, Of thee we sing.
Land where the idle take All that the workers make Let none attempt to break Our little ring.
Land where the money-shark Fleeces the "easy mark," We love thy name,
So long as we "stand pat" We have assurance that No "Pop" or Social-Crat Can spoil our game.
'Twas given us to rule You common "working mule," And all of thine.
From far Creations born 'Till Gabriel blows his horn We are your masters born By rights divine.
Oh! glorious G. O. P. Oh! grand democracy, Thy blessings give,
We've got the people's dust Nor can they ever bust One little mealy trust, If you but live.
Why longer agitate, Why bother to debate On party sins.
No use to make a fuss It matters not to us Nor do we give a cuss Which party wins.

GOSPEL OF WORK.

Lecture Delivered by Elbert Hubbard at Exposition Grounds.

I have come to tell you something of the village where I live and the things it stands for. East Aurora is not, as some have contended, a condition of mind. It is simply an everyday country town with no wealth and no poverty. The feature which distinguishes it from other towns is the Roycroft shop, where we make books and things. We recognize that there are two ways to get away from competition, either to get an inferior article and sell it cheaper than the other fellow, or sell something better than anyone else can offer. We chose the latter, and are making books to sell from $2 to $150.

But the vital point is this: These articles are all manufactured by unskilled labor, for there is no skilled labor in the Roycroft shop except that which becomes skilled after it is there. We employ the children of farmers. They have never been to college. There are no uneducated people in the true sense. People do not get education except in a small degree at college. You can send a boy to college but you cannot make him think. You may send a boy to Harvard for four years and after he comes back home have to support him all his life. They talk of the science of education, but the science of education resembles the law of heredity, which provides that a man may resemble his grandmother or he may not. The best education comes from the university of hard knocks, of difficulty and of adversity. We become strong by bearing burdens.

A man who illustrates the point I make has just been to your city. President Hill is not a college graduate, but he has built railways and built them better than any other man. He has made every man rich from Minnesota to the Coast who would take off his coat and work. I saw Hill once. I was with an Eastern college president and we were both upon the same errand—to get a pass. As long as college men with titles and degrees have to ask favors of men who have never been to college there is no such thing as a science of education.

America is beginning to open her eyes to the value of this practical education. Because of it America is now the center of the world. Supremacy passed from Egypt to Assyria, on down to Greece, Macedonia, Rome, Venice, Spain, Holland, England and the United States. New York is now the financial center of the world, but changes come rapidly and you and I will live to see the day when the financial, literary and artistic center of the world will be right here in Portland, the Queen City of the West.

Yes, education is something practical. That man is the best educated who is the most useful. The receipt for getting an education is to regard every man as your master in some particular. There is a great controversy as to what electricity is. One day on a street-car a sign which read "Don't talk to the motorman," suggested an interview. I asked the motorman: "What is electricity?" he said: "It's the juice." He knew. Moreover he knew how to apply his knowledge. He was an educated man. He was onto his job. That is all there is to education.

Too much cannot be said upon the disadvantage of being born rich. The child brought up in luxury is a "third runder." By that I mean a person who has taken the third degree and has escaped the second one. He is an educated fool. Edward Everett Hale said: "Put 12 prize men from Harvard on a sinking ship and they would all go down because they would not know how to build a raft." A college education is alright in its place but the practical side should not be neglected.

That is the side we are emphasizing at East Aurora. We do not only have poor people there but we have some people who are not very nice. We accept the truant boys from schools and we have some jailbirds and some women whom no one else wants around. We give work to every one who wants work and will work. The greatest lesson is to teach someone to do something for somebody. The individual who does most for other people does most for himself. We shall never do away with truancy and hobnobism until we have manual training in all public schools. Work once was considered a curse; later it was regarded as a necessity; now we know it is a privilege.

We are living in an eternity now as much as we ever shall. God is with us now as much as he ever will be. Remember the week day to keep it holy. If you ever get into the kingdom of heaven it will be because you carry it in your heart. There is no devil but fear. Live one day at a time and do your work the best you can and be kind—and be kind.

FOREST LOOT.

The great forests of the Pacific slope contain the finest merchantable timber in the world today, said a prominent Californian who was recently in Washington. But the nobles of forests are fast being mowed down before the swath of commercialism, regardless of future lumber supplies or the source of our western water supply. Notwithstanding the vigilance of the government agents the work of despoiling the timber lands of the coast goes merrily on. The forest lands of the Mississippi Valley states are almost bare and the timber grabbers are working in full force in the unrivalled pine and cedar forests of Idaho, Washington and Oregon and in the redwood belts of California, yielding their almost incomprehensible cut of timber per acre. It is commonly believed in the west that unless some drastic action is taken, there will be no virgin forests 20 years from now, except in the forest reserves.

The present plan by which our people get possession of the timber lands is an improvement on the Benson and Hyde method. After investigating a region of timber country that he covets, the timber capitalist starts the report, that if it were on the market he would pay a good price for it and this tip falls on fallow ground. The land is immediately entered under the timber and stone law by "settlers"—settlers whose object it is to sell to the capitalist. They are "dummies" but under the law it is impossible to prove that their intentions are not good, and after they have secured title from the government they can do what they choose with the land. The government safeguards are futile. The Commissioner of the General Land Office himself has been quoted as officially stating that the government has lost over 100 million dollars on timber lands sold for the nominal price of $2.50 an acre, the great bulk of which, we all know, has gone into the hands of timber grabbers. Not only has the government lost this money, but the so-called settler has received only a tithe of it, and the worst of all is that the land is being recklessly denuded of its forest cover and our water courses are alternately raging torrents and dry beds.

John R. Cook, after an absence of several months at Bonanza, Klamath county, returned to Eagle Point Tuesday to spend the winter. Upon his arrival the first thing he inquired about was the political situation.

The commissioner of internal revenue at Washington, D. C., recently rendered a decision that will seriously affect a number of patent medicines composed largely of distilled liquors. He has reversed a ruling of his department made many years ago, and now decides that manufacturers of these medicines must take out licenses as rectifiers and liquor dealers, and that druggists and others handling them will have to pay the usual retail liquor dealers' license.

The commissioner in a letter of instructions to collectors of internal revenue says there are a number of compounds on the market going under the names of medicines that are composed chiefly of distilled spirits, without the addition of drugs or medicines in sufficient quantities to change materially the character of the whiskey. He authorizes collectors to impose the special tax on manufacturers of every compound composed of distilled spirits, even though drugs have been declared to have been added thereto, when their presence is not discoverable by chemical analysis, or it is found that the quantity of drug in the preparation is so small as to have no appreciable effect on the liquor.

TRADE TOPICS.

Military merchants are complaining of poor trade.
Egypt exports annually about $150,000 worth of "cigarette paper."

A company has recently been organized at Rendeburg, Prussia, to distill alcohol from peat.
The value of artificial and chemical fertilizers annually used in Italy is estimated at $8,250,000.

Scientists estimate that there is energy enough in 50 acres of sunshine to run the machinery of the world, could it be concentrated.

Since 1896 the exports of German toys have risen from $2,290,000 to $12,566,000 a year. The native consumption is estimated at $16,660,000 a year.

The greatest obstacle to Liberian trade is the total absence of direct communication between the west coast of Africa and the United States.

The male human needs more food than the female. The man tends to expend energy and the woman to store it up in the form of fat, he burns the faster.

In consequence of the discovery by Prof. Schroten that the bacillus of consumption is not the same as that of tuberculosis, it is held in German medical circles that the present treatment of consumption will be radically changed.

Cobalt is one of the minerals found in the atmosphere of the sun and in meteorites. It usually occurs associated with nickel, arsenic and sulphur, and is frequently an incidental product in the working of copper, bismuth and nickel ores.
